Auchincloss Home-Rule Referendum Considered

Trade Board Acts On Proposal Today; Streamline Features In Plan Indorsed

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A proposal for a city-wide vote on the Auchincloss reorganization and home-rule plan for the District will be discussed today by Washington Board of Trade leaders.

Board President John A. Reilly said he would submit the idea of an informal referendum on the Auchincloss program to the board's directors in their meeting today.

The reorganization home-rule plan, proposed yesterday by a House District Subcommittee headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), calls for the District to be run by an elected 12-member council and a city manager, instead of the present three-member commission, with Congress holding final control by a veto power. There would be 13 major city departments—with schools and libraries each in a department under an elected board of education, and the other 11 under the city manager.

Washington's residents yesterday generally indorsed the reorganization features, but were divided on the home-rule proposal. This division recalled the informal suffrage plebiscite a year ago when local citizens turned in an 11-to-2 vote for national representation but gave home rule a slimmer indorsement of about 7 to 3.

Auchincloss Against Plebiscite

Auchincloss' plan did not touch the national representation issue.

Reilly pointed out his organization had always favored national representation, but had opposed local suffrage on the ground that the District's present form of government is "very fine."

Auchincloss also turned thumbs down on the idea of submitting the charter for the proposed new government to a local vote. He said Washington should have home rule whether it wants it or not. He said, too, that there would not be time to have the citizens vote on the plan and still get it through the Eightieth Congress.

Reilly said he did not know whether the Board of Trade would now have the facilities to handle a city-wide poll on the Auchincloss

Towns Damaged; Flood Causes Havoc

Lima, Peru, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—At least 44 persons were dead today and seven towns heavily damaged in a series of earth tremors which began at 10 a. m. Saturday and continued to shake central Peru until dawn Sunday.

Military planes and Red Cross aircraft flew doctors, nurses, food, clothing and medical supplies into the disaster area.

Tidal waves heaved up by the quakes sank fishing boats off the northern Peruvian coast, but no lives were reported lost.

Heaviest hit among the seven communities was the mountain town of Satipo, virtually destroyed by earthquake and flood.

The temblors breached the dikes in the Satipo River and the resultant flood destroyed the hospital, with only a few patients saved. The waters also ripped other public buildings from their foundations. The community was isolated except by air.

The total of those killed in Satipo was reported to be 40, but rescue workers feared many others were buried under debris or drowned and washed away.

Reports reaching Lima said it was feared the death toll in Satipo may reach 100 when the full extent of the disaster becomes known. Many homes were swept away with their occupants.

Has Your Post Carrier Visited You Lately?

Your Washington Post carrier visits you every day, seven days a week . . . but unless you're an exceptionally early riser, chances are you only see him once a month—when he comes to collect. Next time, and each time he calls, have his money ready for him the first time he visits you.

Most people have no trouble at all getting paid—just a matter of standing in a pay-line a few minutes, or waiting till a check is handed or mailed to you, on time, always. Not so with your Washington Post carrier, who must make many, many calls to get his pay. Collection is the most time-consuming part of his job. Why not try and make his job easier by having his money ready for him the first time he calls?

Takes Off on Taxi Test

Hughes Flies Questioned Plane Mile in Surprise First Trial

By John Von Der Heide

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 2 (U.P.).—The world's largest plane flew for the first time this afternoon. Howard Hughes unexpectedly took his 23-million-dollar plywood flying boat, center of a congressional investigation, into the air for a mile flight, during what had been advertised as only a taxi test.

The 200-ton plane, on which multimillionaire Hughes had staked his reputation as an airplane designer, lifted 70 feet into the air on its third and final taxi run this afternoon, and flew at 100 miles an hour for a mile.

Hughes had said earlier that he didn't expect to fly it before next March and he wasn't sure it ever would fly.

A crowd of about 1000 lining the breakwater at Los Angeles Harbor burst into cheers as Hughes returned from the first flight.

"I didn't decide to take it off until I actually did it," he said.

"We were up on the step and it felt so good I just took it off. The landing was really gratifying. I had to use a rather confined area which did not permit any great flight length. I thought the controls operated well," he added.

The giant plane was the object of a senatorial investigation last summer as a committee questioned the wisdom of the Government financing such a project during the war. The Senate committee is to resume its hearings in Washington Wednesday on the 40 million dollars in war contracts given to Hughes.

"I don't think the plane's flight today will have any effect on the committee's resuming its hearings," Hughes said. "As you know, I've often said the plane hasn't much to do with that investigation anyway."

Hughes said his plans to take the ship on a regular flight in March or April were not altered.

"I think the airplane is going to be fairly successful, he said.

His takeoff speed was 95 miles an hour, and he used about 2200 horsepower in each of the eight engines, which are rated at 3000 horsepower each.

On the first run over a 10-mile course, the plane taxied at a speed of 45 miles. On the second it reached 90 miles and on the third 95 miles to take off.

Hughes said credit for the ship's success went to the men who helped him build it during four years of construction.

After the tests, the plane, with its 320-foot wingspread, was anchored in the harbor.

Top-Speed Firing

U. S. Has Jet Ready to Go Into Battle

By The Associated Press

The United States Air Force now has a jet fighter ready for battle, having solved the problem of heavy fire power from aircraft flying at speeds approaching that of sound.

It announced yesterday that completion of firing tests show the P-84 Thunderjets are "now fully qualified for operational service."

In tests conducted at the Farmingdale, N. Y., plant of Republic Aviation Corp., the USAF said, 70,000 rounds were fired from the six guns of one P-84—with "more than 75 per cent of the rounds fired at (plane) speeds in excess of 600 miles per hour." The first 10,000 shots were used to "warm up" the guns, the remainder fired in salvo, with all six guns spitting fire simultaneously.

Moreover, the USAF said, the tests showed the P-84's guns fired "about 50 per cent faster than the guns used in World War II aircraft."

(This rate of fire is an important factor in jet aircraft. The extreme speed of the airplane allows only a fraction of the time available in conventional fighters for getting off a burst of bullets at a target. Captured German documents show that the Luftwaffe found that to considerable measure the advantage of speed in its jet fighters was offset by the too-slow fire rate of the guns.

(In addition to the rate-of-fire problem, jet fighter armament experts have had to overcome several

Heavy Seas Lash Entire Coastline Of Carolinas

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—A 9-foot 2-inch tide swept through the low lying sections of Charleston today as heavy seas lashed the entire coastline of the Carolinas. The normal high tide in Charleston is about 5 feet.

The high tides almost completely covered the outer banks of North Carolina from Oregon Inlet to Cape Hatteras.

A Coast Guard "duck" rescued 15 persons from a stranded bus.

The Hatteras-Manteo bus was proceeding along a newly constructed State highway between Avon and Buxton when it became stalled. A large portion of the road was covered by 1 to 3 feet of water at high tide at 10:20 a. m.

In the Myrtle Beach and Georgetown areas of South Carolina lower streets were flooded and several piers were damaged.

Drive for Community Chest Furthered in Pulpits Here

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Religious leaders yesterday asked congregations to support the Community Chest Federation's $3,900,000 campaign at Red Feather Sunday services. The drive will open next Thursday.

Priests at masses urged worshipers to back the drive, and reminded that the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, administrator of the Washington and Baltimore archdioceses, has urged Catholic support of the project.

Likewise, Protestants were reminded that the Washington Federation of Churches, through Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, secretary, is behind the Chest campaign.

The campaign will be mentioned at services next Friday night in synagogues and temples.

Dr. Alfred Wesley Hurst, pastor of Cleveland Park Congregational Church, 34th and Lowell sts. nw., issued a statement declaring that "it would be a reflection on the community and the churches of the community if the Chest drive fails to go over the top."

"In my former community of Chattanooga, Tenn.," said Dr. Hurst, "the Community Chest recently went over with flying colors, and I have confidence that the drive here will succeed. There is a splendid spirit abroad—a determination to see the thing through."

"An absolutely imperative need is answered by the Community Chest," the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartright said at St. Matthew's Cathedral, of which he is rector. "The institutions to which it minis-

U.S. Red Party Staying Out of 'Cominform'

Political Situation Cited in Rejecting Belgrade Setup Tie

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The Communist Party of the United States announced today it had decided not to join the information bureau set up in Belgrade by the Communist parties of nine European countries (Cominform) because "of the present political situation in the United States."

Although approving strongly of the announced purposes of the Cominform, an official statement by the American party said its national board had decided against affiliation because:

"The reactionary and pro-Fascist forces now whipping up anti-Communist hysteria and war incitement in our country would undoubtedly seize upon such action by the American Communist Party as a pretext for new provocations and repressions against the Communists and all other sections of the American labor and progressive movement."

Make Joint Statement

The decision was announced by William Z. Foster, chairman, and Eugene Dennis, general secretary, of the Communist Party of the U. S. A.

They declared, however, that the American party will "continue to promote the international solidarity of labor and all anti-Fascists and anti-Imperialists" and "especially the friendship of the American and Soviet peoples."

Establishment of the Cominform as "a medium through which these parties can consult, and, if they deem it desirable, coordinate activity, has heartened anti-Fascists, anti-imperalists and lovers of peace in every land," the American leaders asserted.

"Confronted by the Marshall Plan—Wall Street's program for enslaving Europe and the world—it is natural that these parties should again prove themselves the best champions of the national independence of their own countries, and of the welfare of all freedom-loving peoples.

Assail Wall Street

"It is already clear that their joint declaration of views and their formation of an information bureau have everywhere strengthened patriots defending national freedom and the cause of peace, making more effective their resistance to the program of imperialist expansion, intervention and war of which Wall Street is the chief instigator."

The statement added: "We Communists have enlisted for the duration in this struggle to check and defeat Wall Street's drive toward world domination, fascism and war."

7 Employes Kept in Dark On Dismissal

State Department Will Furnish Data, However, for Civil Service Review

Not Permitted to Resign

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The State Department disclosed yesterday it had refused to furnish charges to seven employes fired for security reasons or to permit them to resign.

Acting Secretary Lovett, however, informed attorneys for the seven that the Civil Service Commission was "prepared to consider these cases." He added that the State Department would "cooperate with the Civil Service Commission by making available to it the information upon which it acted."

Since shortly after the former employes were dismissed late in June, the law firm of Arnold, Fortas & Porter has petitioned the State Department to permit them to resign, give them a hearing or furnish them with a statement of charges. Members of the firm are Thurman Arnold, former head of the Justice Department's antitrust division; Abe Fortas, former Undersecretary of the Interior, and Paul A. Porter, former head of OPA.

Discharged in June

Their seven clients are among 10 State Department employes fired last June on charges of "indirect association with representatives of foreign governments." They have not been identified by the State Department or by their attorneys.

Arnold said last night counsel was studying every possibility of an appeal, but for the time being was at loss as to which may to turn. Letters addressed to Secretary of State Marshall so far have gone unanswered, he said.

He couldn't see how an appeal to the Civil Service Commission would help.

"All these people want is to resign from the State Department without prejudice, so they can get jobs somewhere else," he explained. They don't want to say in the Government. As these things are now I doubt they could get a job anywhere in the United States."

The attorneys are serving without fee because of the principles involved.

Lovett reminded the attorneys yesterday that the current State Department Appropriation Act provides that the Secretary "in his absolute discretion" might discharge any employe before last June 30 if he thought such action "necessary or advisable." The same law, he pointed out, provides that dismissal by the State Department for its own reasons would not affect employment by another department provided the Civil Service Commission found the employe eligible.

"The department," wrote Lovett, "regrets that the employes concerned have found it difficult to find other employment as a result of its action. It has attempted to emphasize that the determination in their cases went only to the question of their suitability for

Textile Mill Strike Set For South

Walkout of 25,000 CIO Workers Called In Fight for Wages To Match North's

Danville, Va., Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Some 25,000 CIO textile union workers in the South today were ordered to strike Thursday unless management raises minimum wage scales to a par with Northern mills. An industry spokesman indicated no new offers would be made to the union.

Fifty leaders of the Textile Workers Union of American issued the order at a policy-making meeting here today, announcing their decision before a mass meeting of 3000 wildly cheering and singing workers.

George Baldanzi, executive vice president of TWUA, announced the strike order, declaring that no satisfactory progress had been made in negotiations on union demands for 15-cent-an-hour wage increases.

Big Mill Offer Stands

A company spokesman, Basil Browder, vice president of the Dan River Mills here which employs 12,000 persons, said his company's offer of a 5-cent-an-hour increase "still stands."

The Dan River mill is the largest single textile unit in the world.

Browder said he would consult other leaders of the Southern textile industry who, he "understood," were making similar offers. But he indicated he would favor a firm stand against the demands even in face of the strike threat.

Baldanzi said that strike orders would be sent out from TWUA headquarters in Atlanta. Shortly afterward alert messages were sent from Atlanta to union locals in Alabama, North and South Carolina and Virginia.

May Affect All South

Although alerts were sent to locals in four States, affecting 25,000 in huge chain plants, Baldanzi indicated the strike call might be made to include all Southern States. Only one third of the organized workers in the Southern industry was affected by today's order.

Southern industry was affected by today's order.

Northern textile workers make a minimum of from 85 to 95 cents an hour, Baldanzi said. Southern textile workers make minimum pay of 80 cents an hour, raised only this year from "slave wages" of 55 to 65 cents an hour. Southern workers last year won a 10-cent minimum pay increase from 55 cents, under strike threats.

Browder said workers in the Dan River mills made an "average of $1.02 an hour."

The Danville local is the largest in the South, having 8000 members.

Miss. Bus Terminal Wrecked by Dynamite

Hattiesburg, Miss., Nov. 2 (U.P.).—The interior of the Tri-State bus terminal was wrecked early today by a dynamite blast which police believed was connected with the sixth-month-old strike of 850 Southern Trailways Bus Co. employes.

There were no casualties. The two-story brick building was empty when the explosion occurred shortly before 1 a. m.

Windows were blown out and chairs and office equipment hurled about.

4 Big Cities Take Spotlight In Mayoral Fights Tomorrow

Heavy Vote Seen In Spirited Fight For Board Seats

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

In constrast to spirited campaigning in Arlington, where several Democratic-held offices are threatened, no break in the Democratic front is likely in Fairfax County or Alexandria in tmorrow's election.

Democratic candidate for the State Senate from the Twenty-ninth District, which consists of Fairfax and Prince William Counties and Alexandria, is the incumbent, Andrew W. Clarke.

President of the Alexandria Bar Association, Clarke is completing his first term in the Senate. Opposing him is Republican Thomas C. Graham, insurance dealer and a director of the Council of Social Agencies.

In the House of Delegates race in Alexandria, the only other contest for which city voters will ballot, Armistead L. Boothe, Alexandria attorney from 1938 to 1943, is the Democratic candidate. He is opposed by Republican Walter B. Fulton, Washington broker and chairman of the Alexandria Republican Committee.

In Fairfax County, a highlight of the House of Delegates race is that Robert J. McCandlish, jr., is the Democratic candidate by virtue of a one-vote margin in the pri-

Democrat Seeks To Break GOP's Philadelphia Hold

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia, San Francisco, Detroit and Cleveland top a long list of mayoralty battles attracting interest in tomorrow's municipal elections.

Local issues have predominated in the campaigns. In one—Indianapolis—a national party leader, Representative Halleck of Indiana, Republican floor leader of the United States House, has taken part.

Philadelphia's one million registered voters have not witnessed such a red hot mayoralty fight since the city elected its last Democrat to that office 63 years ago.

Bernard Samuel, 67-year-old Republican incumbent seeking reelection, is opposed by Richardson Dilworth, Democrat, 49-year-old Marine Corps veteran of two world wars, former Yale football player and oarsman, and one-time deputy attorney general of Pennsylvania.

Dilworth, in street corner speeches, has questioned whether the city should entrust to what he terms a "cynical and corrupt Republican machine" the spending of 320 million dollars for a post-war improvement program. Samuel, who has made few speeches, has asked voter support on the basis of his announced program of public improvement projects.

Infiltration Holds Spark Of World Fire, Byrnes Warns

This is a serialization of James F. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly"—six of 15 chapters of the book published October 15, 1947, by Harper & Brothers. Copyright, 1947, by Donald S. Russell, trustee of the James F. Byrnes Foundation (a charitable trust).

By James F. Byrnes

AT ALL these points of present danger to the peace of the world—Iran, Greece, Turkey, Hungary and the other Balkan states—it can be argued that the national interest of the Soviet Union is involved or that fear and suspicion prompt her action. That may be true, but the unilateral pursuit of national interest, plus fear and suspicion, can lead to conflict—conflict that is contrary to the interest of all peoples.

Changes in power relations always tend to create uneasiness in the world. Russia long has been an important power, but never before has it been so clearly the dominant power on the European continent. When the power of any state has greatly increased, there naturally is concern regarding its possible further expansion. This is particularly true when the leaders of the expanding state have an aggressive ideology.

There is particular uneasiness in the world when a power—like the Soviet Union—acquires great strength in relation to others, but lags behind them in its own internal standard of living.

Other governments besides the Soviet Union seek territory. France wants the Saar. Greece has expressed a desire to annex Epirus. The Netherlands desires a slice of German territory adjoining its border. Belgium also may ask for adjoining German territory. The difference is that these governments seek changes through international machinery, either the peace conference or the Council of Foreign Ministers, whereas the Soviets apparently prefer to seek changes through unilateral action. That action frequently takes the course of political infiltration.

The Charter of the United Nations pledges all members to "refrain from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state." The definition is not restricted to armed invasion. It

Labor Defeat Won't Force New Election

Tory Candidates Win 75 Per Cent of Contests But Attlee Will Hold On

London, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—A high officer of the British Laborite government, which suffered its first major election defeat since 1945 Saturday, spurned the idea of a general election today despite the victorious Conservative Party's clamor for an immediate test at the polls.

The Labor defeat came in the election of city councilmen. Latest returns showed that less than one third of the Labor Party's 2600 candidates were elected, while nearly three quarters of more than 1700 Conservative nominees were swept into office.

The high government source said the election result not only would not force a general election, but would not cause any alteration in Prime Minister Attlee's socialist program.

Returns from all but two of the 388 boroughs voting in England and Wales showed Winston Churchill's Conservatives scored a net gain of 617 council seats while Labor suffered a net loss of 685, including totally unexpected defeats in such Labor strongholds as industrial Manchester and Birmingham.

Churchill Comments

Of the total of 3266 council seats involved, the Conservatives now hold 1235 and Labor 832. The independents, practically all of whom are regarded as having conservative leanings, hold 1067 seats, Liberals 131 and Communists 1. Only one of every three seats fell vacant this year.

"The result deprives the socialist (Labor) government of any mandate they obtained at the general election," Churchill declared in a statement. "Henceforward they will govern without the moral support and against the will of the people."

Britain's constitution would not require another national election until 1950 unless the government suffered a major defeat in Parliament where its majority is large. Attlee could be expected to go to the people voluntarily, however, if there was frequent evidence of loss of support.

In some impartial quarters the opinion was expressed that the Labor government may experience a further loss of backing during the "austerity" winter ahead.

Labor Denies Landslide

Labor denied the result was a landslide, but the voting showed clearly that Britain had followed France, Denmark, Norway and Switzerland in a modified swing to the right—away from the left.

Indian Plane Dropped Bomb In Pakistan, Official Says

Rawalpindi, Pakistan, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—A Pakistan official asserted today that a royal Indian dominion plane had dropped a bomb on Pakistan territory.

The Pakistan commissioner here said that Indian air force planes from Kashmir dropped three bombs, apparently aimed at Kohala bridge on the main road from Pakistan to Kashmir.

Two of the bombs fell into the river, the commissioner said, but the third landed in Kohala village, in Pakistan 60 miles northeast of here.

Kohala is on the bank of the Jhelum River, which at that point is the boundary between Pakistan and Kashmir.

(The planes were presumably among those which the Indian Defense Ministry in New Delhi said had "made offensive reconnaissances"—semiofficially described as strafing attacks—against Moslem raiders striking into Kashmir from Pakistan.)

Kashmir Referendum Projected by Nehru

New Delhi, India, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said tonight the dominion of India is prepared to have a referendum conducted in Kashmir "under international auspices like the United Nations" once peace is restored in that princely state.

15 Million Fighting Men Lost in War

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 2 (NYHT).—The 57 Allied and Axis nations involved in World War II lost more than 15 million soldiers and sailors and other military personnel, according to a report by Secretary of State George C. Marshall, released today.

In a chapter, "Conclusions," written for the Encyclopaedia Britannica's new four-volume history of the war decade, 1937 through 1946, Marshall stated the full cost of the war "either in intrinsic values or in intangibles" will never be known.

Among the losses difficult to appraise, he stated, are casualties among civilians; losses caused by the displacement of populations; "the long term effects of devoting the major portions of the world's over-all capabilities for a period of years to the objectives of destruction," and the loss in the destruction of homes, industries, and means of livelihood of millions, which "probably represented a greater monetary cost factor than the support of armed forces."

The total cost to the principal belligerents in military personnel "killed and missing in battle exceeded 15,000,000," he wrote. "The very considerable costs to the smaller countries, particularly Poland and the nations in southeastern Europe, added hundreds of thousands more to the total."

In the final compilation of figures, he stated, "the data for each nation should be viewed in the light of that nation's total manpower and national wealth. The major portion of the war was

American Author Reported Killed By India Raiders

New Delhi, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Nicol Smith, American author and travel lecturer, who recently returned from western Tibet, said today he had heard repeated reports that a man killed in the Kulu Valley of the northern Punjab was Theos Bernard, another United States author and authority on Tibet.

Bernard's wife, Mrs. Helen Bernard, reported here Thursday she had fled on foot 125 miles from tribal raiders in the isolated valley, and that her 40-year-old husband possibly had been killed. Mrs. Bernard left later for Calcutta. Bernard's father is G. A. Bernard of Northbridge, Calif.

Smith said several groups of Lahoulis, Tibetan Buddhists, he met on a road told him that a white man had been killed when a Hindu mob attacked a trekking party in early September.

Three Billion Of Initial Aid Must Be Gift, Officials Say

Harriman Asks Export Controls' Extension to Guard Domestic Economy

Congress probably will be asked to furnish more than 3 billion dollars of the first year's Marshall Plan aid to Europe as an outright gift, it was learned yesterday.

This probability, advanced in the Saturday report of President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, was strengthened by both American and European officials here. They were in general agreement yesterday that part of the first year's help would have to be without cost and that it would amount to more than half of the total.

As an immediate step to protect the domestic economy during operation of the Marshall Plan, Secretary of Commerce Harriman yesterday recommended to the President that export controls be extended beyond their present expiration date of February 29.

Permits Direction

"Export control," Harrison said, "permits us to direct exports of critically needed commodities to countries where the need is most urgent, and where they can be most effectively used to speed the economic recovery of the world."

Uncontrolled exports, he added, would have these adverse effects at home:

1. Open up unrestricted foreign competition with American buyers for food and other scarce commodities, increasing prices here still more and "adding further substantial burdens to the high cost of living borne by our people."

2. Place an "excessive" drain on supplies of many industrial commodities, such as steel, petroleum and chemicals, which are "needed to maintain prosperity levels of output, income and employment in this country."

Would Reduce Supply

3. Impede food production and "reduce the supply of food available for our own consumption as well as for other nations in need" by heavy calls on such agricultural materials as fertilizers, feeds and seed.

4. Perhaps "endanger the health and welfare of the American people" by undue drains on "certain commodities, such as foods and vital medicines."

Harriman reported that in addition to export controls the United States must retain power to grant

Wider Grain Saving Sought

Luckman to See Packers and Millers

President Truman's Citizens Food Committee moved yesterday to establish voluntary rationing in additional industries while the CIO launched a campaign for return of price controls.

The food committee, headed by Charles Luckman, turned its attention to the meat, breakfast cereal and flour industries in its drive to save 100 million bushels of grain for Europe. The distilling, brewing and baking industries already were carrying out programs of curtailed production.

Luckman and his assistants will meet here today with representatives of the Nation's meat packers in an effort to work out means of increasing production and use of meat by-products. Such a program, it was expected, would result in decreased use of choice cuts, produced from grain-fed cattle.

After his talks with the packers, Luckman is scheduled to confer tomorrow with "dry" and "wet" millers, who produce breakfast cereals, corn syrups, corn sugar and other products processed from scarce grain.

He is then to meet later with representatives of the dairy products and flour milling industries. No definite dates have been set for these conferences.

The CIO drive for price controls, consumer rationing and excess profits taxation was proposed in a letter from headquarters here to all affiliates, asking them to join a Nation-wide campaign for action by the President and Congress. They told the affiliates they should work also for the Marshall Plan for European recovery.

Hagana-Irgunist Peace Is Reported

City Holds Out

Reds Fight Chinese for Kirin Hill

Peiping, Nov. 2 (AP).—The battle for Kirin continued in full fury today. The main struggle was for possession of a commanding height 12 miles southwest of the Manchurian city.

Progovernment Chinese dispatches said planes from Mukden were flying in ammunition to the hard-pressed defenders, while the Communists made repeated, but unsuccessful, charges.

There was no further word on day-old reports that the Communists had broken into the western suburbs.

Changchun, Manchurian capital 160 miles west of Kirin, was placed under more strict martial law.

Another Communist threat was reported shaping up 35 miles west of Mukden, where 10,000 men were reported mustering around Sinmin, on the railway to Peiping.

Fighting continued in China proper at the railway junction of Shihkiachwang, 172 miles southwest of Peiping.

2 Jewish Groups Are Said to Have Ratified Accord

Jerusalem, Palestine, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Usually reliable quarters reported today that the Hagana and Irgun Zvai Leumi Jewish underground organizations had "ratified" effective immediately an agreement to end their weeks of private war.

Under the agreement, Hagana—the moderate organization affiliated with the Jewish agency—promises not to interfere with Irgunists who post propaganda placards. However, Hagana reserves the right after the placards have been put up to remove them or substitute Hagana posters for them if it wishes.

Arabs throughout Palestine observed a three-hour strike today to commemorate, as a "day of national disaster," the thirtieth anniversary of the Balfour declaration in which Britain proclaimed a policy of favoring the principle of a Jewish national home in Palestine.

Leaders organized the strike as a purely passive affair, without demonstrations or public meetings.

Race Question In Va. Schools Causes Outbursts

Pennington Gap, Va., Nov. 2 (AP).—Reaction in southwest Virginia to pending law suits to force educational equality between Negroes and whites in Virginia schools ranged today from derision to downright anger.

In Lee County, United Mine Workers locals, meeting in a weekly get-together, went on records as "resenting to the fullest" the suits which the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said yesterday it planned to file against the University of Virginia and against school authorities in all of Virginia's 100 counties.

Dillard Ball, chairman of the St. Charles Republican precinct, branded the NAACP suits as "a gateway to putting Negroes in school with our children."

"We won't stand for that," he declared.

Clint Hughes, assistant chief of police here, predicted flatly that the "roof will come off" if the courts find in favor of the association.

And Lee County School Supt. S. J. Shelbourne declared: "It won't work."

Shelbourne said his county had only 100 Negro students as against 9000 white children and that the Negro children were taught in three one-room buildings—one of them housing only six pupils. High school students are sent to Middleboro, Ky., "at the expense of the county," he explained.

Gen. Smith to Speak

The Sons of the Revolution, District Chapter, will meet at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in Gadsby's Tavern, Alexandria. Lieut. Gen. Julian C. Smith, USMC, will discuss "The Battle of Tarawa from the Viewpoint of the General in Command of the Second Marine Division." General Smith led the Second Division.

Fauquier Voters To Decide Status On Road Debt

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 2 (Spl.)—Fauquier County voters, in addition to electing members of the State Legislature and county officials, will decide whether the county shall assume the road indebtedness of Marshall District in the election Tuesday.

On one side of the question are the people of Marshall district, who feel the county should take over their $58,000 road debt, the unpaid balance of a debt incurred in 1925 to improve roads, because they feel the roads are used by all county residents.

On the other hand, many not residing in Marshall district feel that they paid for the improvement of their own district roads at the time they were constructed on a "pay-as-you-go" plan, and that they should not assume the Marshall district burden.

2 Navy Reserve Pilots Killed As Planes Collide

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 2 (AP).—Two Navy Air Reserve pilots were killed today when their Gruman Avenger torpedo planes collided 500 feet above the Albemarle Sound 15 miles south of Elizabeth City, N. C.

The planes plunged into the sound. One exploded and both sank instantly.

The fliers, whose bodies were not recovered, were Lieut. Vic Dean McGinley, jr., Virginia Beach, Va., and Ensign Jimmie Wright, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

Both men were separated from the Navy about a year ago, but had enrolled in the Norfolk Naval Air Reserve Unit. They were on a routine gunnery training flight when the collision occurred.

share interest with several statewide races, notably in Kentucky and Mississippi.

In Kentucky, Representative Earle C. Clement, a Democrat, will contest for the governorship with State Attorney General Eldon S. Dummit, Republican. Kentucky now has a Republican governor, Simeon S. Willis, who is ineligible to succeed himself.

In Mississippi, the big race is to succeed to the Senate seat of the late Theodore G. Bilbo.

Three special congressional elections will be held Tuesday also, in the 4th Ohio, 10th Indiana and 14th New York districts.

San Francisco has a three-way contest for the mayor's chair of retiring Roger Lapham. It is a non-partisan affair. Contestants are Representative Franck R. Havenner, elected to the United States House as a Democrat; Chester R. MacPhee, real estate man and member of the board of city supervisors, and Superior Court Judge Elmer E. Robinson.

Havenner has been described by his critics as a candidate of the "left wing" element. MacPhee's opponents call him the "hand-picked" candidate of Mayor Lapham. Robinson's foes assert his election would mean a "wide open" town.

City finances and transportation have figured as issues in Detroit's non-partisan election. Mayor Edward J. Jefferies, indorsed by the CIO and some AFL units, is seeking his fifth successive term. He is opposed by Eugene I. Van Antwerp, city councilman for 15 years, who is making his first bid for mayor. The Wayne County Federation of Labor, the over-all AFL group, is backing Antwerp.

In Cleveland it's Mayor Thomas E. Burke (D.), supported by organized labor and seeking a second term, versus Eliot Ness (R.), former safety director backed by the regular GOP organization headed by United States Representative George Bender. The job pays $15,000 a year.

Indianapolis is one of more than 100 Indiana cities holding elections. Seventy-four of these cities are now Republican, 28 Democratic.

Many church bulletins distributed at services bore statements asking support of the campaign. Dr. Harry W. Burgan, pastor of the Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw., in a message in his bulletin, cited Christians' obligation to aid humanitarian enterprises.

"Kickoff" Luncheon

Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and Senate chaplain, will address a Dutch treat "kickoff" luncheon at the general campaign organization Thursday at 12:30 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel.

The Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. nw., will be the place of a general instruction meeting for residential unity volunteers today at 8 p. m. Robert C. Lewis, radio comedian, will entertain.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will address a public Chest rally Friday at 4 p. m. on the south steps of the Treasury Building. While solicitation already has begun in the Government Unit and Business Units 1 and 2, and Special Gifts, solicitation among residential areas of Washington, Alexandria and for nearby counties will begin this week.

Suburban Rallies

Several suburban Chest rallies are slated for tonight at 8. Alexandria's Unit Colored Division will sponsor a "kickoff" meeting at the Ebenezer Baptist Church, 909 Queen st. Arlington Unit Residential Division workers (area II) will meet at Arlington Methodist Church, Glebe rd. and 8th st; area IV-B, at Ballston Firehouse, 900 block of North Stuart st., and area VII at Westover Baptist Church, 1125 North Patrick Henry dr.

Albert Carretta, Arlington attorney and member of the board of trustees, Arlington Chest, will be guest speaker Wednesday at 8 p. m. at a meeting of members of the Lyon Park Women's Club, 414 N. Fillmore st.

There will be an Alexandria Unit Dutch treat breakfast Wednesday at 8 a. m. at the Lee Room, George Mason Hotel. General Chairman E. H. Foley, jr., and others will speak.

and a score of engineers on the first two taxi runs.

When the plane hit its peak speed as the eight roaring engines, capable of producing 8000 horsepower each, drove it through the water, the big ship skipped from wave to wave. There was a violent shaking motion in the cockpit.

Members of the senatorial committee did not accept Hughes' invitation to see the first tests of the plane, big enough to carry 700 persons.

At a press conference, Hughes disclosed he is working on a guided missile program for the Government.

Hughes plans to fly to Washington late next week to testify.

(In Washington, Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), who has feuded bitterly with Hughes over his flying boat, said tonight he was pleased to hear that the giant craft had made a successful 1-mile test flight. Brewster is chairman of the Senate War Investigating Committee, a subcommittee of which is currently investigating why the Government gave Hughes his wartime contract for the plane.)

Marker and Garber Seek County Office

Winchester, Va., Nov. 2 (Spl.)—Voters in Frederick and Clarke Counties will ballot for county-wide officers and boards of supervisors as well as State legislative candidates Tuesday, but in only one instance is there any opposition.

Ralph Marker, Democrat, running for supervisor in Shawnee District, Frederick County, is opposed by Charles Garber, independent. All others named on the ballot will be unopposed.

Tax Cut Push To Go Ahead, Knutson Says

By The Associated Press

Representative Knutson (R., Minn.) said yesterday he would proceed with his drive for a $4,000,000,000 tax cut, notwithstanding the recommendation by President Truman's economic advisers that taxes be held where they are to help pay the bill for aid to Europe and to curb inflation.

"The tax-cutting bill will be ready for introduction when the special session convenes," he said, adding: "I hope it will be the first major piece of legislation passed at the special session."

Knutson heads the House Ways and Means Committee.

The President's economic council reported Saturday night that by continuing present Federal tax rates, and a part-way return to wartime inflation controls, the United States could safely support the Marshall aid to Europe plan and still reduce the national debt.

Sees Both Badly Confused

Knutson commented:

"I'm afraid the President's advisory committee is as badly confused as he is.

"Even a grade school student knows that all the money we advance for relief and rehabilitation will be spent in the American market, in competition with domestic buyers, the net result of which will be further price increases all along the line."

On the other hand, Representative Crawford (R., Mich.) said:

"If we are going to aid Europe, let's pay for it. To the extent we cut tax rates, along with an aid program, there will be more inflation."

Mr. Truman twice used his veto power earlier this year to kill the Republican-sponsored four billion dollars-a-year tax cutting bill. The last veto, just before Congress adjourned in the summer, was barely sustained.

To Take Up Co-operatives

Meanwhile, Knutson called the Ways and Means Committee to convene tomorrow for hearings on another highly controversial problem—the taxation of co-operative organizations.

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath issued a statement yesterday saying that "farm co-operatives have been subjected to hostile investigations by Republican leaders designed to cripple their continued efforts to aid the economic position of the hundreds of thousands of farm families who participate in the co-operative marketing and buying program." He added:

"I wish to make it clear that the Democratic party has not modified its support of the organization and development of farm cooperatives. The Democratic party will continue to seek actively in Congress and elsewhere to aid farm co-operatives and to halt the efforts to discredit and destroy these organizations."

Simultaneously, the National Tax Equality Association issued a statement saying "mobilized taxpayers are insisting that Congress apply the tax laws to their co-op competitors."

Hollywood PCA Seeks To End House Probers

Hollywood, Nov. 2 (AP).—Members of the Hollywood Arts, Sciences and Professions Council of the Progressive Citizens of American pledged themselves at a rally tonight to carry on an air mail campaign favoring abolishment of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

They decided to try to have 50,000 air mail letters sent to President Truman asking that he include in his message to the next Congress a request that the committee be dissolved.

Allied and Axis Nations Lost 15 Million Fighting Men borne by the United States, the British Commonwealth, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, China and France and the three major Axis powers, Germany, Italy and Japan. The battle dead gave a partial picture of that cost."

U. S. Lost 295,904 Lives

Losses he summarized as follows:

United States: 295,904 lives, or 1 in every 500 of the 1940 population.

United Kingdom: 305,770 lives, or 1 in every 150 of the population. (These figures comprise military losses of the home islands alone; the entire British Commonwealth's military losses totaled 452,000, or 0.8 per cent of the population of the empire.)

USSR: 7,500,000, or 1 in every 22 of its 1940 population.

France: 200,000, or 1 in every 200 of its 1940 population.

Germany: 2,850,000, or 1 in every 25 of its 1940 population.

Italy: 300,000, or 1 in every 150 of its 1940 population.

China: 2,200,000, or 1 in every 200 of its 1940 population. (This figure does ont include the six years, beginning in 1931, of the "undeclared" Chinese-Japanese hostilities.)

Japan: 1,506,000, from 1937 on, or 1 in every 46 of its 1940 population in the home islands.

New Lesson Learned

One military lesson to be drawn from the war, he stated, "indicated that if war came again, crippling and perhaps decisive blows might be struck in the opening moves." The English Channel, he added, "was not much more of an obstacle to destructive fire power than the Rhine would have been in World War I.

"The seas and polar wastes guarding North America would, in a few years, be not much more of an obstacle to the destructive weapons of the future than was the English Channel in bygone years."

mary and a series of on-again-off-again repercussions.

Unofficial primary returns first showed incumbent Edwin Lynch the winner by two votes; the official count brought a tie-vote; Lynch later was declared the winner when his name was drawn from a hat, and finally, an official recount gave McCandlish the nomination by one vote.

Hugh B. Marsh, candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, John W. Ferguson, candidate for Commissioner of Revenue, and Lewis M. Coyner, candidate for Treasurer, all incumbent Democrats, are unopposed in Fairfax.

Noah L. Dove, Republican, opposes John E. Taylor, Democrat, for sheriff.

For the six-man County Board of Supervisors, Republicans originally had entered three candidates, Lemuel B. Morris, Republican candidate from the Frovidence District, died following a traffic accident last Monday, and in his place the Republicans urged voters to write in the name of Democrat Lisle A. Smith, defeated in the Democratic primary.

Smith has since declared that he is supporting the regular Democratic candidate in the district, G. Wallace Carper.

The two remaining Republican candidates for the Fairfax County board are Joseph F. Clem, opposing incumbent Democrat C. B. Runyon, and Paul E. Rhinehart, jr., opposing Maurice W. Fox, incumbent Democrat, and Paul L. Keller, independent. Unopposed Democratic candidates are D. W. Buckley, E. C. Sheads and Arthur I. Shaffer.

Prince William County

There are only two contests on tomorrow's election ballot in Prince William County, the Twenty-ninth District State Senate race between incumbent Andrew W. Clarke and Republican Thomas C. Graham, and a contest for sheriff.

Sheriff John Kerlin, Democrat, is opposed by Edward Kite Roseberry, independent. The remaining candidates are unopposed, and all are Democrats with the exception of Jack Fick, Republican, supervisor from Dumfries District.

Loudoun County

All candidates for State and county offices are without opposition in Loudoun County.

I. W. Baker, only Republican on the ballot, is unopposed for reelection as supervisor from Lovettsville District.

Heavy Vote Predicted In Arlington Fight

All factions in Arlington predict one of the heaviest votes on record in tomorrow's balloting. The following telephone listings have been announced for Arlington voters desiring transportation to polling places, which will be open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Democrats—Call the following numbers for the respective voting precincts: Ballston, CH. 0579; Clarendon I, OX. 0921; Clarendon II, CH. 6790; Carne, CH. 1030; Arlington, CH. 4944; Rosslyn, OX. 3701; Lyon Park, OW. 7983 or OX. 2458; Cherrydale, CH. 1871; Glencarlyn, GL. 7241; Virginia Highlands, JA. 2111, JA. 1414 or JA. 1947-J; Falls Church, FA. 2200. If these numbers cannot be reached, call Democratic headquarters, OX. 3932.

Republicans — Call Republican headquarters, GL. 7181.

Better Government League—In Arlington Precinct, Fairlington voters call OV. 0367, Green Valley voters, GL. 5607, other voters, OX. 3879 or CH. 7053; in Ballston Precinct, CH. 5742 or CH. 1306; Carne Halls Hill, OW. 5236; Cherrydale, GL. 1773; East Falls Church, GL. 6945; Virginia Highlands, JA. 1417-J.

Note Handed Belgrade on Expulsion

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MRS. ARTHUR M. BRANDEL

Belgrade, Nov. 2 (AP).—United States Ambassador Cavendish Cannon said tonight he had sent the Yugoslav Foreign Ministry a note urging reconsideration of the cases of Mr. and Mrs. Marthur M. Brandel, American correspondents.

A government spokesman said that both Brandel of the New York Times, and his wife of the United Press, were being expelled from Yugoslavia because of their writings. Today he said Mrs. Brandel, who uses the by-line, Mary Lester, might stay. She said, however, she would leave tomorrow with her husband. Mrs. Brandel's father, Joseph Facci, lives in Vienna, Va.

Cannon said his note suggested that the Yugoslavs "re-examine the grounds they have given for their abrupt action with a possible view" toward making it possible for both to remain in Belgrade or "to continue their work here at a later date."

In Same Vein as Talks

Cannon said the note was in the same vein as his talks yesterday with Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Velebit, during which he pointed out that none of the charges was recent nor seemed of sufficient urgency to warrant hasty expulsion. He said he believed the State Department was taking similar action in Washington.

Brandel said he and his wife would board a train tomorrow for Trieste.

Both Cannon and British Ambassador Charles Peake said they and their wives would go to the station to see the Brandels off.

"I specifically want it known that Mrs. Peake and I are going to the station to see our old friends, the Brandels, before they leave," said Peake, whose sister-in-law is leaving on the same train on her way to London.

Original Order Amended

A government spokesman said last night Mrs. Brandel had been asked to leave "simply because she is the wife of the New York Times correspondent." Today he said: "If she wishes to remain in Yugoslavia as the United Press correspondent she may."

Originally the government spokesman said both Mr. and Mrs. Brandel were being expelled because "their writing had not tended to create a better understanding between our two countries." Later he said there was no objection to Mrs. Brandel's writings.

Brandel said he believed the Yugoslavia authorities had overlooked the fact they were expelling two press representatives of Wstern nations and only realized the seriousness of the move after the widespread publicity the action received in the press and radio outside Yugoslavia.

Writing Called Slanderous

Last night a communique said Brandel had been "informed that, because of his slanderous and untrue writing about Yugoslavia, full of intentional falsifications, because of his offensive writing about high state officials, and because of his rude and provocative behavior generally, he has been asked to leave the country immediately."

Brandel said he believed the charges related to a profile of Premier Marshal Tito which he said referred to Tito as a dictator and described him as a lover of pomp.

DeGaullists Not Yet Ready to Take Country's Reins

By Walter Kerr

Paris, Nov. 2.—The political situation in France, which has changed completely since the Polish conference of nine Communist parties led by the Soviet Union, is now building up to a showdown for control of the labor unions.

Today the Communists direct them through majority votes in top committees of the General Federation of Labor (C.G.T.), but the events of recent weeks, particularly of the past week, have aroused the Socialist Party and other non-Communist elements.

On the issue of the cominform the Socialist Party was split into a left and right wing, the former urging moderation in meeting Communist tactics. Now this has passed away. Paul Ramadier is still Premier because Socialists stuck together when he asked the National Assembly for a vote of confidence. Today, in the harshest terms it has ever used, the party newspaper, Le Populaire, brands C.G.T. leadership as part of the Communist Party.

It's One Powerful Weapon

These facts are important for the Communist Party's one powerful weapon is the general strike, and no general strike can be called while the ranks of labor are split as they are today.

It is also known that Gen. Charles de Gaulle's anti-Communist movement, the Rally of the French People, is not ready to take over the leadership of France. It's successes in recent municipal elections cannot be developed in a short period of time.

For these reasons the best-informed observers in France now expect a continuation of the present State of affairs—a government of the center—for some months.

In the meantime, they say, the battle for control of the unions will be fought. Already the C. G. T. has a lot of opposition from Christian Trades Unions and smaller autonomous unions whose only reason for existence is their opposition to Communist control.

Also Calls U. S. the Enemy

Consequently, the Paris branch of the C. G. T. yesterday came out with a resolution which said exactly the same thing—and in almost the same words—as the Communist Party's central committee had said the day before.

The United States was the enemy, it said. France was in danger. Defense committees had to be formed.

pass by. Denouncing the state-

The socialists have not let this ment as a Communist document. it contended it was drawn up by secret meeting. So, the fight is Communist representatives at a developing.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the shopping list France has offered Russia for 1,500,000 tons of Soviet wheat is a selection from a 250 million dollar production schedule of automobiles, trucks, railway equipment, electrical machinery and chemicals.

France wants the Russian bread grains delivered by July in order to tide over the already closely rationed nation until next year's harvest. French officials estimate that the Soviet wheat should cost about $100 a ton, or 150 million dollars for the lot.

U. N. Milk Shipment Arrives for Bulgaria

Sofia, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—The arrival of a 300-ton shipment of condensed milk, lard and cocoa at Burgas, Bulgaria, yesterday marked the beginning of a program of United Nations aid to needy Bulgarian children, Relief Representative Manuel Siegel announced today.

Siegel said the U. N. children's relief organization plans to furnish milk, lard and cocoa to 110,000 young Bulgarians, regardless of race, religion or political beliefs. He said that about $500,000 would be spent on foodstuffs and other aid during the next six months.

Virginia Broiler Market Cut by Poultryless Days

Richmond, Va., Nov. 2 (AP).—Income of Virginia broiler growers was reduced by more than $50,000 in the first two weeks following President Truman's address proposing poultryless Thursdays, according to an estimate by the State Poultry Federation.

Executive Secretary R. Frank Frazier said in an article for the federation magazine, the Virginia Poultryman, that the Government program to reduce poultry consumption, combined with movement to market of large seasonal supplies and top-heavy storage holdings to bring sharp drops in broiler prices.

Broiler prices in the Shenandoah Valley, Frazier said, dropped 1 cent a pound daily for three straight days after the President's October 5 address. The poultryless Thursday program, the article continued, caused many Virginia growers to cancel orders for baby chicks.

of center parties which advocate socialism.

Morgan Phillips, Secretary of the Labor Party, said "in many cases it could be called a 'food and basic petrol' election." This was a reference to the government's new food cuts and its withdrawal—effective the night before the balloting—of the basic gasoline ration for nonessential motoring.

With the 3,000,000 eligible to vote in Scotland's borough elections next Tuesday, those who voted in England and Wales yesterday represent about 50 per cent of the parliamentary electorate. The other 50 per cent live in areas with different voting timetables.

London, which labor has held since 1934, did not vote, nor did many anti-Labor farm areas.

Labor Leaders "Surprised"

Labor had anticipated some losses as a "natural reaction" to the nation's economic crisis, but leaders said privately that the extent surprised them. Labor has been confident because of its record in the 31 parliamentary by-elections held since it took over the government. In these, Labor has lost no seats—a record which the party says has never been equaled by any previous British government.

Cripps Asks More Effort, Less Waste, New Faith

London, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Economics Minister Sir Stafford Cripps appealed to the British people tonight to work harder, waste less and renew their Christian faith to overcome the crisis confronting Britain.

In a broadcast, Cripps said that Britain must produce more to supply essential exports and at the same time provide a surplus for the home market. He suggested a revival of wartime victory gardens to reduce needed food imports.

other design troubles. They included gun mounts and muzzle ports which would not cause drag to the airplane in flight and also a means of disposing of used cartridges from the fast-firing guns while the airplane was traveling at almost sonic speed.)

Re-Supply Is Rapid

The USAF said that in addition to demonstrating firing ability, the tests showed that the P-84 can be resupplied with ammunition and fitted with new guns in less than 30 minutes.

The in-flight firing tests were conducted by First Lieut. William A. Kruge of Indianapolis, jet pilot and armament expert attached to the USAF's air material command at Wright Field, Ohio. Three Republic test pilots assisted him—Carl Bellinger, Jack Bade and Pete Collins.

Air Force officials said today that about 550 more P-84s are on order. A recent order of 15 million dollars was added to a 25 million dollar order placed with Republic in 1946. While there was no announcement of the number of Thunderjets now in use by the Air Force, it disclosed last spring that the first group to be outfitted with P-84s would receive 83 of the airplanes. Two other groups were scheduled at that time for similar outfitting with P-84s.

also asked whether the invasion of Kashmir by Moslem raiders constituted a "violation of international law and an unfriendly act toward a neighbor country."

Nehru's government accepted the provisional accession of Kashmir a week ago and flew troops to help defend the state from the raiders from Pakistan's northwest frontier province. Kashmir has a Hindu leader, but has a predominantly Moslem population.

Units of India's army are fighting beside Kashmir troops against the Moslem invaders. A defense ministry communique said Indian soldiers had engaged the Moslems in the Pattan area between Baramula and Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir, and inflicted casualties and took prisoners.

Photographer Reports 20 Villages Ablaze

Srinagar, Kashmir, Nov. 2 (AP).—Max Desfor, an Associated Press staff photographer, said today he saw more than 20 villages in flames while flying over a section of the Kashmir Valley extending to within about 20 miles of this capital city.

The villages, scattered in an area about 10 miles long and nearly 10 miles wide, apparently had been set afire by Moslem invaders.

Desfor said, however, that he saw no evidence that fighting between the Moslems and the Indian and Kashmir troops defending this princely state had taken on an organized form with clearly defined battle lines. Nor did he observe any columns of troops closing in on Srinagar and its airstrip.

(The Pakistan radio claimed that Moslem patrols penetrated the streets of Srinagar yesterday.

In Pakistan, Desfor said, newspapers carried communiques from a self-styled provisional government in Kashmir. These communiques referred to the Moslems as "our troops" and described the forces defending Srinagar as "the enemy reinforced by Indian troops."

London Probes Death Of Johnny Clare

London, Nov. 2 (AP).—An inquest was ordered today in the death of Mrs. Phyllis Gilmour-Wood, 39, statge and screen actress, known professionally as Johnnie Clare. She was found ill in her Park Lane apartment yesterday and died several hours later in a hospital.

After some success in London musical comedy, Mrs. Gilmour-Wood went to Hollywood in 1930 and for two years appeared in American movies, including "The Prodigal" with Ronald Coleman. Then she became an entertainer in New York night clubs. She returned to Britain in 1933.

Cole Calls Japan Only 'Bright Spot'

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 2 (AP).—Representative W. Sterling Cole (R., N. Y.), nearing the end of a global tour, said he regarded Japan as "the one bright spot in a dark world picture."

Representatives Walter Norblad (R., Oreg.) and Charles R. Clason (R., Mass.) expressed agreement. All are members of the House Armed Services Committee.

They met newsmen here, and then took off for New York in an Air Transport Command plane. The group spent several weeks in the Pacific and stopped at Athens, Rome, Vienna, Munich, Berlin and Frankfurt.

"In Japan, the people have really put their shoulders to the wheel, accepted our guidance, and are now ready to run their own economy without our help as soon as conclusion of a peace treaty permits withdrawal of foreign armed forces," Cole said.

"Everywhere else we find civil strife, economic shortages and everybody looking to the United States for assistance."

Cain Says Communism Has Lost Driver's Seat

Geneva, Nov. 2 (AP).—Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) said today, "Communism has lost the driver's seat in western Europe."

Member of a senatorial committee which toured France, Germany, Austria and Italy, Cain declared "the free forces are making progress."

The committee, headed by Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.) which has made an investigation of the displaced persons problem, will wind up their tour with conferences with international refugee officials in Geneva.

Knowland Sees Turkey Aiding in Food Crisis

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 2 (AP).—Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) said today Turkey could make a major contribution toward relieving the world food crisis if her agricultural program was developed properly.

A touring members of an Appropriations Subcommittee, Knowland made his comment after hearing unofficial reports that the loss of grains in Turkey this year due to lack of storage space and inadequate communications amounted to nearly one third of the 100 million tons President Truman has asked Americans to save for shipment to Europe.

Senator Milton R. Young (D., N. Dak.) said he felt the inefficiency of the Greek government plus the 300-million-dollar American aid program "unwittingly is contributing to communism in Greece."

Italy's Journalists' Strikes Passes 2d Day

Milan, Italy, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Two newspapers were published in Milan today and others appeared at Turin and Genoa, but the rest of northern Italy was without newspapers as the journalists' strike passed its second day.

In Milan, the Catholic Italia and the Monarchist Mattino d'Italia were published. Corriere Della Sera did not bring out its Sunday edition after linotypists and other employes refused to work.

Willis F. Woods Named Aide at Corcoran Gallery

Appointment of Willis F. Woods of 3900 Connecticut ave. nw., as assistant to the director of The Corcoran Gallery of Art has been announced by the gallery's president and trustees.

Woods is a native of Washington and a Western High School graduate. Following graduation from Brown University in 1941, he studied fine arts at the University of Oregon for a year, then entered the Army, serving overseas with the 392d Engineers Regiment.

Following the war, he studied at American University, where he was also manager of the Watkins Memorial Gallery, and later spent a period at the National Gallery as an observer of gallery administration.

Speaking Frankly
By JAMES F.
BYRNES

"The book traces the intricate pattern of our negotiations with Russia and its chief and fascinating interest is as a study of an unending argument between opposites—a kind of anatomy of the political melancholy of the search for peace . . .

"No one who reads this chronicle or who watched the patient and good-tempered maneuvers of Mr. Byrnes at the various conferences through which he struggled can doubt the passionate sincerity of his efforts for agreement . . .

"Perhaps it was not wise for a man who had so much to do with the efforts to make peace even to intimate at this time that a joint settlement may prove impossible. But Mr. Byrnes is indeed speaking frankly. No such candid chronicle has ever been written in the midst of events by one of the chief participants."—N. Y. Times.

cils Director John Brophy, said quick action was necessary if results are to be achieved at the November 17 special session.

"Little time remains," they said, "to guarantee that Congress hears the people's serious demands. If the Congressmen return to Washington with the same blindness for the people's needs that they exhibited earlier this year, the special session will be a failure."

The Agriculture Department, meanwhile, reported last night that favorable weather would mean a large fruit crop in 1948 when demand is expected to continue strong and prices remain generally near 1947 levels.

"Imports of such important fruits as bananas and canned pineapple may reach or exceed prewar levels," the report said. Total supplies of fruits again are expected to be large, and again there may be surpluses of some fruits."

THE POST POLL

D. C. Approves Aid Abroad; Many Willing to Sacrifice

Nearly 8 out of 10 Washingtorians, according to The Washington Post Poll, still feel it is up to the United States to help other countries get back on their feet.

Many residents are prepared to make sacrifices in order to send aid abroad. Sixty-six per cent are willing to do without some of the goods and food they normally would buy in the next few years, and 57 per cent would be willing to ration some things in this country to send them abroad.

Information about the Marshall Plan, in spite of wide discussion in newspapers, magazines and on the radio, still is not widely distributed. Twenty-four per cent say they have never heard of the Marshall Plan, and an additional 20 per cent who recognize the name, spontaneously comment that they know little or nothing about it.

Among those who have heard of the Marshall Plan, 83 per cent favor U. S. aid to other countries, and 50 per cent recommend that the aid consist of reconstruction assistance. On the other hand, only 60 per cent of those totally unfamiliar with the Marshall Plan favor U. S. aid and 22 per cent recommend the type of aid proposed by the Marshall Plan.

These findings of The Washington Post Poll are based on personal interviews with a representative cross-section of adults living in Greater Washington.

Local residents were asked the following question:

"Have you heard of the Marshall Plan?"

Twenty-four per cent said they had never heard of the Marshall Plan; 20 per cent said they had heard about it, but commented spontaneously that they knew little or nothing about it; and 56 per cent stated that they had heard about it.

Comparison of Answers

They were then asked:

"Many countries are having a hard time getting back on their feet after the war. Do you think it is up to the United States to do anything to help them?" (If "yes") what do you think the U. S. should do about it?"

Answers to these questions are compared below with replies to the same questions last summer.

	July 1947	All Groups	Have Heard of Marshall Plan	Haven't heard of Marshall Plan
	October, 1947
Think U. S. should help	77%	77%	83%	60%
Not up to U. S. to help	23	23	17	40
	100%	100%	100%	100%
Among those who think the U. S. should help:
Suggest Reconstruction assistance	26%	43%	50%	22%
Suggest relief only	31	17	15	21
Not sure how to help, no suggestion	6	6	6	7
Suggest either types of help	3	3	2	..
Completely uninformed	3	2	2	3
Say we should help, but have serious objections, or reservations to helping	8	7	3	7
	77%	77%	83%	60%

Although over-all attitudes toward assisting other countries have remained stable, there has been a sharp increase in support for the type of aid recommended by the Marshall Plan. Half of those who are informed about the Marshall Plan voluntarily suggest reconstruction assistance.

Opposition to Plans

Chief opposition to the Marshall Plan comes from the poorly educated, and from those with low incomes, who often feel that poverty in this country should be wiped out before sending aid to Europe.

Support for reconstruction aid to Europe among various educational and income groups is as follows:

	Pct. who recommend reconstruction assistance
Grade school educated	21%
High school educated	38
College educated	62
Annual family incomes:
Under $3000	29%
$3000 to $4999	39
$5000 and over	61

The Washington Post Pollers asked those who think the United States should help other countries get back on their feet:

"If the U. S. did this it might mean that people in this country would have to do without some things. Would you personally be willing to do without some of the goods and food you would normally buy in the next few years to send them abroad?"

	All Groups	Education Grade	Education High	Education College
Willing to do without goods and food to send abroad	66%	45%	66%	78%
U. S. should help, but not willing to do without goods and food to send abroad	11	14	13	8
Total who think U. S. should help	77	62	79	86
(From a previous table.) Not up to U. S. to help	23	38	21	14

Question of Rationing

People who think the United States should help other countries were also asked:

"Would you be willing to ration some things in this country to send them abroad?"

Here are the answers:

	All Groups	Education Grade	Education High	Education College
Willing to ration to send abroad	57%	42%	57%	67%
U. S. should help, but not willing to ration to send abroad	20	20	22	19
Total who think U. S. should help	77%	62%	79%	86%
(From a previous table) Not up to U. S. to help	23%	38%	21%	14%

(Next week The Post Poll will report on what Washingtonians think the consequences will be if the United States does not send more help to Europe.)

priorities insuring production for export of materials needed to maintain and expand foreign production of items critically needed here, such as tin.

He warned that the power to limit imports of fats and oils, rice and rice products and nitrogenous fertilizers must be kept so this country would not absorb "foreign supplies more urgently needed in other countries."

Harriman called finally for continuance of power to control domestic allocation and distribution of tin and tin products, antimony, and cinchona bark, quinine and quinidine.

French Gold Arrives

Meanwhile, it was disclosed by official French sources that an estimated $89,600,000 in gold was brought to the United States Saturday by the cruiser Georges Leygues to be sold for dollars. These officials said the gold bulked about 80 tons and would be sold to the United States Treasury.

Great Britain already has sold about 120 million worth of her gold to this country to support her dollar reserves. Unlike France, however, Britain already has received a 3¾-billion-dollar U. S. loan and recently won permission to waive the original "convertability" clause which required her to exchange her pound sterling for dollars.

In spite of this help, the British now are down to their last 2½-billion in gold and dollar reserves. Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently reported that both were being drained "at a ruinous rate of 70 million dollars a week."

Assembly May Put Off Debate on Veto

Plans to Adjourn November 25 to Be Discussed Today

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—The United Nations Assembly may sidetrack debate on the controversial big power veto in efforts to reach adjournment by November 25, an authoritative source said today.

Assembly President Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil called the Assembly's 14-nation Steering Committee to meet tomorrow to discuss progress and methods of speeding conclusion of the current session. The Assembly has been under way seven weeks and only one major item—establishment of a U. N. border commission in the Balkans—has been cleared.

Such proposals as Secretary of State Marshall's suggestion for a year-around little assembly and the issue of Korean independence still are under discussion in the political committee or its subcommittees.

Follows Marshall Views

It was understood that proposals would be made to the Steering Committee, which determines the Assembly schedule, to put off the veto and several minor items until after the current Assembly session or until the 1948 meeting next fall. Under this plan the veto could be taken up in the "little assembly," should that body finally be established.

Such a step would be in line with Marshall's original comments on the veto in his September policy speech when he suggested that a committee study the problem in the coming year. While he did not specify that this committee should be his projected year-round assembly, American sources speculated that he would agree to such a course, provided the veto issue was formally referred to the interim 57-nation body.

Several delegates here, including British Minister of State Hector McNeil, have reservations to sail on the liner Queen Mary November 26. Adjournment the day before that sailing would mean the Assembly had run 10 weeks. The Council of Foreign Ministers starts sessions in London November 25 on the German peace treaty and some members of the Big Four delegations are hoping to be there shortly after the opening.

Final "Warmonger" Action Due

From the major powers, McNeil and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky are the only major delegates remaining here. Marshall has returned to Washington and France's Foreign Minister Bidault and China's Foreign Minister Wang went home last month. Vishinsky is expected to stop in London for the conference there while McNeil will take over administrative duties to allow his superior, British Foreign Secretary Bevin, to devote full time to the parleys.

Action on Russia's key proposal before the 1947 Assembly—the "warmonger" charges—may be completed tomorrow at a plenary session. The Political Committee killed the original resolution and substituted one requesting member governments "to promote by all means of publicity and propaganda available to them friendly relations among nations" and to encourage "the dissemination of all information designed to give expression to the undoubted desire of all peoples for peace."

As Winter Nears

Crime Up In U. S. Zone, Clay Reports

Berlin, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Crime and gang lawlessness in the American occupation zone of Germany are increasing slightly as winter nears, Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States Military Governor, reported today.

In his semimonthly report, Clay reported that food imports from the United States during the period October 1-17, inclusive, were worth $20,300,000.

On the industrial front, Clay reported that electric power is still below minimum standards because of the drought. However, coal shipments from the Ruhr are increasing and the porcelain industry is flourishing, the military governor reported.

A steady increase in coal dug from Ruhr mines has been registered each week since early October, Clay said. On October 27, a total of 280,924 tons was mined, setting a new record for coal operations since VE-Day.

Maniu's Claim On Moldavia Aid Answered

Bucharest, Romania, Nov. 2 (AP).—Mihai Rominiceau of the opposition National Liberal Party testified today that Dr. Juliu Maniu refused to join with him in an effort to obtain relief for Hungry Moldavia province last winter.

Dr. Maniu, head of the National Peasant Party being tried for treason along with 18 of his associates, testified Friday that former United States Minister Burton Y. Berry told him it was due to Maniu's intervention that President Truman dispatched food allotments to Moldavia last February.

Rominiceanu, the only member of his party to appear in the trial, said Maniu believed joining with the national liberals would not be well received in Washington and would be bad for his party's prestige.

The prosecution had implied that Maniu asked Berry to condition the help on certain obligations on the part of the Communist-led Romanian government.

Agrarian Leader Faces Trial for Opposition

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 2 (AP).—An official announcement said today Trifon Kunev, former opposition Agarian Party member of parliament, will be tried November 14 on charge of inciting formation of a resistance movement against the government and publishing slanderous information.

80 Germans Reported Killed In Soviet-Run Uranium Mine

Berlin, Nov. 2 (AP).—The American-controlled newspaper Neue Zeitung said today 80 German workers were killed October 22 in an accident in the Russian-controlled uranium mine fields in Saxony.

The accident occurred in a shaft about 250 feet deep, the newspaper said. This shaft near the Saxony-Czechoslovak border was so abrupt, the newspaper continued, that the workers could descend only by ladder.

"Safety measures were inadequate," the Neue Zeitung said, "and details about the accident are impossible to obtain because the authorities are seeking by all measures to keep the secret."

The Russians have been reported working the uranium mines in the Erz mountains of southern Saxony at top speed to advance the Soviet Union's atomic research. The city of Aue is near the center of the so-called "forbidden area," where this activity is said to be taking place.

Many Germans arriving in recent months in American-occupied territory have reported that they fled from the Russian zone of Germany to avoid conscription for compulsory labor in the mines.

Award Will Be Discussed

Effects of the recent arbitration award to the Capital Transit Co. and its employes will be discussed in three meetings this week.

At 4 p. m. today, the firm's board of directors will hear a report on the entire arbitration proceedings and may take action to secure rate increases.

The arbitration panel's findings, reached late Thursday night, gave workers a 15-cent hourly pay rise and other benefits. The company estimated the award would cost $2,310,000, of which $1,639,500 would go for direct wage increases. Officials indicated that a fare boost would be needed to pay for the higher wages.

Union meetings to discuss the arbitration board's decision will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. tomorrow at Pythian Temple.

More than 4000 AFL employes of the company will gather to "go over the award," according to W. F. Simms, local union president.

Women Join in War On Burmese Bandits

Rangoon, Nov. 2 (AP).—About 2000 Burmese volunteers, including pistol-waving women, vowed at a rally here today to help in the "total extermination" of bandits and other terrorists preying upon the countryside. The volunteers were uniformed in green.

They will leave this week on the anti-crime campaign, in which government troops already are employed. Thakin Lun Baw, chairman of the public services commission, told the rally the "evildoers must be crushed relentlessly."

Eddy Duchin Married To Mrs. Teresa Winn

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—Eddy Duchin, pianist and band leader, and Mrs. Maria Teresa Winn of London, daughter of a former British diplomat, were married today at the home of Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. W. Averell Harriman. Only relatives and close friends attended the ceremony.

Political Infiltration Holds Spark of Worldwide Conflagration, Byrnes Warns

Fire Set Easily

THE THREAT of political infiltration is especially grave in the countries whose political and economic structures were shattered by the war. Inevitably, it provokes countermeasures in retaliation. A situation can readily develop where all concerned come to believe they are acting in self defense. Soon it becomes possible for a spark to start a fire that may engulf the whole world.

If we are to prevent such a holocaust, not only must we halt acts of aggression, but we must seek to eradicate the causes of those acts. In many countries, as a result of the war, the people are without adequate shelter and without adequate nourishment, and become easy prey to aggressive ideologies which offer them the illusion of escape from the hard realities of their daily existence. If we want these people to value freedom and respect law, we must give them at least the chance to feed, clothe and shelter themselves and their families, and give them the necessary means to keep internal order. We must give them the feeling that they can have an independent life without becoming satellites of Russia, the United States or any other power.

In extending economic aid, we must not seek to control the people of a country, but rather we must seek to make them free. We must have confidence that if we give people the opportunity to be free, they will not wish to be dependent upon us or upon any other power. Where there is no freedom, we must make sure that our economic aid is not turned against us.

We must make it unmistakably plain that we are not competing with the Soviet Union for the control of other states. Rather, we should stress that we would welcome a real and bona fide willingness on the part of the Soviet Union to collaborate in rebuilding and protecting political and economic independence.

Our Efforts Fail

I WOULD not be speaking frankly, however, if I did not repeat that thus far our efforts to collaborate with the Soviet Union have met with little or no success. My efforts in this direction are told in the preceding chapters. And today we have before us Mr. Molotov's rejection of the plans advanced by Mr. Bevin and Mr. Bidault in response to the proposal made by Secretary Marshall on June 5. In his speech at Harvard University, Secretary Marshall called upon European nations to agree on "the requirements of the situation and the part those countries themselves will take in order to give proper effect to whatever action might be undertaken by this Government."

Secretary Marshall did not say the United States would furnish any specified amount to aid the program agreed upon. He said simply that we would support "such a program as far as it may be practical for us to do so." But other officials of the Government have made statements which are quoted abroad, estimating that such a program would cost us from five to six billion dollars a year for four or five years. These estimates were made even before the European governments met, indicating that our officials have some idea of what the over-all program should be. Certainly the estimates have whetted the appetites of many European officials.

I welcome the initiative of Mr. Bevin and Mr. Bidault, but political realities demand that in welcoming this program to advance Europe's economic recovery, we should also express some words of caution. It should be made clear that the United States will determine, in the light of its resources, the amount of aid to be extended, where the money will be spent, and what conditions, if any, will be attached to its expenditure.

Some European governments and peoples do not understand that a member of the executive branch of our Government cannot make a financial commitment until Congress actually appropriates the funds. We should make sure they do not proceed in the belief that any program agreed to by them will automatically be paid for by us. Unless this is done, a subsequent refusal by Congress to provide money for the agreed program will cause misunderstandings and disappointments which will dangerously affect our relations with European states.

Spending Specified

IN CONSIDERING what the Congress may do, we must not overlook what has been done recently. We did not try to extend the life of UNRRA because it was decided that instead of other governments allocating funds appropriated by us for relief, the United States should make the allocation. When the Congress authorized 350 million dollars for relief it did not leave it to the executive department to determine where it should be spent. It specified that 335 million dollars would be available only in Austria, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Poland, Trieste and China, and only 15 million dollars should be available for relief in other states. It also provided for supervision and control of expenditures in every country by missions of American citizens.

And again the recent legislation authorizing 400 million dollars for military and economic aid to Greece and Turkey, which was passed by Congress and approved by the President, provides that the money should be spent under the supervision of an American committee, the chairman of which must be approved by the Senate.

Mr. Molotov's action in late June in refusing to attend the Paris Economic Conference unless he could first know the terms and conditions under which the United States would furnish financial aid, and could receive certain assurances that the sovereignty of states would not be interfered with, was disappointing to all who favor world cooperation. However, I do not agree with some officials and editors who think this refusal is conclusive proof that the Soviets want chaotic conditions to continue in Europe.

Judging by the Soviets' refusal to cooperate in other matters, it is entirely possible that they may not object to a continuance of unrest in Europe. Nevertheless, Mr. Molotov's action in this matter is open to a different interpretation. The invitation of Britain and France placed him in an embarrassing position. The satellite states, like all people in financial distress, must have welcomed the invitation to inform the United States of the financial assistance they needed, particularly when the news reports indicated that the assistance would be a gift instead of a loan. If the Soviets now bring pressure on them not to accept financial help from the United States, the Soviets themselves will have to help the satellites economically, and consequently they will retard their own reconstruction projects.

Russia's Reason

I THINK that Mr. Molotov's refusal to participate is influenced by the same fear that has made him refuse to cooperate in our atomic energy proposal and many other proposals—the fear that they would be forced to agree to inspection by representatives of other governments who could demand the right to freely travel in the Soviet Union.

Mr. Molotov has consistently objected to every proposal that involves inspection by representatives of other powers in areas under Soviet control. Evidently, Molotov now thinks that if we require supervision or inspection in giving economic aid to friendly countries like Greece and Turkey, we shall insist upon similar arrangements in helping other countries. My guess is that the Soviets will continue to refuse to cooperate in the Paris Conference unless they have some assurance that there will be no inspection and supervision in the Soviet Union or in areas under Soviet control by representatives of the United States.

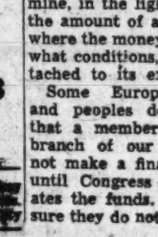
On this July 1 my opinion is that Mr. Molotov, by refusing to cooperate, has, without intending to, settled a difficult problem for the United States Government. Had the Soviets and its satellites attended the Paris Conference, it is fair to assume that Britain and France, who are certain to recommend financial assistance for themselves, would also have recommended that we advance large sums for reconstruction in the Soviet Union and in its satellites. That would have posed for our Congress a question as embarrassing to it as the invitation of Britain and France was to Molotov. The proposal to help all needy European countries was, I assume, submitted to the leaders of both political parties before it was made. But even so, we can only speculate about the action of the Congress under those circumstances.

If Congress required the same supervision of expenditures that is required in the cases of Turkey and Greece and the relief appropriations, the Soviets and the satellites would have refused to accept the assistance. They would have declared that they should have been informed of those conditions when the offer of assistance was made. On the other hand, if Congress was asked to make a large appropriation for the Soviet Union and its satellite states without any supervision, the chances are that Congress would not make the appropriation. By refusing to attend the Paris Conference, Mr. Molotov has saved the Congress this difficult decision. He has assumed the burden of dividing Europe into two economic and political spheres.

This is the last of 20 installments of "Speaking Frankly," by James F. Byrnes, which have been published by this newspaper.

Welcome-Supper To Honor Sasscer Wednesday Night

A welcome-home buffet supper in honor of Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.), who recently returned from a tour of war-torn Europe, will be held at 7 p. m. Wednesday at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.



Sasscer

Among those who have accepted invitations are Senator Herbert R. O'Conor, Representatives Hugh A. Meade and Edward A. Garmatz, both of Maryland; Bertram Boone, Maryland Secretary of State; Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore; and State Senator Joseph R. Byrnes, speaker of the Maryland Senate.

State Senator L. Harold Sothoron of Prince Georges County will be master of ceremonies. The affair is being held under auspices of the Prince Georges County Democratic Caravan Club. Deputy Sheriff R. Earle Sheriff is in charge of arrangements.

If We Want People To Value Freedom . . .

"If we want these people to value freedom and respect law we must give them at least the chance to feed, clothe and shelter themselves and their families, and give them necessary means to keep internal order. We must give them the feeling that they can have an independent life without becoming the satellites of Russia, the United States or any other power."

"He (Molotov) has assumed the burden of dividing Europe into two economic and political spheres." (By rejecting the Marshall Plan)—from today's concluding installment.

District Council

Among the excellent recommendations of the Auchincloss Subcommittee for a new system of home rule in the District of Columbia are a number of novel suggestions that need to be scrutinized. For the report as a whole we have only the highest commendations. The committee released it, however, as a preliminary plan, subject to further study and possible modification. That opens the door for constructive criticism, and we have no doubt that citizen groups will take advantage of this opportunity.

We think that the method suggested for the election of 12 members of the proposed District Council ought to be carefully analyzed. The Auchincloss plan calls for the nomination of candidates for the council by petitions bearing at least 500 signatures. Quite properly, eligibility for such nominations would include three years of residence in the District. The elections would be held so as not to coincide with national elections. That is especially desirable because the local contests would be kept on a nonpartisan basis. We also think it is desirable to have such elections held every two years. Half of the councilmen chosen for four-year terms would be elected at one time, thus giving the council continuity as well as keeping it responsive to the public will.

Our doubts arise as to the desirability of having all members of the council elected at large. The Auchincloss plan provides for four of the 12 members to be nominated and elected at large. Of the eight remaining members, two would have to live in and be nominated from each of the city's four major geographical divisions—the Northwest, Northeast, Southeast and Southwest. Citizens nominated in these respective areas, however, would have to stand election before all the voters of the District. The result might be inadequate representation for minorities. Political corruption often centers in the division of a city into councilman districts, and we appreciate the committee's desire to save the District from troubles of this sort. In devising plans to safeguard against this evil, however, care must be taken to avoid creating a system that might prove to be quite unrepresentative.

Indorsing Peace

Our friends at Lake Success turned up a tour de force of statesmanship recently by finding a formula to which not only the Russian and American delegations but also the whole Political Committee of the United Nations General Assembly could wholeheartedly subscribe. Mr. Vishinsky had been demanding that the United Nations do something to stop the mouths of various prominent persons, all of them, curiously enough, Americans, Turks and Greeks, who, he said, are trying to start another war.

Mr. Vishinsky, in support of his resolution, began identifying the warmongers by name. He opened the list with Messrs. James F. Byrnes and John Foster Dulles and made so many additions to it that it presently began to appear that the only Americans who were not to be accused of warmongering on either a full- or part-time basis were Mr. Henry A. Wallace and Comrade William Z. Foster. All this, quite understandably, made Mr. Austin and the rest of the American delegation rather angry, and the delegations of the lesser powers apprehensive; most of them felt that if there was anybody whose bellicose talk needed to be suppressed by the United Nations it was Mr. Vishinsky.

It appears to have been the Canadian, Mr. J. L. Illsley, who showed the way to do it. In collaboration with the French and Australians, the Canadian delegation submitted a resolution which put the United Nations on record as favoring peace and requesting each member government to do everything possible, "within its constitutional limitations," to promote "friendly relations among nations."

This put Vishinsky in quite a spot. Unless he was willing to put himself and the Soviet Union on record as loving peace above all things, anything further he might have to say about warmongers would lose its point. But if the Canadian-French-Australian resolution were adopted, the question could be considered disposed of, and there was no way Mr. Vishinsky could prevent the political committee from passing on to the next item of its agenda.

Now there probably is no government in history, including that of Genghis Kahn, which has not made public profession of its peaceable purposes. Indeed the more aggressive the intentions of governments, the more ardent their protestations of devotion to the interests of peace. The resolution was, therefore, carried by a vote of 56 to 0, and will doubtless be approved by the General Assembly. We certainly share the hope of Mr. Austin that this vote is "a sign of quite a change in the atmosphere" of international politics; but we cannot say that it is any sign of a change in the nature of politicians.

Impact Of Foreign Aid

The conclusions reached by the President's Council of Economic Advisers in their report on the Impact of Foreign Aid Upon the Domestic Economy have been largely anticipated by the framers of the Krug report on National Resources and Foreign Aid. We are in entire agreement with the council's proposals to reestablish a system of allocations for scarce commodities, retain export controls, assure efficient use of transportation facilities, maintain taxes at present levels, and make aggressive use of the power to control expansion of credit. However, the absence of detailed concrete plans for giving effect to these recommendations is disappointing. The omissions are defended on the ground that the President will present a detailed program to Congress at the opening of the extra session. Presumably the council will help to formulate this program; but meantime the public is given a generalized and rather academic analysis of the past and probable future effects of foreign aid on the national economy.

Despite its shortcomings, the report contributes to clearer thinking on this complex subject by emphasizing the fact that the size of the export surplus rather than the absolute amount of foreign aid is chiefly important in measuring the impact of the foreign-aid program. For it is the excess of goods exported over goods imported that measures the net reduction in the volume of goods available for domestic use resulting from foreign trade transactions. The export excess also indicates the scope of the financing problem arising from the inability of foreign countries to pay for our goods by exporting goods.

During the two years since the end of the war, the United States Government has financed about two thirds of our export surplus, the amount of aid authorized totaling more than 16 billion dollars. Of that sum 12.5 billion dollars had been used by late summer. Notwithstanding the huge size of the export surplus, increases in our productive capacity have enabled Americans to raise their living standards far above prewar levels. The report supplies evidence to show that today our per capita consumption of most important foodstuffs as well as other items is much higher than it was in 1935-39.

Although attributing price increases primarily to the intensity of domestic demand, the council admits that recent sharp increases in grain prices are in large part due to foreign requirements. It emphasizes the findings of the Krug committee that attempts to meet foreign needs for food, steel and a few other key commodities are adding to present inflationary dangers. It is for the purpose of relieving these specific pressures that the council calls for application of the various controls previously enumerated.

After reviewing the resources available to foreign countries for financing their trade deficits with the United States, the council concludes that, in the absence of a foreign-aid program, our export surplus could probably not exceed four to five billion dollars (on an annual basis) by the latter part of 1948. That would be a sharp drop from the 13 billion dollar annual rate of the second quarter of this year and the estimated current rate of 10 billion dollars. It would be a mistake, the report states, "to suppose that we are dependent upon the current size of the export surplus to preserve our prosperity," as European detractors frequently assert. Nevertheless, some support is accorded this view by a warning that such a sharp reduction in the export surplus would "require equally rapid adjustments in the domestic economy if maximum employment and production were to be maintained." Thus it is evident that the United States, as well as foreign countries, would be adversely affected by immediate elimination of foreign aid. Having driven home this point, the council carefully notes that the case for foreign aid is not based on fear of depression at home but on "an enlightened self-interest in peace and prosperity throughout the world."

The section of the report dealing with the fiscal impact of foreign aid is especially worthy of attention because this aspect of the problem has not yet been adequately explored. Contrary to the general impression, we are told that during the past year foreign aid has been financed out of taxes, as shown by the fact that taxes and other revenues have exceeded Federal cash outlays. Assuming, therefore, that national income remains high, we should be able to continue to aid foreign countries without increasing the national debt. Indeed, the council thinks it might be possible to achieve a budget surplus that would permit both financing of new foreign aid and a considerable amount of debt reduction.

These are comforting conclusions; but they rest on the assumption that present tax rates will be maintained. If a tax reduction bill were to be enacted, there would be a different and a sadder sequel. Or if the foreign-aid program should be bungled "so as to create supply shortages at strategic points," the dislocating effects "might carry us to lower levels of employment and production."

U. N. And Korea

Our moral victory over the Soviet Union in establishing a United Nations commission to observe Korean elections is likely to be an empty one. Russia has served notice that she will boycott the commission. Thus the bifurcation of Korea stands. All the commission can do is to certify that elections to be held in the American zone are fair. The principal benefit of this procedure will be to focus world opinion on the Soviet refusal to cooperate with the U. N. Indeed, as we see it, the pressure of such opinion is the only effective tool the U. N. has to work with in Korea.

The objective of American troops in Korea is to implement the pledge of independence which we made to Korea during the war. That independence cannot be attained until there are genuinely free elections throughout Korea and a real Korean government to take over when the troops leave. For us to withdraw and leave nothing but a vacuum to confront the well-organized Communists in the northern zone would be the abnegation of real independence for Korea. It would be in effect to turn over another satellite to the Soviet galaxy. Yet we are faced with a situation in which the Russians have the propaganda cards on their side. In citing our refusal to agree to their proposal to withdraw all troops by January 1, they can pose as the champions of Korean independence. This serves to point up what has been the major defect in our administration, namely, the failure to provide for a strong Korean government on the local and zonal levels, a government strong enough to stand up to its counterpart in the north. We hope that the elections which the U. N. commission is to observe will provide the basis for such a government.

Transit Squeeze

The Capital Transit Co. is squarely between pincers as the result of an arbitration panel's award of wage increases to its employes estimated at $2,310,000. If the company's statistics are accurate, this expenditure will more than nullify the benefits of the fare hike granted last May. Its dilemma is aggravated by the fact that $500,000 of the pay increase is retroactive. In other words, it has been incurring these heavier expenses for four months without having had any chance to effect changes in fares to make allowance for the wage increases just granted. Even if it had the approval of the Public Utilities Commission for such a course, it could not now go back to collect higher fares for that period.

At the same time, this piling up of retroactive expenses must not be regarded as a measure of the fare increase which we assume will probably have to be granted. In our opinion the new rate to be fixed by the PUC ought to reflect the long-range relationship between the cost of transit service and the company's income rather than any temporary pyramiding of expenses. We have no sympathy, therefore, with the 15-cent fare, which it is said the company may propose, and we are certain that the public has not. Such a drastic remedy would be equivalent to fighting inflation with more inflation.

We do not know what the precise answer is in terms of meeting the company's essential requirements for revenue or in terms of popular acceptance, but we do know that the transit company cannot reasonably be expected to maintain service if that service must be subsidized by stockholders. The only alternative to some kind of rate relief is municipal ownership, which is no panacea. The experience of many other cities proves that municipal ownership is no guarantee of efficiency, and it often becomes a political football, with low rates made possible only by fooling the taxpayers.

Friendliness

The appropriate comment, it seems to us, on the award of the Nobel Prize for peace to the Society of Friends is that it has taken the prize committee a good many years to discover such an obvious and appropriate choice. Indeed, Mr. Gunnar Jahn, chairman of the committee, admitted as much when he observed that the reasons for this year's award of the peace prize were so manifest that nothing further need be said about them.

While the prize is to be divided between the American Friends Service Committee and the British Friends Service Council, it is the whole society which is implicitly honored, and quite properly so. No other group in history, religious or secular, has worked as earnestly and tirelessly in the interests of peace as have the Quakers throughout the three centuries of their existence, and few have offered in their personal lives a better demonstration of the possibility of peaceableness among men. Of course the Quakers, being human, have on some rare occasions fallen somewhat short of their own standards of universal benevolence and toleration, as for example in the quarrels resulting from the schism of the followers of Elias Hicks. But even those quarrels were not productive of the fierce and enduring animosities which have grown out of dissensions in other religious bodies.

Nor have the Quakers permitted themselves to be discouraged by the knowledge that the influence of their ethical doctrines and example has not been great enough to prevent a series of great and calamitous wars. With characteristic humility, they have accepted the arduous and costly task of mitigating the grandiose human miseries wrought by war. They have firmly rejected the temptation to combine their humanitarian efforts with propaganda or proselytization, and their simple policy of practical goodness for its own sake has earned them universal gratitude and admiration.

SEA FLIGHT

There was neither end nor beginning as I fell,
Hearing always the long, interminable ringing
Of the sea's bell.
In my downward flight my trailing hands
Lost along the night,
In the realm between the blue valley of air
And the sand below, incredible mockery of snow.
My body was a pearl in the dark shell,
Voyaging along the curve of the great sea's wing,
Moving to the music of the sea's bell.

Thomas Committee

The open letter of Eric Johnston, demanding that Congress reform its investigatory procedure, poses anew a challenge to fair-minded legislators which they have ignored too long.

In 1941, as a member of the House, I criticized the Dies Committee for its high-handed procedure. Despite frequent promises the committee continued on its arbitrary course, blackening reputations and trying to terrorize loyal Americans into abandoning their constitutional right of free expression. Therefore, in 1942, I fought (unsuccessfully) for the abolition of that committee.

Mr. Dies has retired, but the present Un-American Activities Committee chairman, J. P. Thomas, served with him on the old committee. Robert Stripling, chief investigator now, was chief investigator under Dies. Only last winter Mr. Dies frankly admitted that "half the stuff we used, we got illegally." And they used this illegally obtained "evidence" chiefly to persecute decent people. The "hearings" of this committee were, and are, occasions for making unsubstantial libelous accusations under the cloak of congressional immunity.

Shocked by the treatment accorded Dr. Harlow Shapley a year ago by Congressman Rankin of Mississippi (who was sitting as a subcommittee), 69 Massachusetts citizens demanded prompt procedural reform. Their open letter to the Massachusetts delegation was signed by the presidents of Harvard, M. I. T. and six other colleges, and by leading lawyers and industrialists. Nothing happened. Now the committee is once again disgracing the Congress.

It is up to the voters, everywhere, to demand action. There must be enough Congressmen with respect for American institutions to adopt rules for the fair treatment of witnesses before committees. These rules should apply, of course, to all committees. There remains the further question of whether there should be any House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Procedural reform is necessary and possible. But whatever its procedure, a committee which arbitrarily assumes the authority to dictate to free men how they shall think and what they shall say has no valid place in the American scheme of things.

Sales Tax Inequities

Although the sales tax has frequently been termed an inequitable source of revenue, too little space has been devoted to showing why this is so. North Carolina has had a 3 per cent sales tax since 1933, and the unfairness of this plan of taxation is apparent to anyone who watches his pennies.

In the first place, most of us pay more than 3 per cent in tax because of the impossibility of dealing in amounts less than the cent. Thus a purchase of 10 cents is taxed a penny, or 10 per cent. This is a special penalty on the poor, who are forced to buy in small quantities, and on economical shoppers who go from store to store seeking bargains. The maximum tax chargeable, $15, can hardly be said to benefit the lower-income groups, for only the wealthy can afford purchases of over $500.

The sales tax is not paid to the State but to the merchant. The State is dependent upon his honesty for its revenue. Moreover, he is required to turn over only 3 per cent of his gross sales, with deductions for sales on which the tax would amount to more than $15. The surplus which he has accumulated through the overpayment of tax on small purchases remains with him. Retail merchants, particularly dime-store owners, would be expected to be in the forefront of advocates of such a tax.

If the foregoing reasons were not sufficient to condemn the sales tax, its nuisance aspect should turn all of us against it. Certainly, The Washington Post has not given careful consideration to the matter in supporting the sales tax for the District, even as a lesser of evils. One injustice is not remedied by the substitution of a greater inequity.

Humorless Peacemaking

As a peacemaking process, the back-fence invectives and fist-shaking indulged in at the U. N. by our best political orators and those of the USSR, echoed by the chorus of newspaper editorials in both countries, is proving alarmingly ineffective.

One reason may be the complete absence of any humorous touch in the proceedings. It all started at the Paris meeting of the second-line statesmen. There Molotov, Bevin and Byrnes started a competition to prove by the debating school method which was the better defender of the peace.

The peace proceedings a la oratory have wrought our people up to a high pitch of patriotism and militancy. Ostracism is the reward of all who are rash enough to admit something is good in Russia. It is being said a long-bearded man was picked up by the FBI on behalf of a congressional investigating committee for saying, "From Russia I hear Stalin has a good indigestion."

"Ignorance Of History"

In the October 27 issue of The Washington Post there is an editorial entitled "Ignorance of History." This is so fine that I want to give it my undivided commendation.

Near the end of that editorial occurs this sentence in part: "We believe that the comparative neglect of American history by college and university students is largely due to a failure on the part of most instructors to infuse into their teaching the excitement and romance that make the history of the United States, if properly taught, one of the most thrilling chapters of world history."

We agree with that entirely. The history we studied some 60 years ago was the Barnes history. What boy who studied that history did not thrill at the many thrilling incidents told therein? One other point I wish to emphasize, and that is about dates. The history should not be simply names and dates, but the dates of important matters which should be greatly emphasized are necessary to an understanding of the development of history.

To learn simply as a parrot the name Magna Carta, and that it was a great English document, means nothing. However, it does mean something when it is known that on June 15, 1215, the lords and yeomen of England surrounded Charles I and forced him to sign that document, which is, in English, the great charter—the great charter of freedom from kingly intolerance. "Tools Of Foreign Policy"

Your editorial, "Tools of Foreign Policy," of October 29 rightly called for "letting the public know what is happening and why."

A prime example of not informing the public is the lack of estimates of what it will likely cost the United States in various ways during 1948-51 in the event (a) that aid to Europe is insufficient, and (b) that our failure to lend enough soon enough does not result in a shooting war during 1948-51. In the absence of such figures and the logic behind them, the public is permitted to think that we are in the happy position of being free to choose between lending, say, 19 billion dollars, or a smaller figure, or nothing—with no effect whatsoever on our other costs, however we may choose.

Is it not high time that as taxpayers we are told, e. g., "during 1948-51 the defense of the Atlantic approaches, given the continuance of friendly governments in western Europe, will cost about 20 billion dollars; whereas, given France and Italy Communist-dominated, and the United Kingdom somewhat neutralized politically and weak economically, this defense—if we are sensible—will cost approximately 50 billion dollars."

Cause Of Forest Fires

I believe one important cause of the New England fires, which I have not seen mentioned in the papers, is the manner in which extensive lumber operations have been carried on there for many years. There is little or no reforestation, which means that moisture, once retained by the forest, is being drained away. Moreover, the remaining slash is never cleaned out, but lies in the woods to dry out, providing perfect kindling for a stroke of lightning or a careless cigarette.

The expense of carrying on lumber operations in a manner less dangerous to the community should, perhaps, be balanced against the tremendous losses which occur in a tragedy such as this. MARGARET G. WATSON.

Returning The Dead

Your cartoon of October 28, "They Didn't Ask Me, Who Should Get the Trip, Kid," is an insult to the American Gold Star Mothers and to those brave boys who did not return, especially at this time when the parents of these boys are in process of arranging funerals. These boys represent everything fine that we as Americans stand for and whether or not they are brought back to America for final burial has nothing to do with displaced persons in Europe.

Our sons were not asked "Who Should Get the Trip?" when they were sent overseas. In my estimation, this is a cheap way to appeal for European aid.

Theater Hearing Aids

To my knowledge, not a single moving picture house in Washington is equipped to provide facilities whereby its deafened patrons may understand the "talkies." Such a situation seems inexplicable, in an industry which otherwise provides every possible convenience and comfort to its patrons.

This invaluable service is given in one theater which I have attended in Takoma Park, and by several in Arlington, not only free of charge, but with the heartwarming cooperation of the managers, ushers, and even the ticket takers. Why should it be necessary for people living in the Capital to have to commute to outlying districts in order to get this service?

The Running Brooks

THE TIMES OF MELVILLE AND WHITMAN, by Van Wyck Brooks. (Dutton. $5.)

This is another installment of the long, leisurely and kaleidoscopic history of American letters upon which Mr. Brooks has been engaged for the last dozen years or so. It is evidently designed to fill a certain gap between The Flowering of New England and New England: Indian Summer. In a note at the beginning Mr. Brooks expresses a desire that his books be read according to the chronology of their subject rather than in the sequence in which he wrote them. This means, as I gather, that he would prefer the reader not to undertake the present volume until he has read first The World of Washington Irving and then The Flowering of New England. At the same time he makes it plain that the history is not yet completed. I take it that the subsequent volume or volumes will have to do with American writers of the twentieth century, for Mr. Brooks seems to have put himself on his honor not to confuse his reader further by suddenly reverting to the epoch of Increase Mather and Nathaniel Ward.

Mr. Brooks is certainly a man of prodigious industry and reading; but it has sometimes seemed to me that if his erudition were smaller, his readers might learn more and at less fatigue. Not as much of this book is devoted to either Melville or Whitman, as to an interminable pageant of their lesser contemporaries, literary and political, and to descriptions of the volatile intellectual climate and changing social scene. Each paragraph introduces fresh names and allusions, but the characters elbow one another out of the book so rapidly that the reader may wonder why Mr. Brooks bothered to introduce them in the first place. This afflicts a good part of the work with a kind of encyclopaedic tedium which the studied sensuosities of Mr. Brooks' prose manner cannot quite counteract. Some figures of the age, however, are given a more extended attention, for example Bayard Taylor and Bret Harte, each of whom has virtually a whole chapter to himself, Joaquin Miller, Constance Fenimore Woolston, Sidney Lanier, Joel Chandler Harris, George Cable and Mary Murfree, and of course, Mark Twain, who has almost as much interest for Mr. Brooks' as Melville and Whitman together.

I dare say I shall be hanged for the blasphemy, but it appears to me that, as a critic, Mr. Brooks, for all his learning, is rather shallow by comparison to Professor Matthiessen in the case of Melville or to Chesterton in the case of Whitman. Mr. Brooks seems to consider that Melville's preoccupation with metaphysical ideas was his undoing. It caused the withering in him of "the gifts of character, humor, style, even the art of shaping a book or maintaining the unity of mood in a composition. He was an instance of the well-known fact that when artists take to theorizing it is because their creative power is gone, and Melville, great writer though he was, lacked the developing sense of a craft that might have sustained him in the loss of other powers . . . These anomalous spirits, who are sui generis, can break with impunity every rule, and yet when their genius fails them, they are all but helpless, wanting the talent of the craftsman that might carry them on; and for Melville, an unstable writer, always in a sense an amateur, the collapse or frustration of his genius was catastrophic." Now all this strikes me as a rather lame and ambiguous way of saying that Melville was a writer of uneven merits, and that having written one masterpiece he never achieved another. Yet, whatever else it may be, Moby Dick is certainly the product of Melville's preoccupation with the metaphysi- problem of evil. The problem was ultimately resolved in Melville's final story, Billy Budd, in which, however, Mr. Brooks apparently finds only a happy flight from abstractions to the concrete, "the glorification of another common sailor" and a proof that "Melville's imagination had somehow survived the debacle of his earlier years." I half suspect, indeed, that Mr. Brooks' positivistic passion for the concrete and sensate may arise from his own awkwardness and embarrassment in dealing with any general idea.

This doubtless accounts for the clouded and somewhat mystical character of Mr. Brooks' critical excursions. Melville and Whitman, it appears, were different facets of the same democratic genuis, one introverted, brooding and melancholy, the other gregarious, sensual and exuberant. Thus, if I make it out, Moby Dick becomes a sort of deep sea version of Leaves of Grass and the principles of Lincoln are a translation of Leaves of Grass into politics. At any rate, "in all that Lincoln said and wrote, behind it, underneath it, ran the deep river of feeling that ran through Whitman." At various points upstream were Jefferson, Philip Freneau, Robert Fulton, Theodore Parker, William Ellery Channing and Melville himself; much farther downstream, apparently, waited the pantheon of the New Deal; for it appears that "American writers as a class and type were instinctively on the left, politically and had always been so since Thomas Jefferson formulated his American programme, which was something new under the sun." This, I fear, is not very palatable stuff for the reader who prefers to take ideas neat; so that I was no less relieved that Mr. Brooks himself when he abandoned Melville and Whitman entirely for Mark Twain. Here at last he is on the safe and comfortable ground of psychiatry, and can explain in so many words that Twain's was a plain case of ambivalence and schizophrenia.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

An Island Of Courage

VIENNA, NOV. 2.—The heart of Austria is occupied by the Soviets. The leaders of Austria live always in the shadow of danger from an occupying power which includes kidnaping among legitimate political methods. Under the circumstances, it is decidedly impressive to hear these men and women and their supporters boldly comparing the present grim times to the great days 300 years ago, when the Turkish advance into Europe was halted under Vienna's walls. Yet this comparison is a commonplace of political talk here.

To be sure the Austrian leaders of today conspicuously differ in manner and appearance from the Starhembergs and Sobieskis, the princes of the flamboyant past. They are plain men in worn business suits, who look rather incongruous amid the imperial portraits and baroque decorations that the Hapsburgs left behind them. They are also widely assorted. Vice Chancellor Schaerf, for example, is an old-time Socialist who knew Lenin when he crept through the Vienna streets as an exile. The young, tough Foreign Minister Gruber, of the Catholic Peoples Party, made his name in the resistance. Yet they are all entirely united on one point.

These Austrian leaders will not be worn down in their resistance to the long, ruthless Soviet effort to destroy Austria's independence. And despite every kind of inducement, ranging from bribery of special groups to the most violent propaganda, the Austrian people are staying with their leaders. Whereas in Western Europe the Communists command 20 to 30 per cent of the vote in most national elections, only 5 per cent of the Austrians vote Communist at polling places actually watched over by Russian troops.

THERE IS a riddle which demands to be solved. The solution is very simple. The Australians are anti-Communist because they know what it is like to belong to the Soviet sphere. And they are able to continue the struggle for their independence because the United States and the other Western powers also have troops in Austria. Americans, British and French at the control council table in Vienna have almost daily checked the Soviets when they sought too flagrantly to breach their promise of Austrian independence. Both by their presence and in more direct ways, the Americans, British and French—especially the Americans and British—have also encouraged the Austrians to struggle for freedom. The result is the present situation.

For the Austrians, however, the present situation is a cruel stalemate. The Soviets say they will not leave Austria except on terms which will undermine Austria's sovereignty. These terms the Austrians and the Western powers will not accept, yet the occupation is a dead hand on Austria, which will always prevent the revival of normal life.

The Austrians themselves think there is a remote chance that the Soviets will make a bargain at London. If they are right, the Soviets on the one hand will reduce their "German assets" stranglehold on the Austrian economy. On the other hand, the Western powers, and especially America, will have to guarantee the new Austrian long-term economic and political support. Political support will be needed to permit the Austrian government to root out the various political mines and trip ropes which the Soviets have planted here and there.

AS FOR AN ECONOMIC support, something like 600 million dollars will have to be spent on Austrian reconstruction in the next four years, if even a much-weakened Soviet economic stranglehold is to be prevented from closing again. Power development, agriculture and forestry improvement, new industries to replace key plants lost to the Soviets, will all be needed to guarantee Austria's real independence. More probably the Soviets will reject any reasonable bargain at London, then the Austrians will probably ask the Western powers to liquidate military government in their zones, but to leave their troops in Austria as a protection for the state, until the Russians go. They will also ask increased relief and rehabilitation allowances, to help their people through the hard time of the continued resistance. Finally, there is the possibility that the Soviets will go even farther, dividing Austria and refusing to recognize the government's authority in their zone.

But no one likes even to speculate on this possibility. For such drastic Russian action will clearly imply active Russian preparation for early world conflict. All these are sobering thoughts for any American. Austria is one of the key points in the Western world, whether strategically or politically or militarily. Americans have the largest share of responsibility for the degree of Austrian freedom that exists today. As to the future, under each of the alternatives set forth above, America is also destined to play the leading role. The responsibilities of preponderant resources and power can only be shirked at the expense of new and bigger Munichs. That is the Austrian moral.

What Price Security?

By Ernest Lindley

The Case Of 'Mr. Blank'

MR. BERT ANDREWS, chief Washington correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, has published some thought-provoking documentary data concerning a State Department employe who was dismissed in June, 1947, after five years of service in the Government.

He was dismissed "without any statement of charges." He could not find out even the general character of the charge: whether it was suspicion of disloyalty or one of the miscellaneous shortcomings such as a tendency to drink too much or to talk too freely which make an employe a "bad security risk." Two FBI agents, who had trailed him for months without his suspecting it, told him they had evidence that he and his wife had been active Communists in Harlem in 1935. He flatly denied the accusation, pointing out that he had not yet met his wife in 1935 and asserting that he had never been in Harlem except to ride through it on the subway to and from Columbia University. Without knowing what "evidence" the FBI had, he freely swore under oath that he had never been a Communist and had never been affiliated with various other organizations about which they asked him—thus exposing himself to prosecution for perjury if the FBI had proof to the contrary.

AFTER THE FBI questioned him, Mr. Blank went immediately to his superiors in the State Department, to find out what was what, and offered to resign if they felt that any suspicion directed against him—no matter how unjustifiably—would embarrass them or the department. They assured him of their confidence in him. Then, a little later, he was summarily dismissed. Only the FBI and a few top officials in the State Department know why. Mr. Blank could not find out.

He was given an opportunity to appear before a State Department panel, but with notice that nothing he said would cause the State Department to revoke, or suspend, or modify its dismissal notice. This panel was not permitted to disclose, even in the most general way, the nature of the charges against him.

The detailed account of this "hearing," as reported by Mr. Andrews, gives the picture of a sincere man who was nonplussed. The only hints of the charges against him had come from the FBI questioning. Many of the questions had involved such innocent transactions as borrowing some money from a friend for a few days, within the view of an FBI sleuth. He had been questioned at length about his relations with sundry individuals, some of whom had worked in various Government bureaus with him, one of whom he had known simply because they happened to have apartments in the same building and occasionally traveled downtown together.

His writings over many years had been explored—and he apparently was willing to defy anybody to find anything subversive in any of them.

Mr. Blank avowed not only that he was completely loyal to the United States and the American way of life, but that he was completely in sympathy with the foreign policy of the State Department. The record indicates that he was a hard-working man who often returned to his office after dinner.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT, like the War and Navy Departments, should resolve doubtful "security risks" in favor of the Government. Without access to what the FBI reported, there is no way of knowing whether Mr. Blank was a doubtful security risk. He may have been a victim of mistaken identity or of a frame-up. He may have been deemed a bad risk merely because of his Government work or in casual social contacts he innocently came in contact with people who had Communist ties. If the documentary material now made available indicates that the FBI agents in this case were energetic, it also raises questions as to their judgment and discrimination.

The FBI often cannot afford to reveal its best evidence, since to do so might prevent it from obtaining information through the same channels in the future. That is the main reason given for withholding information as to precise charges in such cases as these, and it has a measure of validity.

There is no easy answer, therefore, to the problems highlighted by the case of Mr. Blank. But obviously the procedure under which an innocent man can be ruined, without even knowing with what he is charged, is indefensible.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Loyalty Board Being Set Up

THIS IS the week the all-important loyalty review board will be set up to hear appeals of Federal workers who are accused of disloyalty. Between 15 and 20 members have been selected to serve part time without pay. They are tentatively scheduled to meet with the President late this week.

The board, reportedly, will be in the hands of a group of conservative Republican lawyers. Men of this type will make it up:

Seth W. Richardson, a prominent local lawyer, who was counsel to the congressional committee that investigated Pearl Harbor.

Harry Colmery of Topeka, Kans., a former national commander of the American Legion, and a well-known Midwest attorney.

Wilbur LaRoe, jr., Washington lawyer and national church leader.

Charles Fahy, former Solicitor General and chief legal adviser to the State Department, who recently opened a law office here.

Earl Harrison, a prominent Philadelphia lawyer, who is a former commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and,

Robert Johnson, president of Temple University in Philadelphia.

A chairman of the board hasn't been selected. The Administration offered the post to 72-year-old Kimbrough Stone of Kansas City, who recently retired from the Federal Court of Appeals after a long and distinguished record. Stone is reported to have turned it down. Earlier the chairmanship was offered to John Lord O'Brian, former general counsel of the War Production Board.

The board will fix standards and procedures to be used by Federal agencies in making loyalty inquiries. It also will recommend disposition of cases appealed to it by either the agencies or the accused employes.

Similar boards made up of outstanding local citizens will be set up in the several Civil Service regions that blanket the country.

VA: The President is reported to have a civilian businessman in mind to take over the Veterans Administration when Gen. Omar Bradley returns to active Army duty around the end of this year.

If the report proves to be true, neither Gen. Paul Hawley, VA's medical director, nor Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service Records, — the most talked of possibilities for the VA job—will get it.

The one distinct possibility for the post is now said to be Robert Wood Johnson, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson, the large surgical supply house in New Jersey. Johnson is a veteran and he would be acceptable to the medical profession. The medical services of VA have been built up under the Bradley-Hawley regime. A number of medical people have threatened to resign unless Bradley's successor is acceptable to them.

Johnson was a World War II general. He headed the Smaller War Plants Corporation for a short time. He's the author of a new book on management-labor relations.

PEOPLE: John Hanes, the economy-minded former Treasury Undersecretary, has been asked to join the Hoover Committee to study Government reorganization . . . Lincoln Gordon, the former War Production Board planner, is working on the Marshall Plan. He's on leave from the Harvard Business School . . . Margaret Jaastad is the new personnel officer of Commerce's Office of International Trade.

PERSONAL: Bill Dodderidge, a personal assistant to General Bradley at VA, has resigned to manage radio station WASL at Annapolis . . . George Van de Hoef has joined the Commerce information staff. He was the wartime information chief for the Marine Corps . . . Frank Kimball has joined the Commerce personnel office. He formerly did personnel work at Navy and Federal Housing . . . Brig. General Richard E. Nugent, a former intelligence officer, is the new civilian personnel chief for Air Forces . . . David K. Lasser is working on labor aspects of the Marshall Plan as an adviser to Commerce Secretary Harriman.

JOBS: Air Forces has openings for grade 3 and 4 stenographers. Apply to Room 4-C-235 in The Pentagon.

DRESS: A neat and dressy uniform is being promoted as the answer to the Government Girl's twin problem of high clothing prices and the New Look, long skirts.

But in the first agency where the uniform suggestion was taken seriously the G-Girls polled turned up their collective noses to it. That agency was Civil Aeronautics Administration. Several CAA girls there said a uniform would be the answer to their dress and financial problems.

The CAA suggestion committee took the girls seriously and conducted a public opinion poll of other CAA G-Girls. The vote against it was about 10 to 1.

Now, it seems, a scattering of girls in Army, Navy, and other Federal agencies is trying to promote a similar idea.

7 State Department Workers Refused Reasons for Dismissal employment in the department in matters of security. This determination was based upon evidence which the department is not able to disclose for reasons of national security."

Use New System Now

He conceded that, as the attorneys charged, the seven employes were not dismissed in conformity with procedures later established by the department's Personnel Security Board. However, he added, "that board was set up, its members appointed, and its procedures promulgated subsequent to the dismissals."

His refusal to furnish statements of charges or to permit the employes to resign was based on "the full consideration already given these cases by top officers of the department and the appeal procedure provided by the Civil Service Commission."

In a letter to Secretary of State Marshall October 4, to which Lovett's letter was a reply, the former employes' attorneys said:

"We submit that the procedure followed with respect to these employes is unfair and un-American. On their behalf we have asked that they be permitted to resign without prejudice in order that their economic future would not be jeopardized by the stigma of disloyalty or in the alternative that they be provided with charges and an opportunity to confront their accusers and rebut such charges. This we feel is their fundamental and simple right as American citizens and to deny any or all of them this basic privilege of the Bill of Rights constitutes an unwarranted infringement of such rights.

"In fact, the procedure that has been followed is tragically analagous to the tactics employed in the police states dominated by Communists and Fascists and has no place in the American system where standards of civil liberties, fair play and the inalienable principles of the Bill of Rights are the privileges of the humblest without regard to race, color or creed."

They explained that each client had satisfied them of his loyalty to the United States and the department had failed to furnish any evidence to indicate otherwise.

The seven concerned, the attorneys added, do not desire reinstatement in the State Department but merely to clear their names of a stigma which they feel affects their economic future.

Pravda Hits 'Imperialism'

Moscow, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Pravda, newspaper organ of the Russian Communist Party, noted a similarity today between "American Imperialism" and Hitlerism.

Warming to their work as the annual celebration of the Bolshevik resolution of November 7, 1917 approached, Soviet commentators also made a new attack on American policy in Greece.

In an international review, Pravda said that the Truman plan for aiding Greece and Turkey—and other countries—against Leftist pressure and the Marshall Plan for European recovery involved use of the drive-to-the-East policy — the traditional "drang nacht osten" policy of Adolf Hitler.

Basing its argument on the activities of opposition leader Stanislaw Mikolajczyk who disappeared from Poland and is reported to have fled abroad, Pravda said:

"London and Washington must be very badly off if they have to put their main stake on bankrupts and apostates of the Mikolajczyk in attempts to split Eastern Europe."

The charge that relief supplies sent to Greece were being sent to the black market and that the United States by maintaining "controllers" in every Greek government office and industrial plant was making huge profits was made in the trade union newspaper Trud.

The powerful central committee of the Communist Party, in its slogans for the revolutionary anniversary celebration Friday, emphasizes a mightier Russian army, Slavic friendship and new scientific discoveries.

Forty of the slogans have been published and broadcast by radio.

McGrath Urges U. S. to Fill Immigration Quotas With DPs

By The Associated Press

Senator McGrath (D., R. I.) proposed yesterday that America fill its immigration quotas with displaced persons.

Recently back from Europe, McGrath suggested that a United States commission be named to select refugees "best able to contribute to American life." He said the plan could be kept within present immigration laws, noting that the inflow "dropped to a trickle" during the war.

The Senator, who is also chairman of the Democratic National Committee, predicted the problem would be taken up by Congress early in the regular session which begins in January. He outlined his proposal in a radio interview.

McGrath, who visited 15 centers for displaced persons in Germany, declared the outstanding fact he observed "was their craving for a democratic way of life—a love and yearning for free institutions."

He said that of 900,000 displaced persons in the American and British zones, the majority are racially German, with many others from Poland, Latvia, Lithuania and other countries to which they cannot return.

Religiously, 20 per cent are Jews, nearly all wishing to go to Palestine, he said. The remaining 80 per cent he divided between Roman and Greek Catholics, and Protestants, with Lutherans predominating among the latter. Of this 80 per cent, most "seem to wish to clear out of the Old World, to settle in Australia or in the Western Hemisphere," he said.

McGrath proposed that this country name a displaced persons commission made up of several members of the Senate and the House, the Public Health Department and leaders of industry and labor to set forth conditions for admittance and the types of persons to be chosen.

It could allocate these people to areas where their skills are needed and where they would not crowd the labor market, the Senator said.

Russian Prison, Food Praised by Jap War Captive

Tokyo, Nov. 2 (AP).—A Japanese prisoner of the Russians, brought here as a war trial witness, was quoted by the Tokyo press today as asserting life in a Soviet prison "seems to be better" than that of the average worker in Japan.

The papers all played up the story—but pointed out that the witness was to be returned to a Soviet camp near Moscow.

The prisoner, Rokuzo Takebe, former official in the puppet government of Manchukuo, remains under strict Russian guard. He was permitted the one conference with Japanese reporters.

Takebe said the prison barracks was "a fine, heated modern structure with flush toilets."

Rations, he said, include rice, fish, meat, vegetables, butter, sugar and 20 cigarettes a day.

City Officials' Aid In Housing Asked

By the United Press

President Truman yesterday asked city officials throughout the Nation to make "concrete proposals" for relieving the housing shortage, which he called "foremost among the many pressing problems facing the Nation."

The President sent a letter to 500 mayors and other municipal officials assembled in New Orleans for the 24th annual conference of the American Municipal Association, opening today.

Municipalities Praised

The President said that through the efforts of municipal governments "more houses have been built for veterans, and progress has been made toward finding a solution for the serious lack of rental housing, and increasing the amount of low rent public housing."

He expressed hope that the conference deliberations, representing 9250 city, town and village govednments, would "result in concrete proposals through which the municipalities, in cooperation with the States and Federal Government, can further stimulate the determination of this country to provide decent homes for veterans within their financial means."

Food Conservation Asked

"Another important area of local responsibility," Mr. Truman said, "is the cooperation by farmers, housewives and industry in every community, which is needed if our food conservation program is to save the millions of bushels of grain we must ship to hungry nations overseas."

The President also suggested that the city officials "re-examine the fiscal relationships of the three levels of government, Federal, State and local, with a view toward developing recommendations which should lead to improved utilization of governmental revenues."

Mrs. Belle Warren Ends 30 Years of Navy Service Here

When "Mom" Warren retired from the Navy Department Friday after 30 years of service, Rear Admiral R. C. Glover, USN, presented her with a letter of commendation, and fellow workers gave her $150 in savings bonds.

Mrs. Warren

Mrs. Warren, officially Mrs. Belle K., has served under 13 admirals in the Hydrographic Office since she enlisted as a yeomanette in the Navy in 1917. After the war she returned to the Hydrographic Office as a Civil Service employe, where she was secretary to the chief of the Division of Maritime Security.

Mrs. Warren plans to stay in Washington, where she has lived all of her life.

Cholera Serum Flown to Cairo

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—A four-engined U. S. Army cargo plane, carrying a record load of five and one-quarter tons of cholera vaccine from the Far East to Egypt as a goodwill gift from the United States and the United Nations, landed today in Cairo.

The serum, enough to provide more than two million individual injections, was collected in China by the U.N. world health organization. (BBC, headed by NBC, reported today that Egyptian Health Minister Neguib Iskandar predicted in Alexandria that the approach of cold weather should bring an end to the cholera epidemic within two weeks.)

(The Associated Press said the government had ordered a hospital car attached to every train in upper Egypt as a 39-day-old cholera epidemic spread to six of the eight upper provinces and the national death toll grew to 8000.

Bronze Tablet Honors Man Who Invented Doughnut Hole

Rockport, Me., Nov. 2 (AP).—Sea Capt. Hanson Gregory, who poked the soggy center out of a fried-cake 100 years ago, was commended today to posterity on a bronze tablet as inventor of the hole in the doughnut.

Charles Gregory, a second cousin of the captain, and first selectman Arthur Walker placed the 12-by-14-inch plaque on the seaward wall of the little white Glen Cove house where Gregory said both the mariner and the modern doughnut were born.

The doughnut-hole was inspired, Charles Gregory told about 100 kinfolk, by difficulties Captain Gregory's mother met in producing old-style fried-cakes.

Young Hanson Gregory, he said, saw that the cakes weren't cooking in the middle and with one epic thrust of kitchen fork, he created the life-ring pattern of today's "sinker."

Oil 'Padding' Enters Probe

By the United Press

Chairman Owen Brewster (R., Me.), of the Senate War Investigating Committee, said yesterday that today he would attempt to prove that King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia "padded" his budget as a basis for demanding extra U. S. wartime millions for his support of American oil firms.

In addition, Brewster said he expected to produce confidential oil company cables purporting to show that the American companies tried to claim credit with the king for large Anglo-American financial grants to Saudi Arabia during the war.

Hughes, who was accused by Brewster Saturday of seeking to get the State Department to bring pressure on the committee to suppress the cables, implied that their publication would upset the "delicate situation" in Saudi Arabia.

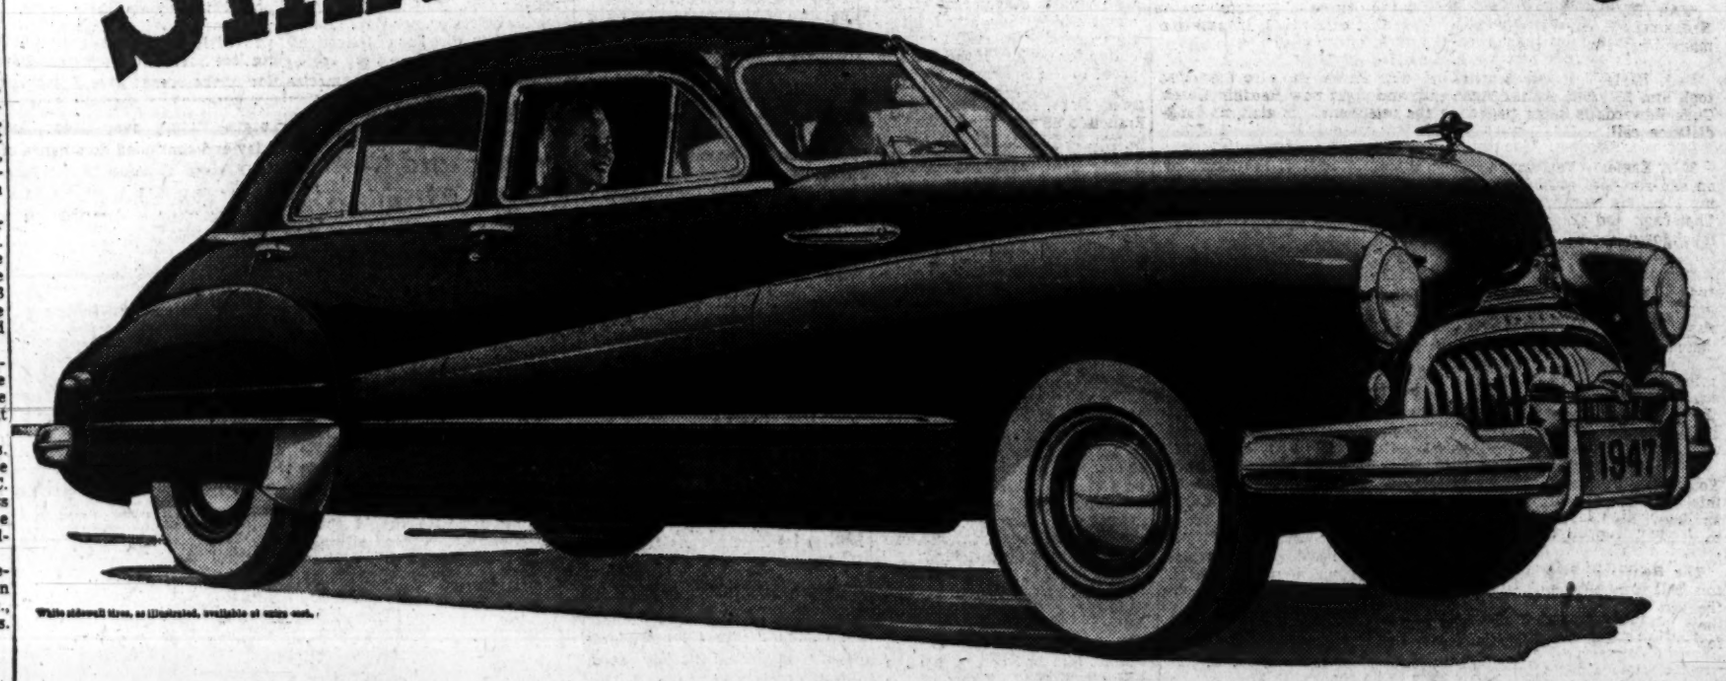
STAR IN ANYONE'S EYES



MAYBE you're a beauty lover with an eye for standout style and the long, sleek, flowing line.

Know anything on the road today that's more the picture of perfect grace—more certainly the forerunner of the coming things in cars?

Or maybe you are strong for action—like the exciting feel of a really able performer, thrilling in its abundance of power, instant and sure in its responses.

Ever sample the wallop in this big Fireball straight-eight—or Buick's swift answer to your wheel hand and your treadle foot?

It could be you like comfort. Broad seats, plenty of room, a soft and gentle ride that asks no favors from the road.

Come see what happens when you get a stout and rugged chassis, easy coil springs on all four wheels, room for three on front seat and back, and low-pressure tires that are like pillows on each wheel.

Or possibly, as a family man, you give more than a thought to the safety of those who ride with you.

You'll find this one starring on that score too—in controls that are firm and sure, bodies that are stout and rugged, even wheel-rims that are extra wide for control in emergencies, stability on curves and a firm, sure grip-on-the-road against sudden stops or skiddy going.

In truth, whatever you put first in an automobile—style, size, room, handling, comfort, controllability—you'll find this one putting stars in your eyes.

A joy to see, a thrill to handle, a dream to drive and ride in, it's America's most wanted car not on one count but on all of them.

Why wait vainly for others to catch up, when an order placed now, with or without a car to trade, makes you certain of getting the latest and choicest thing on the highway?

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

Skins Get Another Going-Over, 38-14, by Eagles

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, Nov. 2.—Out on the field came the Philadelphia Eagles, owned by Alexis Thompson, former captain in the Army Air Force, and the Washington Redskins, owned by that sterling sportsman, George Preston Marshall. In the stands are 36,591 fans with a Dun & Bradstreet rating of at least $3.60.

POVICH

7-0, Eagles, after 1 minute and 42 seconds of play. The way I saw it, the Eagles scored on an intercepted punt, a very fancy trick in pro football.

Baugh punted, or at least that was the idea he had in mind. The punt carried 18 inches on the fly into the stomach of Pete Pihos, who at 220 pounds had a lot of stomach for it, plus a clear field to a touchdown from the Redskins' 26-yard line. He ended up with six points and a tummyache.

It's a perfect day for football, but you could hardly say the Redskins are playing perfect football. Eddie Saenz just fumbled on the Redskins' 33, and after Referee Emil Heintz took soundings at the bottom of the pile-up, Vic Sears of the Eagles was mothering the ball.

TOUCHDOWN, EAGLES. Pete Pihos got into the act again. Catching everything in sight at this point, he takes a 10-yard pass from Tommy Thompson in the end zone after city-slicking Farmer out of his path, and it will be 14-0 as soon as Cliff Patton kicks the extra point.

At this point it's a distinct triumph for the old-fashioned sideline coaching of Greasy Neale of the Eagles over the Marshall plan of second-story coaching by telephone.

The Redskins are on the march. Baugh throws a 41-yard pass to Nussbaumer on the Eagles' 12, and then scampers six yards himself after being trapped on another pass. Baugh knocked down three Eagles and three Redskins on that helter-skelter journey through the line.

THE REDSKINS FAIL to score, and their strategy is open to question as they give up the ball on the Eagles' half-yard line. Line plunger Baugh ordered two futile smashes by Rosato instead of calling his own signal.

14-7. The Redskins shook Nussbaumer loose for 47 yards around end, and Baugh on fourth down pitched a three-yard pass to Saenz in the end zone.

Steve Van Buren vans the ball downfield for the Eagles on his end-running specialty, and Thompson completes a pass to Armstrong on the Redskins' 6-inch line. From that point the Redskins are penalized half the distance to the goal for taking too much time.

VAN BUREN TAKES the second-half kickoff 54 yards to the Redskins' 41, accompanied by a wave of blockers just in case too many Redskins had foolish ideas.

24-7, Eagles. It was touchdown, Van Buren, on a reverse that took him 23 yards around right end, and right now Redskin Coach Turk Edwards is being paged on the telephone. It ain't no long-distance call.

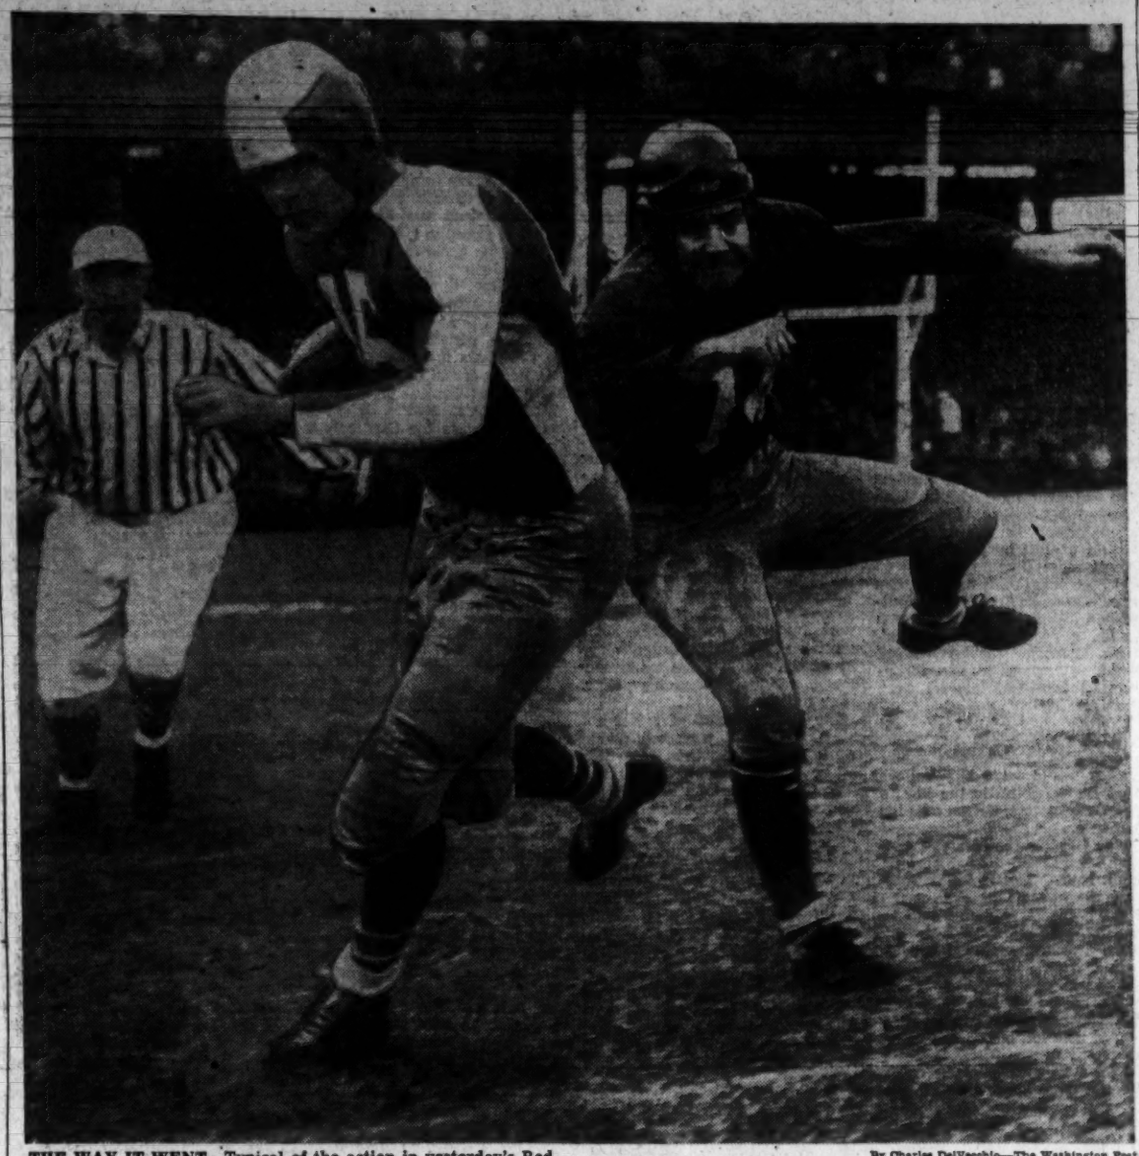
31-7, Eagles. Van Buren's at it again. Mortified, no doubt, by an end run that gained only six yards at right end on the preceding play, big Van tried it all over again on a wide hand-off from Thompson and skedaddled 37 yards around the same end for the touchdown.

Jim Youel is passing for the Redskins now, and it might be added, running for his life from Eagle linemen with violent intentions . . . Fashion might call it the New Look, but what Youel was wearing on that last play was a 600-pound lavalier, formed by three Eagles on his neck.

38-7, EAGLES. CAPT. JIM Ferrante of the Eagles was discovered all alone in the end zone by Tommy Thompson, who flipped him a 42-yard pass for the fifth Philadelphia touchdown as Ferrante hummed "In My Solitude."

A Redskin counter-assault fails when a fourth-down pass by Youel is grounded in the end zone and bounces over the fence into the laps of the bleacher fans. Head linesman Charley Berry, an American League umpire when not otherwise employed, starts to call it a ground-rules two-bagger from force of habit.

The Redskins need five touchdowns quickly if they are to win this ball game, which is a large order considering they don't have the ball and only two seconds of the game remaining. As far as their Eastern Division title hopes are concerned, the season closed for the Redskins today.



THE WAY IT WENT—Typical of the action in yesterday's Redskin-Eagle game at Griffith Stadium is this third-quarter shot of Steve Van Buren, Philadelphia ground hog, getting an elbow tackle from the Redskins' Tom Farmer. Stompin' Steve is picking up 9 yards and a first down during a period in which he scored two touchdowns, one on a 23-yard reverse and another on a 37-yard trip around end. The Skins got kicked again, 38-14

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

Van Buren, Pihos Each Score 2 Touchdowns

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The Washington Redskins took a big step toward their worst season in history yesterday as 36,591 fans, the exact number that saw them shelled by the Chicago Bears a week before, witnessed a 38-14 beating by the Philadelphia Eagles at Griffith Stadium.

The Redskins were beaten from the first two minutes on. They absorbed their fourth kicking-around in six games this year by allowing the Eagles at least three points in every period. Meanwhile they had to settle for one touchdown late in the first period and a second with six minutes of the final quarter remaining.

Washington kept its third-place standing in the Eastern Division, National Football League race, but only because the teams below also lost. Philadelphia remained in second and the Pittsburgh Steelers, 18-17 victor over Green Bay, stayed at the top.

Mostly it was a case of too much Pete Pihos and Steve Van Buren for the Redskins. There were a few other prime annoyances such as Tommy Thompson, passing wizard; Cliff Patton, place-kicking expert; runners like Bosh Pritchard; and ends like Neil Armstrong and Jack Ferrante.

Pihos, Van Buren Score Two

But Pihos and Van Buren were enough. They each scored twice. Ferrente hung up the fifth touchdown with a 42-yard pass from Thompson and Patton completed the scoring with five extra points and a second-quarter field goal from 17 yards out.

What little glory Washington could scrape together belonged for the most part to Nussbaumer, who did everything except score. That, as infrequent as it was, came on Sammy Baugh's 3-yard toss to Eddie Saenz on the last play of the first period, and Jimmy Youel's quarterback sneak for the same distance as time ran out.

Between those scores the Redskins made only three threats that amounted to much. They got within about 2 inches of the Eagle goal midway of the first period but ran out of downs. In the fourth they reached the 19 and the 27, both times against Philadelphia reserves.

Sudden was hardly the word for Philadelphia's first scoring effort. The Redskins were trying to get rid of the ball after their onslaught with the opening kickoff amassed all of three yards, but they had no desire to lose the ball as fast as they did.

Baugh was behind his own 36 for a fourth-down punt when 220-pound Pihos blasted into the proceedings. Baugh's kick travelled about 6 inches into Pihos' ample midsection and stayed there. It stayed there while the big end rolled 26 yards into the end zone without a hand being laid on him. The break came after only 1 minute and 42 seconds of play.

Pihos Scores Again

Less than five minutes later it was 14-0, largely because Saenz fumbled after three plays with the next kickoff. Vic Sears was on the ball, but literally, and it took the Eagles just six plays to cover 33½ yards. The biggest chunk of land was bridged by Thompson's heave to Armstrong, and that worthy's lateral to Steele. It went for 21 yards down to the Redskin 10.

After two line plays Thompson again took to the air. His target was Pihos, who had nicely sneaked behind Farmer and was as free as air in the end zone.

Skins Flash Form

Washington looked like a million after Saenz took the following kickoff on the goal and whipped to the 23. Two Baugh passes to Joe Duckworth and another to Nussbaumer were good for three first downs and the Redskins were on Philadelphia's 12.

Saenz picked up a yard through the center, Baugh added 5 more as he was trapped and fought his way through the middle. Sal Rosato had two chances from the 6, but the second fell short by a hair's

Worsham Clinches Cup for U. S.

By Russ Newland

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 2 (AP).—America successfully defended its right to the Ryder Cup when it defeated Britain, 11 points to 1, in the most devastating rout in the history of the international golfing event between professionals of the two nations.

The Americans, clearly superior from start to finish of the two-day links duel, made a grand slam of yesterday's Scotch foursomes, winning four points then, and followed the onslaught by taking seven of the eight tallies in today's singles.

United States Open Titleholder Lew Worsham clinched the victory when he defeated James Adams of Scotland, 3 and 2, the third straight win of the day for the cup defenders.

Worsham had a battle on his hands for 27 holes, maintaining a 1 up lead at that stage as he had at the eighteenth. He won the twenty-eighth with a birdie 4 and made it 3 up on the thirty-first, where Adams went a stroke over par. The rest of the holes were halved.

The American finished even par for 34 holes and Adams, two over.

Afternoon card:

Adams out	544	354	334—34
Worsham out	444	344	435—33
(Adams, 1 up.)
Adams in	543	548	4
Worsham in	443	446	4
(Adams, 3 and 2.)

Mild-mannered Sam King was the lone hero in Britain's golfing debacle. He defeated Herman Keiser, 4 and 3, the latter an alternate who did not play in the opening round and replaced team Captain Ben Hogan in the finale.

Rain pelted the players both days and the course was soggy and slow.

Probably the gloomiest man was Britain's team captain, Henry Cotton. His hopes to recover the cup were dashed by tremendous personal defeats, the 10 and 9 trouncing he and his partner, Arthur Lees took in yesterday's Scotch foursome from United States Open Champion Lew Worsham and Ed Oliver, and the beating handed him today, He bowed, 5 and 4, to Sam Snead, winner of the 1946 British Open Title.

For the Americans, Captain Hogan smilingly accepted possession of the handsome golf cup and said:

"When the British win the Ryder Cup, the King of England keeps it in Buckingham Palace. I'm going to take it home with me."

The series now stands at five Ryder Cup wins for America and two for Britain. Competition was resumed this year for the first time since 1937, when the United States won in England.

The American team went into the wind-up with E. J. Harrison's 5-and-4 victory over Britain's Fred Daly to give the United States 5 of the possible 12 points. A few minutes later Lloyd Mangrum tied the matches and assured the Americans retaining the golf cup by his smashing 6-and-5 win over Max Faulkner. It gave the United States a sixth point.

Ed Oliver won from Charles Ward, 4 and 3, to increase his team's points to eight.

Sam Snead continued the rout when he trounced Britain's captain, Henry Cotton, 3 and 4, in the main attraction of the day.

Former National Open and professional champion Byron Nelson, out of retirement to help his country defend the cup, came through nicely with a 2 and 1 win over Art Lees in a well-played match.

Albert Paces 49ers Over Dons, 26 to 16

Los Angeles, Nov. 2 (AP).—Frankie Albert's sharpshooting—good for four touchdowns—was entirely too much for the Los Angeles Dons today and the San Francisco 49'ers rolled to a 26-16 victory before 53,726 All-America football conference fans in Memorial Coliseum.

Albert, mixing his pitches nicely with a high-geared running attack featuring Norm Standlee and Johnny Strzykalski, passed for a touchdown in each period. In order, he hit Nick Susoeff for 11, Strzykalski for 27, Ned Mathews for 15, and Alyn Beals for 38 yards.

The Dons scored 10 points in the second quarter as Charley O'Rourke passed five yards to Bert Piggott for a touchdown, and Ben Agajanian followed his conversion with a tremendous 51-yard field goal. O'Rourke's 10-yard toss to Bob Kelly brought the Dons final touchdown just before the final gun sounded.

Albert, the superb field general, early found a weakness in the Dons' pass defense behind their right flank and hit it all afternoon. His pitch to Susoeff culminated an 80-yard march in 19 plays the first time the 49'ers got the ball in the first period.

Rain Postpones Man O'War Rites

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 2 (U.P.).—A cold rain today forced postponement of Man O'War's funeral from tomorrow until 2 p. m. Tuesday after the greatest horse in turf history had been embalmed.

Big Red died at the age of 30 of a heart attack in his stall here Saturday. The rain today made grave digging impossible, and Pat O'Neill, manager of Samuel B. Riddle's Faraway Farm where Man O'War spent his declining years, announced the change. The funeral will be open to the public.

St. Louis Bows To Nevada, 27-21

St. Louis, Nov. 2 (AP).—St. Louis University Billikens put up a tough fight but they were nosed out by the University of Nevada football team, 27-21, before 10,136 fans today.

The score showed more St. Louis effort than did the statistics where the Westerners picked up 327 yards, rushing to 71 for the Billikens. The Bills made 100 yards by passing, nine more than Nevada did.

Lions Beaten At Buffalo, 7-3

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 2.—The Washington Lions were defeated by Buffalo, 7-3, here tonight in an American League Hockey game.

A five-goal first period gave Buffalo a margin it never lost as the Lions could get only a single goal in the first period and two more in the third.

Scores Three Touchdowns

Spec Sanders on Rampage As Yankees Stop Colts, 35-21

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—New York and Baltimore exchanged scoring explosives today, with the Yankees carrying the more spectacular blasts and defeating the Colts, 35-21, in a game that lifted the victors far out in front in their drive for the Eastern title in the All-America Football Conference.

Bruce Alford grabbed the opening kickoff and lugged it back 82 yards for the Yanks' first touchdown and the scoring pace never lessened. Before the 21,714 spectators were back in their seats Spec Sanders, Yankee ground gaining king, had split the Colt line for 57 yards and then blasted over from the three for the second tally.

In all, Sanders carried the ball 14 times and added 140 yards to his season's total.

Just when the game took on the appearance of a rout, Bud Schwenk took charge of the Baltimore passing and in four plays the conference's newest member had traveled 67 yards for its touchdown, the score coming on a toss to Bill Hillenbrand.

Immediately after the intermission the Yankees were off once more. The Colts punted to Sanders and he returned it 44 yards. He finally crashed over from the 8, and Baltimore retaliated with a 71-yard scoring pass from Schwenk to John Vardian.

Sanders opened the fourth period by going 56 yards from the first scrimmage play for another touchdown and a little later Buddy Young tiptoed 53 yards with a

Grimes and Cloud Tie for Virginia Scoring Honors

Richmond, Va., Nov. 2 (AP).—The State collegiate individual football point-making race today was locked in a two-way deadlock between players of two elevens who don't meet on the gridiron this season, the University of Virginia's George Grimes, a point-kicking halfback from Tazewell, and William and Mary's Jack Cloud, All-Southern Conference fullback from Norfolk.

Grimes, who had tallied four touchdowns and made 24 extra points, and Cloud, who had eight touchdowns, each had accounted for a total of 48 points.

Trailing them by only six points was Grover Jones, Virginia's hard-hitting fullback from Wilmington, Del. Jones had pushed over seven touchdowns.

Two players, Randolph-Macon's Roger Dughi and Virginia Tech's Ray Beasley, were tied for fourth place with 36 points each. Twelve of Dughi's points were accounted for on successful points - after - touchdowns, all placements.

Boston Leads Most of Way

Luckman Tosses 4 Scoring Passes as Bears Win 28-24

Boston, Nov. 2 (AP).—Sid Luckman tossed four touchdown passes, three of them to lanky Ken Kavanaugh, to pull his Chicago Bears into a 28-24 National Football League victory over the Boston Yanks today before a 24,894 crowd at Fenway Park.

While leading 21-14 in the third period the Yanks lost the ball twice inside the Bears' 5-yard line.

While extending his six game total to 15 touchdown passes, the rifling Luckman completed a 19-yard scorer to little Ray McLean, the 32-year-old greater Boston-bred scatback, and payoff heaves of 22, seven and 35 yards respectively to the crack-fielding Kavanaugh.

The 30-year-old Columbia-trained sharpshooter, who completed 23 of his 46 aerial attempts for 278 yards, put the Bears into a lead by reaching McLean with the sixth of his seven first period passes.

That success inspired the steadily improving Yanks, who got a terrific lift when Frank Seno scored early in the second session by running back a mighty George Gulyanics' punt for 86 yards. Then Luckman took over again and ended an 80-yard aerial thrust with his No. 1 scoring effort to Kavanaugh.

The Yanks stormed right back on a 72-yard drive but a 22-yard scoring pass from Boley Dancewicz to Don Currivan was nullified by an offside Yank. Just as the half ended, however, the even more aroused home forces marched from midfield and Bill Paschal bucked over from the 8-yard line. Monk Maznicki then booted the Yanks into a 14-14 tie.

Early in the third quarter Maznicki grabbed a Don Kindt fumble and charged 35 yards for a Boston touchdown.

Just as the finale got underway, Nick Scollard put the Yanks into what appeared to be a safe 24-14 lead by place-kicking a 38-yard field goal. But that defiant gesture was merely a brazen challenge to Luckman and Kavanaugh, who combined for Chicago's last two touchdowns during the fifth and ninth minutes of the last session.

Packers Drop Tough One to Steelers, 18-17

Milwaukee, Nov. 2 (AP).—Crashing line play and alert capitalization of the breaks gave Pittsburgh a thrilling 18-17 National Football League victory over Green Bay today and continued dominance of the Eastern Division of the loop.

A crowd of 30,073 saw the Packers tumbled from co-leadership of the Western section.

The Steelers' aggressive forwards, paving the way for a powerful running and passing attack, actually provided the victory margin in the final quarter when Tackle Ralph Calcagni trapped Jack Jacobs in the end zone for a safety and two points.

And, later in the period after the Packerss had counted their final touchdown to pull within a point, three Pittsburgh linemen roared into the Green Bay backfield to again trap Jacobs trying to pass on fourth down to put a definite halt to a scoring threat.

Johnny Clement and Steve Lach, as expected, were the big guns in Dr. Jock Sutherland's power-packed single wing offensive, but Tony Compagno, a substitute halfback, provided the longest run of the game. Compagno intercepted a pass by Irv Comp with seven minutes to play in the third period and went 55 yards to score and put Pittsburgh into the lead for the first time.

The Packers stepped off to what looked like an easy conquest, scoring the first time they had the ball. After two running plays lost six yards, Jacobs passed 17 yards to Clyde Goodnight who went 52 yards to score. Ward Cuff added the first of two extra points.

A few minutes later, the second time they had the ball, the Packers scored again, this time on a 16-yard field goal by Cuff after a 45-yard march stalled near pay-dirt.

The Steelers, forced to punt afer the opening kickoff, received again after the Packer touchdown and drove down field to the 23. The march stopped, but Joe Glamp booted a field goal and it was 10-3 at the end of the quarter.

Midfield battling marked most of the second period. With only two minutes to go Pittsburgh landed the ball on the Packer 36 on a Jacobs' punt. Clement started passing to Val Jansante, a great end. A 12-yard pass moved the ball to the 24, then Clement lost 13 when trapped behind the line. Another pass clicked to Jansante, all alone in the end zone. Glamp

Southeast A. C. Scores on Last Play to Beat Merchants, 7-0

Southeast A. C. football team remained in the running for the Metropolitan League's 160-pound Eastern Division championship yesterday, putting over a touchdown on the last play of the game to upset Southwest Merchants, Western Division leaders, on the East Ellipse, 7-0.

Southeast closed its season with its sixth victory against one defeat when Phil Cocimano broke through in the last second to block Southwest's kick from its own goal line, and recovered in the end zone.

Arrow Linen, the 160-pound Eastern Division leader, retained its edge by accounting for its fifth victory against one tie by beating the Maryland Mohawks at Fletcher field, 13-0. The Arrowmen can take the title if they turn back Riverside Rollers at Hearst Playground next Sunday.

Anacostia Eagles clinched the unlimited League's Western Division championship by rolling up its fifth win against one tie against Eig's Liquors at Third and Sheridan, 6-0.

Potomac Post No. 40 tallied in the last three minutes to surprise Mount Rainier Merchants at Edgewood, 7-6. Jack Fletcher put over a first quarter touchdown for Mount Rainier, but missed the point. Don La Dane started Potomac rolling when he passed 49 yards to Harry Walker from the 50-yard stripe, and Sonny Bisset plunged over. La Dane then added the point.

In other unlimited games Snug Harbor Tavern shaded Prince Georges Merchants at Snug Harbor, Md., 8-7, and Falls Church Garage routed Arlington Merchants at Falls Church, Va., 26-0.

Brookfield-Woodridge Merchants won a hard-fought 160-pound game from Anacostia Lions at Turkey Thicket, 12-6.

Record Set On 99-Yard Pass Play

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 2 (AP).—Otto Graham threw three touchdown passes today, one a 99-yard gainer to Mac Speedie for an All America Conference record, as the champion Cleveland Browns whipped the Buffalo Bills 28-7 before a record Buffalo football crowd of 43,167.

Graham staged a dazzling aerial show, completing 13 of 16 passes for 256 yards. His record for the last two games now is 32 completions in 40 attempts.

The Browns, Western Division leaders, lost little time in rushing across the first touchdown on the Bills, who are engaged in a fight with the New York Yankees for the top spot in the Eastern sector.

Browns Score on March

Cleveland scored on an 82-yard, nine-play march after receiving the kickoff. Special Delivery Jones cut off tackle from the 12 for the touchdown, and Lou Groza kicked the first of his four conversions.

The Browns went 78 yards for their next score, in the second quarter. A touchdown pass to Motley from the 12 was nullified by an offside penalty, but on the next play Graham pitched to Dante Lavelli, who made a diving catch on the goal line and fell across.

Ratterman Tosses Score

Graham then crossed up the Bills' defense. Standing in the end zone, he threw a short pass to Speedie, who sped down the line as blockers shook him free. Buckeyes Hirsch took a desperate dive at him on the Buffalo 47, but missed.

Chet Mutryn's 28-yard return of Horace Gillom's 58-yard punt set up Buffalo's score in the last quarter, Ratterman passing 11 yards to Baldwin for the touchdown. Graham Armstrong kicked the point.

'Boys Were Up'

Terp Victory Even Brings Joy to Tatum

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

"MARYLAND, MY MARYLAND" was more than just a song out at College Park yesterday. It was an expression of articulate pride manifested everywhere football fans gathered to celebrate the Terrapins' surprising 27-0 thumping of West Virginia Saturday.

Removed from the scenes of hilarity, but just as joyous as the most avid follower of his football team was Terp Grid Chief Jim Tatum. He marked the occasion by huddling with two of his assistants to begin preparations for Saturday's invasion of Pittsburgh where the Terps meet Duquesne.

"The boys were up for this one," Tatum said. "They just outplayed West Virginia. Turyn called a great one at quarterback, Gambino was terrific and our line backers, Brasher, Kinney, Rowland and Schwarz, were outstanding."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH HIS SCORING record of 11 touchdowns in five games would have one believe that Lu Gambino is the key to the Terp success, Tatum says it's not true.

"I don't like the idea of a one-man team and this Maryland club isn't. My last three T-formation teams have seen the right halfback lead the club in scoring. And I can't fully explain it because the left-halfback has virtually the same assignments.

"I'm not trying to take any credit away from Gambino. He's helped us a lot, but so has every other boy on the team. I guess I'd have to say team spirit is as much responsible for our success as anything else. I've never coached a more spirited bunch of boys."

Gambino was really a hot article Saturday. He ran better than at any time this year and did it in the face of a stacked defense. The Mountaineers shifted their three linebackers to Gambino's side, but even this added precaution didn't prevent the Chicago speedster from roaming almost at will.

Tatum feels that his club can take Duquesne in tow, but does not want the boys to become too confident.

"But I guess they've got room to feel a little proud of their achievement Saturday," he said. "I didn't believe we could whip West Virginia, but the team did. And they did a pretty good job of it."

Lions Down Giants, 35-7, In Air Duel

Detroit, Nov. 2 (AP).—Scoring three times through the air and setting up two other touchdowns with passes, the Detroit Lions whipped the New York Giants, 35 to 7, here today in the National Football League's East vs. West "basement" battle.

It was the Lion's third victory in two seasons and their widest margin of triumph since they smothered the Boston Yanks, 38-7, three years ago.

Rookie Clyde Leforce, Detroit's former Tulsa University ace, threw two touchdown passes, one of them to Joe Marguccl on a play covering 79 yards and the other to End Cecil Souders for 21 yards.

Governali Pitches "Strike"

The veteran Leroy Zimmerman pitched to Bill Dudley in the end zone for Detroit's other aerial score fro mthe 1 and both Marguccl and Dudley counted once on ground thrusts. Zimmerman booted all five of Detroit's points after touchdown.

The Giants scored with just six minutes left, Paul Governali pitching to George Cheverko from the 20 for the touchdown after Halfback Gene Roberts had set it up with a 39-yard run. Ken Strong converted.

A crowd of 28,812 fans watched the Lions hand New York its worst licking to sink the Giants deeper into the Eastern Division cellar.

Paul Tosses 44 Passes

And it would have been worse if officials hadn't detected clipping when Dudley intercepted one of Governali's passes on the 10 in the second period, raced to midfield and lateralled to Leforce, who went the rest of the way to complete a 90-yard dash.

St. John's, Central Top High Slate

St. John's undefeated and untied Cadets face their biggest test of the season Friday when they collide with the strong Central Vikings at Griffith Stadium in this week's schoolboy football feature.

With the Catholic U.-Randolph-Macon game Saturday the week-end's only home collegiate contest, the Cadet-Viking game may draw close to 15,000 fans, the biggest high school crowd to see a game here this season.

The Cadets carry a six-game winning streak into the Central game, but they'll be slight underdogs. The Vikings, who have had a tougher slate of opponents, have a five-game streak, the only defeat being a 20-14 setback at the hands of Granby High of Norfolk, Virginia's championship team, in the opening game.

Three Friday interhigh games are also on the 20-game weekend slate, with the battle for third, fourth and fifth place taking the spotlight. Third-place Eastern, with at 3-2 record, is host to Anacostia, which with a 2-2 record, is tied for fourth with Calvin Coolidge. The defending champion Coolidge team, meanwhile, takes on sixth-place Western at Western. The other league game pits Roosevelt and Wilson, tied for last place, at Wilson.

The Coolidge-Western and Anacostia-Eastern games are very important to the participating teams. The losers will be knocked out of all chance to gain a playoff berth, first or second place. Central and McKinley Tech, unbeaten in five interhigh games, have two more league games to play.

Baltimore, Nov. 2—Two Washingtonians, Lindsay Stott with 805, and Cletus Pannell, with 783, finished in the money in today's Stoneleigh Open Duckpin Tournament at the Stoneleigh alleys.

Stott took third money, $50, and Pannell took fourth, $35, in the six-game tourney. Winner was Baltimore's Nova Hamilton, whose 832 score netted him $150. Hal Tuck of Baltimore was second with 812, and earned $100.

Charles-Randolph Top Week's Boxing Bouts

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—Plenty of fights are on the week's national program but few name boxers.

The only ranking contender down for work this week is Ezzard Charles, light heavyweight challenger from Cincinnati. Charles faces Teddy Randolph of New York at Buffalo Monday in a ten.

breadth of getting to the final white line.

Philadelphia tried only one running play, then kicked out on the 'Skin 47, and the Redskins roared. Nussbaumer slanted around left end on the first play from scrimmage. Lindskog had him once but the former Michigan lightweight tore away and before Pritchard brought him down he'd galloped 47 yards.

Saenz, Rosato and Farmer attempted line bucks in that order but got only 3 yards. The last three, on fourth down, was the Baugh-to-Saenz aerial that Pritchard, as defender, was a little late observing.

At least the Redskins could claim a thrilling stand in the second quarter. They weren't holding anybody as the Eagles romped in a series of four first downs from their own 37 to a yard away from the Redskin end zone.

Van Buren ran the end and Tmopson spelled him with a 12-yard pass, to Armstrong, saved from being a touchdown by Dick Todd's desperate tackle on the 1.

Thompson sneaked to within a couple of inches of pay territory before one of the shortest penalties in history was called on the Redskins.

They lost half the distance to the goal (about 1 1/16th inches) when Ki Aldrich was off-sides. Then Van Buren was stopped cold at the middle, Philadelphia was fined 5 yards for delaying the game, Muha came back to the 4, and the teams were guilty of simultaneous rule infractions.

Todd Pulls Boner

Still another Eagle penalty for delay was handed out before Philadelphia did the only thing left. Patton, with the ball on the 17, kicked a field goal that made it 17-7 with 1½ minutes missed the point and it was 10-9 as the teams left the field.

Following the kickoff, in the third period after Compagno's run, Greenbay immediately started to march and moved to the steeler 27 in 12 plays.

Jacobs then tossed to Luhn, who fell into the end zone for the touchdown. Cuff's kick made it 18-17.

The Steelers gained not an inch in three cracks at the line on their own 20 after the kickoff, and Cifers punted dead on the Packer 37. A pass and two line plays didn't gain and on the fourth down Jacobs tried to pass. He didn't get it off, a trio of linemen spilling him back to the Packer 27 and giving the Steelers the ball.

Pittsburgh started rolling, but the clock stopped them on the Packer nine.

Finish of Grading For Terp Stadium Due This Week

The University of Maryland said yesterday that grading for its new stadium is expected to be completed this week.

The university promised "an all out effort" to have it ready for the 1948 football season.

The new structure will seat 30,000 and will allow for expansion to at least 50,000.

The present stadium holds about 16,500 by utilizing every possible bit of space for seats and about 1000 standees.

The site is northwest of the campus and will provide adequate parking space.

Rippey Wins, 3-2, for Washington Club Title

Claude Rippey won the Washington Country Club golf championship for the second straight year as he defeated Harold Harris, 3 and 2, yesterday at Washington.

Harris was 1 up after the morning round of 18 holes, but Rippey staged the rally that gave him the championship soon after the afternoon round got under way. Rippey won the nineteenth, twentieth, twenty-first and twenty-second holes to take a three up lead.

Harris came back to win the twenty-third and twenty-fourth, to cut the margin to one. But Rippey closed out with birdie threes on the thirty-third and thirty-fourth

80 Rock Creek Golfers Try for Ten Turkeys

Jerry Long's first day as manager of the Rock Creek Golf Course was a success as forty matches in five flights of the club's turkey tournament went off as scheduled.

Before intermission Todd had time for a prize boner. He was standing in the clear as Thompson's pass, intended for Doss, came directly to him. He batted it down on the 10 instead of taking it, giving the Eagles another aerial chance before the halftime gun.

In three plays from scrimmage, Philadelphia boosted its edge as the second half opened. Van Buren had thundered 54 yards with Jenkins' kickoff before Pritchard added nine on a lateral to the Redskin 32.

Van Buren matched that effort through center, then took a reverse 23 yards around right end to score. Defender Farmer was scuffling with Pihos on the seven and scarcely noticed Van Buren streaking by.

Washington's next offensive action was just that. Baugh passed twice to Nussbaumer for a total of 17 yards, and Saenz picked up a first down with an 11-yard sprint through tackle, but then the Redskins went in reverse.

Penalties for holding and delaying the game pushed them from the Eagle 42 to their own 38 where the series ended appropriately.

Steele intercepted Baugh's pass, ran it back across midfield and before you could say Van Buren the score was 31-7. Steve, as a matter of fact, handled the last 37 yards almost single-handedly. His main help came from the block that obliterated Todd somewhere around the 17.

Ferrante Scores on Pass

Baugh and Redskin first-stringers were still in there, but Eagle first-stringers weren't when the hosts got down to their opponents' 10 early in the fourth period. A 54-yard march was voided when Nussbaumer was slightly short of a first down on a pass from Baugh.

Again Philadelphia made short work of it when the ball changed hands. Pat McHugh picked up six, then 32 on a reverse, and from the Redskin 42, Thompson hurled a payoff pass to Ferrante on the 12. Poillon and Wilde, both in front of Ferrante by this time, chased him across without a chance of catching up.

Youel had taken Baugh's place when the Skins finally made another scoring move. And Jim Castiglia, ex-Georgetown ace, was playing his first time for the Redskins.

Youel Goes Over

From his 23 Youel found Lookabaugh and Wilde with sharp aerials. Then two interference penalties, called on Macioszczyk and Craft, brought the ball to the Eagle 3.

It was first down when Youel sneaked over standing up. The Eagles were scattered for another pass.

The Redskins got a break shortly afterward when Peebles recovered Sherman's fumble on the Eagles 35. But they needed more than that. They needed just four touchdowns—which they didn't get—in the last four minutes.

Lane Offers 7 Legislative Proposals

Governor Lane announced in Annapolis last night a seven-point program he said he would recommend to the Maryland General Assembly's special session which convenes Wednesday.

The Governor's proposals include raising the present sales tax exemption from 9 to 14 cents.

The State's legislative council is to meet today in Baltimore, according to the Associated Press, to consider the Governor's administrative recommendations which, he said, he would present in person to the assembly.

The Governor's program would:

"1. Grant to Baltimore City on a temporary basis the authority to levy special taxes except in certain fields preempted by the State, and, at the request of the city administration, authorize the submission to the voters in 1948 of a $2,500,000 stadium loan and an eight million dollar public building and construction bond issue.

Elastic Tax Plan

"2. Raise the minimum figure at which the sales tax is imposed from 9 cents to 14 cents and, in addition, authorize the Board of Public Works to further increase the minimum figure within a specified limit if continued revenue collection from this source justifies a reduction in the scope of the levy.

"3. Modify the restrictions now in the law in the type of road construction which may be financed from authorized bond issues and grant the State Roads Commission broader discretion in the planning of the new highway program.

"4. Provide funds to permit the State, in collaboration with Baltimore City, to adjust to a maximum of $10 per day, if earned, the payments to private hospitals for the care and treatment of indigent patients.

"5. Allocate a sum not to exceed $125,000 for use as matching funds for local airport construction where Federal and local funds are available and construction plans are complete and approved.

"6. Revise the provisions of the 1947 construction loan act to permit funds authorized thereunder to be utilized in accordance with revised structure planning.

Would Boost Relief

"7. Supplement public welfare appropriations to permit an increase in minimum allotments to the extent of the raise in subsistence living costs since the adoption of the current State budget."

In addition, several local bills are expected to be submitted to the council which already has approved 30 or more such bills for presentation to the special session.

The sales tax change has been recommended by the State Board of Public Works. Collections from the sales tax, originally expected to yield an annual $18,400,000, may produce for the State close to 25 million dollars and the five-cent exemption boost, the board has pointed out, will cut the collections to near the originally estimated figure.

The special Assembly, to meet at 2 p. m. Wednesday in Annapolis, was prompted primarily by Baltimore's financial plight, which resulted when Governor Lane vetoed a bill passed by last winter's regular session which gave the city the same taxing powers as the State.

Be Radical, Is CIO Answer To Marxism

"Uncompromising radicalism" is the only ideological challenge to Communism, according to Kermit Eby, CIO national director of research and education, who spoke yesterday at a meeting sponsored by siv local interracial and church groups.

The meeting, held at the Wesley A.M.E. Zion Church, 1615 14th st. nw., was the last formal session of a "Laboratory of Human Relations," whose purpose is to devise a program "for eradicating racial and religious discrimination in the Nation's Capital."

Eby said the ultimate radicalism is to believe that "as long as one man is hurt, all other men suffer." The Negro's challenge, he declared, "is to organize, insist on your share of representation, and compel the sweep of history to move to the achievement of equality."

While admitting that "a lot of people in the CIO are no more tolerant than anyone else," he declared the CIO "has done as much as any organization in America to break down race prejudices."

Dean William Stuart Nelson of the School of Religion, Howard University, advocated "the nonviolence of the strong" in race relations, as practiced by Mohandas K. Gandhi, whom he met on a recent trip to India.

Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Souls' Unitarian Church, who presided, told the audience of more than 100 that the principles brought out by the President's Civil Rights Committee could be challenged.

Driver Hurt In Dead End Crash Dies Of Injuries

District Motorist Arrested Following Death of Man on Road in Virginia

D. C. traffic deaths this year..62
Deaths this date last year...54
District total last year.....72

A 27-year-old truck driver died yesterday morning at Casualty Hospital of injuries he suffered eight days ago when his automobile ran through a dead end and over an embankment.

The victim, Marvin E. Turner, 59 New York ave. ne., suffered a fractured skull in the accident, which also slightly injured a 16-year-old youth riding with him.

Another traffic fatality was recorded yesterday when a car driven by a Washington resident left the road 3 miles west of Erica, Va., killing Perry Thompson, 52, Machodoc, Va.

The car was diven by Burney E. Ashton, 41 H st. sw., who was charged by Virginia State police with driving under the influence of alcohol and involuntary manslaughter. He was uninjured.

An unidentified woman was struck 5 miles south of Alexandria on Route 1 about 5:30 p. m. yesterday by a car which police said was driven by John Feeney, 60, 1336 Newton st. ne. At Alexandria Hospital she was found to have suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, fracture of the right leg, fracture of the left wrist, several broken ribs, possible internal injuries and a possible fractured skull.

The woman was described as about 45, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds. She was dressed in blue dungarees, white blouse and brown coat.

Police said Turner's car going north on 4th st. nw., crashed over the curbing where the street ends at Sheridan st. at about 9:15 p. m. October 25. The car ran 85 feet into the Coolidge High School recreation grounds, then went down an embankment, turning over on its side.

Alfred DeArgo, 806 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park, Md., a passenger, was treated at Emergency Hospital and released.

Turner, born in Mount Jackson, Va., had lived in Washington for eight years. His last employer, the family said, was the Baltimore Transfer Co.

He leaves his mother, Mrs. Annie Turner, Route 1, Mount Pleasant, Va.; three brothers, Stanley, Charles, and Norman, all of Washington, and six sisters, Mrs. Pauline Good, Washington, Mrs. Thelma Blick, Harrisonburg, Va., Mrs. Geneva Monay, Concville, Va., Mrs. Ruby Golliday, Forestville, Va., Miss Annie Turner and Miss Mary Turner, both of Mount Pleasant.

In other accidents reported yesterday:

John T. Weber, 23, 700 Braddock st., Alexandria, Va., suffered a broken leg when his motorcycle and an automobile collided at 9:05 Saturday night at 2d and H sts. nw. Weber was admitted to Mount Alto Hospital and was reported in good condition.

Thomas C. Liles, 49, 1101 5th st. se. also sustained a fractured leg when his automobile collided with a streetcar at 7th st. and Adams dr. sw. at 12:40 a. m. yesterday. He was in good condition at Gallinger Hospital.

Lerman H. Hooper, 21, Granston, Va., was reported in serious condition in Alexandria Hospital with possible fractured skull and possible internal injuries after being struck by a hit-and-run car 1½ miles south of Alexandria shortly after midnight Saturday. District and Maryland police are looking for the vehicle.

In another hit-and-run accident 1 mile further south at about 5:30 p. m. Saturday, Frank Carroll, 48, Camden, Me., a hitchhiker, was slightly injured when struck by an automobile later said to have been operated by Pfc. J. C. Lucas, Fort Belvoir. Carroll was treated at Alexandria Hospital.

Lucas was picked up by guards at the entrance to Fort Belvoir after a description of the car, furnished by witnesses, had been broadcast by State Police. He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, and having no driver's permit. He was held in Fairfax jail under $500 bond for a hearing Wednesday.

Former Senators Watson, Davis Are Improving

Former Senators James E. Watson (R., Ind.) and James J. Davis (R., Pa.), ill in District hospitals, were reported "improving" yesterday by doctors and family.

Watson, turned 84 yesterday, was unable to have a birthday party in his Gallinger Hospital room, "but his improvement has been amazing," a daughter, Mrs. Ernest A. Gross, 4605 Davidson, dr., Chevy Chase, Md., declared.

Watson, Republican leader in the Senate during the Hoover Administration, was stricken with internal hemorrhages October 12.

Davis was reported "resting comfortably" yesterday at the Washington Sanitarium by Dr. Robert A. Hare, and greatly improved over his condition of four days ago. He has been hospitalized for two months with a blood vessel condition of the heart and kidneys.

Virginians to Vote Tomorrow On 33 State Assembly Seats

Richmond, Va., Nov. 2.—On Tuesday, Virginians will cast their votes for the State General Assembly in an election climaxing the strongest Republican bid in many a year.

While most of the balloting will serve only to confirm candidates nominated by the Democrats, either in the August primary or otherwise, there will be contests for some Senate seats and 22 for House of Delegate seats.

Two Democratic senators appear to have exceptionally strong competition in southwest Virginia. They are Lloyd Robinette, who will face C. S. Pendleton, Republican, in the Sixteenth District, and Harry C. Stuart in the Eighteenth District, who provides strong opposition for T. C. Bowen, jr.

Waged Intensive Campaign

In Arlington, the 22d District, Talmadge Wilcher, Republican, has conducted an intensive campaign against former Delegate Charles R. Fenwick, Democrat.

In addition to the State legislative races, Virginia voters will choose county officers, with 40 counties voting for sheriff, 26 for treasurer, 24 for Comonwealth's attorney and 24 for commissioners of revenue.

The City of Richmond expects the question of a charter change to give the city a manager form to bring out an unusually heavy vote.

Chesterfield County also expects a heavy vote, the result of a proposal to be voted on to change to a county manager government.

Other Senate Contests

Other State senatorial contests include: Senator Major M. Hillard (D.) vs. E. Edward Blair (R.) in Norfolk County-Portsmouth-South Norfolk; George M. Warren (D.), now a delegate, vs. Homer C. McFaddin (R.), Smyth-Washington-Bristol; Raymond Guest (D.) vs. Senator J. A. Garber (R.), Page-Rappahannock-Rockingham - Warren-Harrisonburg; Senator Andrew W. Clarke (D.) vs. Thomas C. Graham (R.), Fairfax-Alexandria-Prince William; Senator Ted Dalton (R.) vs. Ben Chapman (D.), Franklin - Montgomery - Roanoke-Radford; Senator I. Paul Wailes (D.) vs. S. P. Stewart (R.), Amherst-Bedford-Nelson; Senator Robert O. Norris, jr. (D.) vs. Stanley G. Adams (R.), King George-Lancaster - Northumberland-Richmond-Westmoreland; Senator Charles W. Crowder, Delegate James E. Gardner and Frank S. Richeson (D.) vs. Mrs. Vernon G. Browning (R.).

Contests for House

Alexandria — Armistead Booth (D.) vs. Walter B. Fulton (R.).

Lee—J. Marion Smith (R.) vs. A. I. Hamblen (D.).

Montgomery-Radford — Bentley Hite (R.) vs. W. T. Scott, jr. (D.).

Pulaski—Marvin C. Graham (D.) vs. Guy Whitaker (R.).

Richmond City (seven seats—W. H. Adams, Albert O. Boschen, C. Edmond Massie, Walter L. Hopkins and Charles H. Phillips, incumbents, and former Delegate Edward T. Haynes and W. H. C. Murray, Democrats, vs. Phyllis A. Otey (R.) and Howard Carwile, Independent.

Two Seats at Stake

Rockingham-Harrisonburg (two seats)—J. O. Stickley (D.), Edward M. Brown (D.), George W. Tollaferro (R.), Elmer A. Jordan (R.).

Russell—Roger D. Fraley (R.) vs. T. C. Boyd (D.).

Scott—R. D. Coleman (D.) vs. Ryland G. Craft (R.).

Smyth—Dr. A. B. Graybeal (D.) vs. Ralph Lincoln (R.).

Wythe—E. G. Bowman (D.) vs. R. Kyle Poole (R.).

Fredericksburg - Spotsylvania — William J. Gibson (D.) vs. Dorothy V. M. Powell, independent.

Shenandoah—William C. Lambert (R.) vs. Park M. Smith (I.)

Bland-Giles—D. W. Bird (D.) vs. Ira Recs (I.).

For the Senate, S. Floyd Landreth, the GOP incumbent from Carroll-Floyd-Grayson, has no opposition.

Seven Injured In Weekend Football Tilts

Four youths were injured in sandlot football games yesterday, bringing pigskin casualties for the District to seven for the weekend.

Most seriously hurt was Robert McWhorter, 22, of 2156 Lee Highway, Arlington, who received a neck fracture while playing on the Edgewood Playground, Evart st. at 3rd st., ne. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Taken to Casualty shortly after noon, with an injured left knee, was Stanley R. Rochinski, 15, of 1026 Otis st., ne. He had been playing on the Turkey Thicket Playground, 10th st. and Michigan ave. ne. Doctors advised him to return today for X-rays.

John Taylor, 17, of 2711 12th st. ne., suffered a fractured right shoulder bone also while playing on the Turkey Thicket Playground. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Lamar Dobbs, 13, of 3608 Rock Creek Church rd. nw., injured while playing on the grounds of Raymond School, 10th st. and Spring rd. nw., was treated at Garfield Hospital for possible fracture of the right arm and released.

Injured Saturday were Gus Baroutas, 17, 209 C st. nw., during a game with Gonzaga High School at the Anacostia football stadium, and Augustus Vick, 18, of 310 57th st. ne., while playing at 61st and Clay sts. ne.

Baroutas, quarterback of Chamberlain High School, was treated at Casualty Hospital for possible internal injuries. Vick was admitted to Gallinger Hospital for treatment of a fractured right leg. His condition was reported "good" yesterday.

Condition of the seventh football player, Julian Self, jr., 18, a Woodrow Wilson High School player, who suffered head injuries and concussion in a game Friday at Central High School, was reported "fairly good" at Garfield Hospital yesterday.

200th Year Observed by W. Va. Church

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Nov. 2 (Spl.)—Members of Christ Evangelical and Reformed Church here presented a pageant of the 200-year history of the congregation during the bicentennial ceremonies that closed today.

The pageant was written by Mrs. Rose Lyne and Mrs. Rachel Jorgensen, her daughter, and was directed by Mrs. Reva White. The narrator was Freel Welshans, principal of elementary schools here and a lineal descendant of original members of the congregation.

Costumes were rented with money provided by members of the congregation. One character spoke her lines in German, the language of most of the early members.

Scenes presented in the pageant included the discussion of provisions for the church, christening of the bells brought from Germany, a scene during the Civil War when the church was used for care of the wounded, and a memorial to the former pastors of the church.

To Honor Mrs. Lee

The junior past president of the Sergt. Jasper Unit 13, American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. Ola D. Lee, will be honored by the unit with a luncheon at the Kenesaw apartments on Saturday.

Protestant Return to Luther Urged

Theologian Asks Recapture of Old Spirit, a Revival of 'Real' Christianity

A plea for Protestantism to recapture the spirit of the Reformation came yesterday from Dr. Elmer Homrighausen, professor of Christian education at Princeton Theological Seminary.

Addressing 1000 persons at a Reformation anniversary "Festival of Faith" at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, Dr. Homrighausen said the essence of Martin Luther's discovery about Christianity was "justification by faith," and added:

"Real Christianity is not what you do for God but what God can do for you."

The speaker, chairman of the Federal Council of Churches' department of evangelism, reminded the assembly that democracy, freedom and other privileges of the American way have Christian roots.

"It is high time that Protestantism began to understand what is meant by these great truths," he said.

Earlier in the service, Arthur S. Flemming, Civil Service commissioner and president of the Federation of Churches—sponsor of the service—said that the Reformation movement has a significance for humanity today, "even in the light of the problems and opportunities confronting us here in the Nation's Capital."

It was on October 31, 1517, that a young Augustinian monk, Martin Luther, posted on the doors of the Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany, 95 theses or arguments against what he charged was the sale of indulgences by the church of his day.

Clergymen of various denominations participated in yesterday's service.

The order of worship was conducted by Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of the host church; Dr. Halley B. Taylor, pastor of Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Alfred Wesley Hurst, pastor of Cleveland Park Congregational Church and chairman of the federation's public meetings committee.

Several sixteenth century hymns were sung, including "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," written by Luther in 1529, and "A Hymn of Praise," composed by William Kethe in 1561. The National City Choir presented two anthems, directed by William Braithwaite.

Trade Board to Discuss Plan For Home-Rule Vote Today

program. He added, however, that the idea of a referendum "is certainly something which we should consider very carefully."

Gratified at Streamline Plan

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner, said he was gratified that the departmental steamlining proposed by the Auchincloss Committee followed closely the agency reorganization recommended by the Commissioners during the home-rule hearings last summer.

On the home-rule suffrage feature, General Young said, "I have never commented, and I am never going to comment. That is a purely political matter. I'm an Army officer and I'm staying out of it."

General Young said there were details of the streamlining plan on which he would want more time for study, but "in general I'm all for it."

In the hearings, Commissioner John Russell Young called for centralizing many major semi-independent agencies under the head of the District government. He included schools, libraries, recreation, welfare and others. While details of his proposals differed from those of the Auchincloss plan, there was agreement on the main theme of a more closely centralized city government.

Feature Pleases General Young

General Young said he was glad to see the Auchincloss report suggested that the great majority of District employes would continue on their jobs under the proposed reorganization. "I'm convinced that we have a magnificent group of employes," he said.

Generally, officials of agencies which would be merged or abolished by the reorganization plan, were reserving comment until they could study the report in more detail. Throughout the hearings, most agency officials defended present setups.

District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler said "anything they can do to consolidate departments will be helpful.

"I think that the home rule idea is all right. There might be a little doubt about having Federal officials serve as council members. That might include anybody who is exempt under our present income tax law from supporting the District. A councilman ought to be someone whose real interest is heart and soul in the District."

Dual Residents Could Vote

Under the plan Federal employes could take part in the home-rule setup as voters and candidates without losing their residence rights in a State. Voting would be open to those who had lived in the District at least a year, candidates for local office would have to meet a three-year residence requirement.

Strong backing for the Auchincloss program came from leaders of citizens and suffrage groups.

Clifford H. Newell, who headed the Federation of Citizens Associations for the past year, said the Auchincloss plan "is very fine as far as it goes, although I suspect there are some things that need clarifying. I think the people of Washington ought to be very much pleased with the report."

Newell emphasized the sections of the plan calling for grouping most city agencies, and the District activities of many Federal agencies, into 11 departments under the city manager.

Newell Likes Manager Setup

"That would mean in my judgment that the District at last would be supplied with a type of government that would do away with the many autonomous boards that have proved so bad for the best interests of the city," Newell said.

Newell said he has high personal regard for the District's present three Commissioners, the city's top governing agency which would be abolished to make way for the proposed council-manager government. He said he believed the Commissioners, given the same powers as those proposed for the new government, would give the District a good government, but he said Congress would never give such powers to a Commission form of government. For this reason, he said, he favored the new council-manager set-up.

Newell said he would rather see a veto power over the proposed local council given to the President instead of to Congress. He said the President would have nothing at all to say about District affairs under the Auchincloss plan. The question of the President's role in the new setup is being given further study by the House subcommittee.

Civic Group Head Pleased

Woolsey W. Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, said he believed the Auchincloss program was "probably the wisest plan that could be formulated."

Hall was one of the 11 citizens named in the bill of Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) to be members of a commission that would draft a home-rule charter for Washington. That bill is still awaiting Senate action, but Hall said "I don't think we could have written a better charter than the one proposed by the Auchincloss committee."

Wilbur S. Finch, president of Washington's Central Suffrage Conference, and chairman of the Federation of Citizens Association Committee on local and national suffrage, said "generally the whole plan meets with my entire approval."

He said he had not found any features in a preliminary study of the Auchincloss plan with which he would quarrel. "I've been in favor of the council-manager plan of city government for many years," Finch said. "The Auchincloss plan goes perhaps further than I would have gone in granting authority to the city council for general legislation, but we'd be glad to have that if it's constitutional." Finch was also listed in the McCarran bill to be a member of the proposed District charter-writing commission.

Camalier Doubts Passage

Two other proposed members of the McCarran commission had varied views on the Auchincloss plan.

Mrs. Charles H. Weston, of the District League of Women voters, said the Auchincloss plan "sounds excellent to me—I favor the elected council and city manager form of government for the District."

Renah F. Camalier, former counsel to the Senate District Committee, pointed out that the council-manager setup had been the main idea behind Senator McCarran's home rule legislation, but he said he did not believe Congress was ready to give the District suffrage in the form asked by the Auchincloss group.

He said he would have suggested an appointed city council, to be named by the President with Senate confirmation as are the Commissioners, and a city manager selected as the first move in reorganization. He said he favored local suffrage, and believed that the District would get its own elected council eventually, "but it's not in the cards right now."

Dr. Rustin's Sermon Topic

A call for suffrage in the District was made by the Rev. Dr. John W. Rustin in his sermon at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. He spoke on the theme "Our City Needs a Foundation Stone," and said "we are never going to improve our institutions unless we have self-government in Washington."

Dr. Rustin said that Jesus had taught and lived brotherhood, and "we now know that world brotherhood is no longer a luxury but a necessity. Much of what is wrong in our world today is the result of hysteria that grows out of deep-seated prejudice.

"There are honest people, even though they may be mistaken, who feel that if suffrage should come to the District it will mean the Negroes will rule Washington. How they can think like that is always a mystery when less than 30 per cent of the District's population is Negro."

9 Complete 1-Year Class in Practical Nursing

The Washington Post

Nine students received pins and certificates at afternoon exercises in the hospital's solarium. Later, they were feted at a reception.

Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, chairman of the committee on training school for nurses' aides, told the graduates they are "filling many of the blanks" created by the current nurse shortage. The "little but important" functions once performed by the graduate nurse are being assumed by aides, he pointed out.

Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, hospital administrator, termed the class a "complete and gratifying example of the efficiency of this course." Later, he described the course as the "first one of the type that has 12 full months of completely organized and well-rounded training."

Dr. William G. Morgan, former president, American Medical Association, in the principal address, warned the new graduates that the "value of experience is not in seeing much but in seeing wisely." He cautioned against "lack of orderliness," which he dubbed a "cardinal sin," and a "careless tongue."

Graduates, all from Greater Washington except Ruth Yeramian, a visitor from Turkey, were: Jacqueline Bird, Lois Ann Childress, Helen Frank, Evelyn James, June E. Ludwig, Betty M. Phillips, Janice Marces and Jane Irma Withers.

Federation Seat Denial Laid to Probe Of Loyalty

Kalorama Citizen Unit's President Challenges Action On Its Delegate

Refusal of the Federation of Citizens Associations to seat one woman delegate Saturday night stemmed from a loyalty probe conducted by the federation's membership and credentials committee.

George W. Hodgkins, president of the Kalorama Citizens Association whose delegate was involved, made the change yesterday. He also questioned the federation's right to refuse to seat duly elected delegates.

The federation voted Saturday night to postpone action on the seating of Delegate-Elect Mrs. Sylvia Wubnig, representative for the Kalorama association, until December. Her codelegate, P. S. N. Pedersen, was seated without question.

Instigated by Newell

The loyalty probe, instigated by Past President Clifford H. Newell, was designed "to investigate subversive or left-wing groups and individuals to prevent their infiltration into the federation or its member bodies." Of 10,000 members investigated, only four were "known to belong to subversive groups," the probing committee reported at the federation's October meeting.

"The committee did not report out the names of the four," declared Hodgkins, yesterday. "They did report that all four belonged to one association, and though they didn't say it, I got the impression they meant us.

"Moreover," he continued, "one of the organizations they listed as subversive was the League of Women Shoppers. Mrs. Wubnig has been active in the league, and I have no doubt that some of our other members have too."

Used Federal Guide

Ralph W. Donnelly, chairman of the membership and credentials committee which conducted the probe, had reported out that the investigators used the "subversive" list as contained in "findings of the Federal Government" as the committee guide.

Besides the League of Women Shoppers, he said, the list also included the Communist Party, Southern Conference for Human Welfare, American Youth for Democracy, National Lawyers Guild, Washington Cooperative Book Shop and the Washington Committee for Democratic Action.

Hodgkins said the matter would "undoubtedly" come up at the next meeting of the Kalorama Citizens Association, next Monday, as well as at the December meeting of the federation.

Mrs. Wubnig declined to discuss the matter publicly other than to register "strong protest." However, in a biographical sketch supplied by her and published in the federation's paper, the Citizen she listed herself as "active in the Parent-Teacher Association and the League of Women Shoppers."

Mrs. Thomas, Ex-Slave, 100, Found Dead

Mrs. Martha Thomas, the 100 year-old former slave who had been missing from her Fairfax County house at Burke for more than five weeks, was found dead yesterday, less than a quarter mile away.

How the enfeebled woman got that far is not known, but discovery of her body in a thicket behind the abandoned Pearson schoolhouse cleared up in most minds the mystery that developed after she disappeared.

Walkingstick Missing

Dr. Nelson Podolnick, county coroner, said death was apparently due to natural causes. He added, however, that he was withholding his signature on the report "until Mrs. Thomas' walkingstick turns up."

"Aunt Martha," who frequently talked about her slave days before and during the Civil War, had lived alone since her husband's death about 30 years ago. She rarely left the house, and was not believed able to go far without the aid of her cane.

Her body was found beside a barbed wire fence about 7:30 a. m. by Ben Winger, one of the many neighbors who dropped in to feed and care for her.

She was wearing the same sweater and dress she wore when she was last seen the night of September 19. Dr. Podolnick said it appeared as though she had tried to get through the fence, because shreds of clothing were caught on the barbs.

Police could not find the walking stick.

Known and Liked

"Aunt Martha," who was well known and liked in the neighborhood, owned the four-room house and 40 acres which were variously valued as low as $40 and as high as $500 an acre.

Shortly after her disappearance, the Immediate Relief Association, a local welfare organization, offered a $500 reward for information leading to her whereabouts.

NAPOLEON

Va. Official Denies 'Rich' Farmer Talk

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 2 (AP).—Critics who blame farmers for the high cost of eating, and charge they are growing wealthy at the expense of other groups, were answered here by an official of Virginia Agricultural Extension Service.

Editor R. D. Michael said in an editorial written for the Extension Service News that the critics overlook two facts:

1. That while farm income now is much better than in the late 30's, the prewar farmer was near the bottom of income groups, with only unskilled labor getting less for its efforts.

2. That farm production costs have risen at a pace almost equal to the upswing in prices for farm products.

"As a result of this last factor," Michael asserted, "the farmer isn't much better off than he was during the depression years."

Michael quoted a Department of Agriculture release that said "today when farm prices average considerably above parity and when production is far higher than ever before in peacetime, agriculture's share of the national income is still considerably below its proportion of the population. Roughly one fifth of our people live on farms, but last year agriculture received only one ninth of the national income."

Figures issued by the Federal Reserve Board last July, Michael said, show that 35 per cent of farmers still have an annual income of less than $1000, 62 per cent less than $2000, and only 3 per cent more than $2000, placing them at the bottom of the annual income list.

Martinsburg Man Killed by Truck In Corn Field

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 2 (Spl.)—Carl Shipper, 65, Berkeley County resident, was instantly killed yesterday when run over by a truck while working in a corn field on the American Fruit Growers farm between Arden and Inwood.

State police said Shipper apparently was sitting behind a shock of corn when the truck, a converted Army scout vehicle being used to carry the corn, ran into the shock and struck the victim.

Streptomycin Called Cattle Disease Cure

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 2 (AP).—Recent laboratory tests here indicated that the drug streptomycin completely checked growth of the organism of paratuberculosis, a chronic infectious disease of cattle identified in 16 Virginia counties since 1942.

Dr. E. P. Johnson, Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station animal pathologist, reported that sufficient amounts of the antibiotic drug completely inhibited growth of the organism in a liquid medium in laboratory flasks.

Growth did not resume when the organisms were transplanted to a medium without streptomycin, although growth was profuse in control flasks where the drug had not been used, Johnson said.

He reported that in similar tests using penicillin, there was virtually no retarding of the organism's growth.

Paratuberculosis, also known as Johne's disease, was described as a malady in which the symptoms may not appear until from a few months to more than two years after infection.

Consequently, Johnson said, it becomes established in a herd without recognition until clinical symptoms develop and animals in early stages of the disease may be sold to unsuspecting purchasers, allowing spread to widely separated areas. The disease attacks animals' intestines

Johne's disease, Johnson said, has been identified in Lee, Swyth, Bland, Wythe, Pulaski, Montgomery, Roanoke, Campbell, Chesterfield, Norfolk, Rockbridge, Augusta, Albemarle, Rockingham, Shenandoah and Spotsylvania counties.

Miss Dorothy Denny To Be January Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Denny announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Dorothy B. Denny of Baltimore, to F. Edmund Sutton, also of that city.

Miss Denny is daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Denny. She attended Holton-Arms School, Knox School in Cooperstown, N. Y., and was graduated from Sweet Briar College.

Mr. Sutton is son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sutton of Kent County, Md. He attended Johns Hopkins University and was graduated from University of Maryland Law School. The wedding will take place in January.

Parties Follow Game, Concert; Alec Templeton Is Honored

Football fans and particular friends of Harry Wismer, sports announcer, met at his cocktail party at the Shoreham yesterday following the Redskins game.

Another follow-up party—for music lovers—yesterday was the buffet supper given by the American Newspaper Women's Club in honor of Alec Templeton, who earlier in the day had appeared with the National Symphony Orchestra at Constitution Hall.

Mrs. Templeton shared honors with her distinguished husband and stood with the club president, Mrs. Margaret Hart Canby; Dr. Hans Kindler, and Howard Mitchell, who conducted the concert to welcome the guests.

The Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila were there, and John Steelman, presidential assistant, and Mrs. Steelman, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Witt, came together.

Others were Mrs. Howard Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Canon and Mrs. Theodore Wedel, Capt. and Mrs. William H. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Keith, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Miss Patricia McGerr, Comdr. and Mrs. George Pelletier, Col. and Mrs. Kurt Schiffeler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freer, Mr. and Mrs. Raul Bessa, J. E. Mutch, manager of the National Symphony; Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Astryke and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Brewster. At the candlelit buffet table serving coffee were Mrs. Hobart Brooks, Mrs. Glen Dillard Gunn and Mrs. Robert Dunlap. And taking their turn serving punch and ice cream were Mrs. Curt Schiffeler, Miss Alice Everman, Miss Ann Cline, Mrs. Richard Bales, Miss Eliza Canby, Miss Marguerite Boyer, Mrs. Norman Keith and Miss Betty Beale.

Justice Reed There

College songs and the familiar, "Hail to the Red Skins," provided a lively obbligato to the hum of conversation and the tinkle of glasses at Harry Wismer's gay gathering.

Mrs. Wismer, unfortunately wasn't able to be there but Mrs. Edward Treglown a long time family friend, and Mrs. Lee Miller, were on hand to help make the party go.

Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed were there and Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, from Mr. Wismer's own State. Among lovely ladies were Mrs. Stuart Symington, wife of the Secretary of the Air Force, who wore black with pearls high about her throat, and Mrs. Blake Clark with green bows in her black hair to match her jade earrings.

Attorney General Tom Clark came without Mrs. Clark, and others there were Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip, Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bradley, Admiral and Mrs. John Gingrich, J. Edgar Hoover, Mme. Rybar whose black gown sparkled with sequins; Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Col. and Mrs. Andrew Van Esso. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Distler and Mrs. Parker West chatted at length; Pendleton Hogan found his way around and still others were Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt, and Mrs. Sidney Graves.

Son to Embreys

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Embrey announce the birth of a son, Gary Gregory Embrey, on October 27 at Alexandria Hospital, Alexandria, Va.

Miss McKee To Be Feted

One of the parties planned for Miss Bessie Jane McKee who will make her bow at a tea dance the latter part of December is to be given by Miss Edwina Pou Wadden, when her mother, Mrs. Thomas Anthony Wadden, entertains at a 12:30 breakfast on Friday, December 19, in the new home of the Club of Colonial Dames, 2110 S st.

Miss McKee, a student at Principia College, Elsah, Ill., will arrive in Washington December 16.

Mr. and Mrs. John K. McKee, parents of the debutante, now live in New York, but continue to maintain their 45th st. home here. Mrs. McKee will come down November 15 to open the house for the holiday season. Mr. McKee is former chief of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and a former Governor of the Federal Reserve Board. He is now president of the Consolidated National Bank and Trust Co., New York.

French Bazaar Will Serve Tea At Embassy Fete

Plans are now in progress to serve tea to the hundreds of visitors who will flock to the French Embassy Tuesday, November 18, when American Aid to France will hold its Christmas bazaar.

At the request of Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, all refreshments to be served will conform to a Government regulation to use "mixed" flour as a means of saving wheat.

Mrs. John H. Towers, in charge of the tea table, has announced that the members of her working committee will include Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. David Barry, Mrs. Eugene Carusi, Mrs. Harold Coolidge, Mrs. Wilbur Carr and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim.

French Christmas cards and calendars which have just arrived from Paris will be under the supervision of the Misses Joan and Nina Crampton. French books, many of them signed by their authors, will be offered for sale at a table in charge of Mme. Arnauld Wapler, wife of the Counselor of the Embassy.

Mrs. Millard West Chairman Of Jr. League Chest Drive Team

Members of the Junior League who are campaigning among members of the diplomatic corps for the Community Chest Federation have met with enthusiastic response.

The ten, who have volunteered to raise funds for the campaign, are members of a team working with Mrs. Millard F. West.

Five ambassadors—those from Greece, Denmark, Ethiopia, Chile, and Eire, have already sent in their personal contributions. In addition, members of the staffs of the embassies of Russia, Denmark, Yugoslavia, Siam, Haiti, and Portugal, have made their individual pledges to support the welfare work of the Chest-supported agencies in the National Capital area.

Mrs. West has worked for several years for the Chest Federation as a volunteer, including an assignment with special gifts unit.

There are six teams of energetic Junior Leaguers also doing Chest campaign jobs in other fields—including many who are preparing to go from house-to-house to solicit contributions from housewives toward the goal of $3,900,000.

Before the gifts from the embassies began to come in, Mrs. West and her team workers personally wrote to each of 105 embassies, legations and ministries.

"What has impressed us most, I think, is the generous manner in which representatives of nations whose own people face hunger and poverty are sharing in the work of helping those in need in this city," Mrs. West said.

Toutorskys Hosts To Diplomats at Musical Evening

Dr. and Mme. Basil Toutorsky entertained at the third of a series of musical evenings last night following the recital of Janet and Gilbert Thatcher, daughter and son of Dr. and Mrs. Lionel W. Thatcher.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Caceres; the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Ivanissevitch; the Colombian Ambassador and Senora de Restrepo-Jaramillo; the First Secretary of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Herrera; Senator and Mrs. Elbert Thomas, Senator and Mrs. Walter R. Granger and Representative and Mrs. Dewey Short.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man's Work Holds Him in Asia Until 1955; He Says Region's Too Rugged for Wife, But Her Friends Are Cynical, Shaking Her Faith

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a woman, 38, very much in love with my husband, and I have two fine sons, 13 and 8, respectively, who hero-worship their father.

Until recently I had always been content with my life, but now I am beginning to feel old and dubious about the future. You see, my husband has been in Asia for years on long-term contracts with an American oil firm.

He won't be home to stay until 1955, although in the meantime he spends his annual vacations—six to eight weeks—with us and we have wonderful times. He loves us and is very proud of his home. He says, "My wife, my boys, my home, my car—all mine." But when here, he wants us all to ourselves.

My friends aren't welcome for a minute. He refuses all invitations and likes to go for rides in the country or to visit his mother. During his absence, she has been to me as a Bible to a minister.

Wife Wonders, Is She Sucker?

MY SONS and I are good pals, the best of friends, but they are in school much of the time and occasionally I wish I had a daughter to love—as boys don't like that sort of thing. For a change, I would like to put them to board and join my husband in Asia for a while—but he says it would never do.

He moves about from headquarters, sometimes into Europe and Africa, and he says I couldn't stand the rugged life. However, there are American colonies in those areas, always medically supervised; and my two best friends—both happily married—tell me I am a sucker.

They insist there must be other women, or another woman, in my husband's life, else he would want me with him; and they say I am wasting the best years of my life, just drifting. I've told them I am his wife, that he is saving money for our future, when we can be together at last—and other woman or not, I'll wait.

I try to tell myself the same; but when I am alone, I wonder. Can we take up a life together when he is 48 and I am 45; can we make up to each other for the years we have missed? In the end, will I feel cheated and wish I had done differently? What do you think of the way I live? I was content until my friends started stating their views. P. L.

Friends Bored With Their Lot

DEAR P. L.: In my opinion, your two best friends, so-called, are bored and vaguely dissatisfied with the dead-end flavor of their own existence nowadays—which has no glamorous overtones nor any promise, that they can see, of richly exciting future developments.

Possibly they don't realize it, but that's why they are shooting poison arrows at your remarkably different set-up, with which you've been so confidently content—enjoying present blessings while also vibrantly looking to new chapters of happiness after 1955.

Doubtless it is salve to their own frustration—their feeling of having gone to seed in a rut—to voice a cynical view of your exceptional pattern of life and imply, with pseudo-smugness, that they are fortunate by comparison.

Their Dreams Have Expired

THEIR youthful lease on joyous expectancy expired some time back, along with their once-roseate dreams of dramatic living, leaving them flat and dejected in mental outlook—and because misery loves company, they are at pains to depress your mind, too, if possible.

For advice: Pay no attention to their foolish half-envious prattle. True friends endowed with good sense and good will would never utter a discouraging word in a case like this—not even if they had first-hand knowledge that the husband was supporting a harem in Asia. And I'm sure yours isn't.

To clear your head, read "Power Through Constructive Thinking," by Emmet Fox (Harper & Brothers); and later, if you want a visit to Asia just for adventure, you'll probably make it. M. H.

TOMORROW: Two brawling brothers come home to mother after their respective marriages fail. Now she too is fed up, but they won't leave.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Voters League to Study Peace Issues

What members of the League of Women Voters can do about three paramount issues facing the United States will be discussed when the national board holds its semiannual meeting here, November 9-14, at the Statler Hotel.

Providing food and economic aid to win the peace in Europe; establishing equitable systems of trade between nations to help keep the peace; and control of atomic energy in the interest of the public; are the high points of the league's program voted by members in their convention of 1946. Next week's meeting of the national board will decide on specific ways by which the league may arouse citizens to take part in working out these problems.

"Enlightened public opinion is essential if the United States is to pursue the right course in these perilous times," Miss Anna Lord Strauss, said, in announcing the meeting. "The league's main object is to reach citizens with facts and to urge them to accept their responsibility as members of a democracy for acting on those facts."

Mount Holyoke Alumnae To Honor Dr. Woolley

Special tribute will be paid to the late Dr. Emma Woolley, president emeritus of Mount Holyoke College, when the Mount Holyoke Alumnae Club of Washington holds its first meeting of the season, November 15, 3 p. m., in the Women's City Club.

Three speakers will commemorate Miss Woolley. Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director of the American Association of University Women, will speak on behalf of the AAUW. Dr. Guy E. Snavely, executive director, will bring tribute from the Association of American Colleges. The alumnae tribute will be paid by Dr. Esther Loring Richards.

Arts and Letters Society To Hear Talk on Scripture

The Washington chapter of the National Society of Arts and Letters will meet tomorrow at 2 p. m., with Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, 4400 Broadbranch rd. nw.

Guest speaker will be Charles Seymour, jr., assistant chief curator of the National Gallery of Art. He will talk on "Sculpture in the National Gallery of Art," a subject about which he has written a book to be published soon. Slides taken from the book illustrations will be shown.

Henriette Bagger Plum, chairman of the music committee of the National Society of Arts and Letters, will sing a group of Scandinavian and American songs. She will be accompanied by Sergt. William Heasley.

Mable Perry Edwards, chapter president, will preside at the business meeting. At this time, announcement will be made of the anonymous donation of $1000, to be matched by nine other $1000 contributions to constitute a fund for the National Society of Arts and Letters clubhouse in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Donald Halstead and Mrs. Anthony Bliss are in charge of this project.

Pinhoe Bazaar To Be Given At Embassy

A second benefit is being planned by the Washington Pinhoe Community Center Fund committee, a Christmas bazaar to be given at the British Embassy through the courtesy of the Ambassador and Lady Inverchapel, on Tuesday, December 2, from 10:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor is chairman of the benefit, proceeds from which will go toward the fund being collected for a community center and child health clinic at Pinhoe, an ancient town in Devonshire, England, where many American soldiers were quarted during the last war.

Members of the committee include Mrs. Sidney de la Rue, a trustee of the fund of which Edward R. Stettinius, jr., is honorary chairman; Mrs. Norman J. O. Makin, wife of the Ambassador of Australia; Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador; Mrs. H.T. Andrews, wife of the Minister of the Union of South Africa; Mrs. Thomas A. Stone, wife of the Canadian Minister; Mrs. G. L. Magann, wife of the Counselor of the Canadian Embassy; Mrs. Robert A. Lovett, wife of the Under Secretary of State; Mrs. Norman Armour, wife of Assistant Secretary of State; Mrs. Willard L. Thorp, wife of Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. J. William Fulbright.

Also, Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Arthur Gardner, Mrs. William McKee Dunn, Mrs. Mason Gulick, Mrs. Frederick Livesey, Mme. Boncompagni, Miss Dorothy Stirling, Miss Julia Barnes, Mrs. Cary D. Langhorne, Mrs. Robert Davis and Mrs. Morris Cafritz.

The first benefit was held at Anderson House last spring. The forthcoming bazaar will feature Christmas articles and gifts such as books, leather goods, rare silks and scarves, antiques and silver in addition to special booths.

British Daughters Will See Films

A movie film of the royal tour of South Africa will be shown for the first time at the meeting at 8 o'clock tonight of the Daughters of the British Empire in the District, at 1851 Columbia rd. nw.

Other films to be shown include "Heir to the Throne," a resume of Princess Elizabeth's girlhood, and, "Shrine of a Nation," scenes of Westminster Abbey.

Mrs. Roy E. Lowe, State regent, will preside. Miss Dorothy Kingsford is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Town Club Board Will Meet Today

The executive board of the Town Club will meet at 12:30 p. m. today at the home of Mrs. Wendell Lund, president, 1840 Plymouth st. nw. Luncheon will be served by Mrs. Lund and Mrs. Halbert Poole, jr., second vice president.

Additional plans will be discussed for furnishing a visitors' waiting room in the new George Washington Hospital.

Women's Overseas League Slates Armistice Breakfast

The annual Armistice reunion breakfast of the Washington Unit, Women's Overseas League will be held at noon next Sunday, November 9, in the Burlington Hotel, with Mrs. Dixie Wright, unit president, presiding.

In addition to local women who served overseas in theaters of armed conflict in either World War, others are expected from Baltimore, Philadelphia and elsewhere. Breakfast reservations should be made with Miss Katherine T. Andrews, Westchester Apartments.

Miss Louise Whitney, who served with the Red Cross in England in the World War II, is chairman of the breakfast committee. Other members of the committee are Miss Ruth McClelland and Mrs. Archibald Smith, both of whom served with the YMCA on the Continent in World War I.

Tomorrow's Food-Saving Menu

Hearty main dish that keeps step with today's conservation program, yet satisfies all the family, is Cheese and Fish Casserole, the main attraction in the Tuesday Peace Plate suggestion from the Consumer Service Section, Citizens Food Committee.

This protein-rich casserole dish is a standby recipe, for it is appetizingly made with almost any variety of fish. Make this casserole with canned or cooked fish, flaked, and that includes leftover fish. Serve with buttered limas and spiced beet pickles.

Refreshing dessert that needs neither cookies nor cake is Fruit Ambrosia—a mixture of diced oranges, canned diced pineapple and coconut—sweetened to taste and chilled. Or serve any fresh fruit available in your market.

CHEESE AND FISH CASSEROLE

- 1½ cups bottled milk, scalded, or ¾ cup evaporated milk and ¾ cup water, scalded
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 canned pimiento, chopped
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley
- 1½ tablespoons minced onion
- 1½ cups grated American cheese
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- Dash of paprika
- 3 eggs, well beaten
- 2 cups flaked canned or cooked fish (haddock, halibut, salmon, shrimp, tuna)

Pour scalded milk over bread crumbs. Add pimiento, parsley, onion, grated cheese and seasonings. Then add eggs. Put fish in greased 1½ quart casserole; pour milk and cheese mixture over it. Set in pan of warm water, bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 75 minutes, or until firm. Serves 6.

FOOD CONSERVATION REMINDERS:

1. Casserole dishes, especially those using milk or a sauce, offer an easy and tempting way to use leftovers. Diced dry bread or bread crumbs, small amounts of cooked vegetables, meat, or fish may be mixed in with the other ingredients.

2. Serve a raw vegetable daily—its crispness and flavor add variety, and it saves food value. Cabbage may lose more than half of its Vitamin C in cooking.

Chapin W. C. T. U. To Have Anniversary

Chapin WCTU will observe its seventy-third anniversary at the meeting at 11 a. m. Wednesday in Capital Memorial Church, 5th and F sts. nw. Mrs. Amu Weick will speak on "The Effect of Alcohol on the Brain." Mrs. D. C. Richardson will preside.

Ida Jean Kain's New Mr. and Mrs. Slimming Schedule Begins Today

Saving Food Will Keep You Fit

By Ida Jean Kain

First of a series of 10 articles and 10-Day Diet.

If you are just the right weight, have never been threatened with overweight and never expect to be—fine! You are not exceeding your calorie quota. You can help by following the food conservation program and the "no waste" rule. You are entitled to your full share of calories, but no extras.

However, if you are among the solid citizens—numbering 25 million, no less—who are overweight, then lean back in your chair and get the key to the calories that can turn this food-saving emergency into 10 extra years of the best years of your life.

Skeptical? Fat is a killer. And overeating, nothing else, causes fat. Sure, you never felt better in your life, but the gloomy statistics reveal that from 40 on 20 per cent of excess weight can cut your life expectation 30 to 40 per cent. And overweight does its worst damage after 50. If you are 40 to 45 and you weigh 180 and you should weigh 150, chances are Gabriel will blow his horn 9 to 12 years sooner! Ask your doctor.

You've been intending to do something about your weight . . . when you could get around to it. Well, there is no better time than now. It is imperative that we save food. It is the most important individual contribution you and I can make toward lasting peace.

This 10-day Mr. and Mrs. Series, I'm happy to tell you, is a Command Program, but not from Uncle Sam—it came from my readers who want to help ease the food shortage and check the rising tide of avoidupois at the same time. Drop in the doctor's office for a checkup, and if he approves on with the diet!

You need not be afraid of it, Mr. These man-sized menus are scientifically planned to keep you fit instead of fat. Besides, you get the lion's share with 400 to 500 calories a day more than the Mrs. That should keep you smiling.

Ask Anne

Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a large tray which came from South America—butterfly wings under glass. The entire design (Rio Harbor) is made of the wings. This has been accidentally broken and I wondering if you can tell me where I can have it repaired.
E. M. H.

There's an antique shop in the 700 block of G st. nw., which repairs art objects of this type. It will probably be necessary to take the tray in and show it to an expert there to determine positively whether he can repair it or not.

In a large apartment building, is it necessary to tip the porter each time he delivers something? At Christmas, are gifts expected for all the service personnel?
B. N. M.

Perhaps not every time a package is delivered, but most of the time, a tip should be given the porter. Ten or 15 cents should be sufficient for the tip. It is customary at most apartment houses to remember the service personnel with gifts at Christmas time, especially those who serve you regularly.

I have a number of extra nursing bottle nipples and wonder how I can store them so that they will not deteriorate. M. M. N.

About all you can do to guard these rubber nipples against deterioration is to store them absolutely clean in a place that isn't hot or very dry. Place them loosely in a covered box, not crowded together. It might be a good idea to dust them with powder before putting them away.

I have some Noritake china, Haverford pattern (made in Japan) and would like some more pieces. I wonder if any readers have this china which they would like to sell. I. M. F.

If you take a piece of the china to the Swap Shop on Wisconsin ave. nw., you may be able to locate more china in this pattern. Or have any "Ask Anne" readers pieces of Noritake they would like to dispose of?

Our house trailer is overrun with small beetle like bugs with a hard gray shell. They curl into a little ball when touched. I have seen this bug many times outdoors under rocks or stones or in similar damp places, but I had never heard of their being in the house. When I discovered them, they had eaten the bottom completely off an evening gown with a net skirt. I sprayed the trailer thoroughly with an insect surficide containing 6 per cent DDT, and all the bugs seemed to die. That was less than two weeks ago, and yesterday and today, the bugs were in evidence again. What attracts these bugs and how can I get rid of them?
S. S. A.

An entomologist with the United States Department of Agriculture tells me it would be impossible to make a positive identification of these insects without examining them. He suggests taking some to your State Entomologist or sending them to the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for identification and advice about how to keep them from invading your trailer home and destroying fabrics. Meanwhile, since the DDT solution seems to kill them, spray with it about once a week.

The ivory keys of our piano have become yellow with age. Is there any way they can be bleached or whitened without harming the piano? I would rather not spend the money it would cost to have a piano man replace them, and hope there is some way I can whiten them at home. S. W.

The only way I know to whiten piano keys materially is to have them scraped and polished and this has to done by a professional. It costs around one-third as much as it would cost to have the ivories replaced.

Cleaning keys with a cloth moistened with denatured alcohol helps to brighten them. Be very careful not to get the alcohol on the black keys or the wood of the piano. Never wash keys with soap, as this darkens ivory. Darkness also hastens yellowing, so its a good idea to leave keys exposed to light during the day. All true ivory will yellow, however, so I shouldn't worry too much over the change in color.

I'm trying to sell a hand crocheted bedspread for a very unfortunate person who needs financial help. Do you know of any place where it might be sold?
T. E. W.

The Gentlewoman's Mart, 1631 Wisconsin ave. nw., may be able to help you in selling the spread.

The First Bought Lunches

If this is the first year of high school for your boy or girl and it means eating lunch away from home for the first time, it is wise to check up on these lunches and see that the child is eating properly. Sometimes it is better to make a couple of sandwiches at home and give the child money for cocoa or milk to buy at the school cafeteria. Then you know the food is correct.

Two Reviews in One

An English Critic And the Hipp Film

By Richard L. Coe

E. A. LEJEUNE is England's best-known film critic. She reviews for the London Observer and writes occasional reports for the New York Times.

Recently a collection of her reviews has been published by Phoenix House, London, "Chestnuts in Her Lap," a copy of which we located at Whyte's shop on Connecticut ave. We've been trying to find space to tell you about it for some days.

The Hippodrome's newcomer, "A Lady Surrenders," gives us the chance. This is a film which we saw overseas about three years ago under the title "Love Story."

Since Miss Lejeune's remarks on the film concur with what our own might be, we'll give you a taste of her criticism. Here, somewhat condensed, is England's Lejeune on the Hippodrome's English film:

Don't be afraid, darlings, "Love Story" is as innocent and naive as its title. It won't bring a blush of shame to the cheek of modesty. Never was there a purer, more platonic passion, under less probable conditions.

Miss Margaret Lockwood and Mr. Stewart Granger play the lovers and there is something Awful and Ennobling the matter with both of them. She is a concert pianist, who is dying of heart disease. He is a RAF mining engineer who is going blind from war wounds. They meet, on life's last long leave, in a Cornish village. They fall in love and agree to have innocent fun together, but for some reason refrain from confiding in each other their state of health.

I have forgotten what the reason is, but I know it is something magnificent, abstruse and silly. At all events, it is enough to involve the plot in all sorts of unnecessary complications.

A Long Affair

Their love affair goes on for nearly two hours without really getting anywhere. They exchange a noncommittal sort of backchat in donkey-carts, in boats and on clifftops. They go swimming, driving, climbing and fishing together, for Miss Lockwood is a pretty robust sort of girl for a heart case. They subsist on a property packet of sandwiches which lasts out the season and would prove to be fairly stale, I fancy, if it ever had to be opened.

In the end the situation is forced by a young woman in overalls, Patricia Roc, who used to blow soap bubbles with the mining engineer but has now graduated, on somewhat inadequate grounds, to a summer theater. She misguidedly kisses the hero on the lips instead of the brow at a Cornish railway station, thereby giving him ideas which any dunderhead would have had already.

Late, but not too late, he sees all. He has a successful eye operation and rejoins the RAF. He snatches the heroine up in his arms after she has fainted at a performance of her own Cornish Rhapsody in Albert Hall . . . The film ends with the unforgettable picture of the doomed Miss Lockwood waving goodbye to a squadron of bombers; on a clifftop; in scanty sportswear; round about Christmas, on my reckoning.

As you can see, "Love Story" is a splendid, noble and fatuous piece. It is all for patriotism and all against promiscuity. It has a piano concerto, composed by Hubert Bath and played by Harriet Cohen, that may rival the "Warsaw" in popularity. Miss Lockwood gives the best imitation I have ever seen of a nonprofessional playing a professional pianist.

Stewart Granger doesn't need to bother about being a bit out of practice in acting, he looks so scrumptious. The dialogue is full of fine, contemplative phrases, such as "Are the people here amusing—young I mean?" and "It's funny in an engineer, this feeling for beauty" and "You know, all this isn't getting us anywhere."

So far as I am concerned, "Love Story" can now settle down and run for weeks and weeks and weeks.

While this doesn't give you the full flavor of the Lejeune technique, it is an example of her simple, direct and polished prose style. Though she has been accused of treating serious films lightly and trivial films seriously, her approach is invariably interesting and usually sound. What she cannot abide is pomposity; what she most enjoys is a good film told in terms of the moving picture.

"Chestnuts in Her Lap" is a collection of reviews that will delight and stimulate anyone interested in the lively art of the movies.

TODAY'S EVENTS: Lana Turner arrives at National Airport this morning at 11:35 . . . Maurice Chevalier begins his week on the National stage tonight at 9 . . . The Barter Theater plays "The Importance of Being Earnest" in Alexandria's George Washington High School tonight at 8.

Recreation Group To Meet Today

The Recreation Division of the Washington Council of Social Agencies will meet at the YWCA, 17th and K sts., nw. at 12:15 o'clock today.

Miss Elaine Exton, youth chairman of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs and J. C. Turner of the Central Labor Union will speak to the group on the recreation work of the youth serving agencies of the Community Chest Federation. E. J. Keyes, Chest director, will also speak to the recreation workers.

Milo Christiansen, District Superintendent of Recreation, will tell the workers o fthe need for a Federal recreation service. Committee chairman of the Recreation Division will report on plans of the division for the winter months.

Jewish Welfare Board Section to Meet Here

One hundred and fifty delegates are expected to attend the thirty-eighth annual convention of the National Jewish Welfare Board's Middle Atlantic section, which opens here next Saturday.

The two-day meeting, to be held at the Jewish Community Center, will be highlighted by presentation of a "statement of principles" defining the fundamental purposes of Jewish Community Centers. Principal speaker will be Dr. Oscar I. Janowsky, associate professor of history at the College of the City of New York.

THAT "PROPAGANDA" PICTURE—Greta Garbo, too long absent from the screen, is back with Melvyn Douglas at the Columbia in "Ninotchka," that merry charade which suggests that the American way is preferable to the binding ties of Soviet thought

Comedy at the Warner

'Her Husband's Affairs' Offers Many Laughs and Lucille Ball

The always enjoyable Lucille Ball has arrived on the Warner screen in a happily daft comedy, "Her Husband's Affairs." It's a lot of fun.

Lucille is mixed up with an invention which serves several purposes, a cream that will do away with shaving or make hair grow on bald heads or turn human flesh to glass. Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer have composed a generally amusing screen play to go with their novel basic idea.

Their dialogue is fresh, amusing and of that sort which you forget soon after the film is over. But the way the wise Lucille says those things and the competent support she has from Franchot Tone, Edward Everett Horton, Gene Lockhart, Nana Bryant and Mabel Paige make for solid audience laughter.

The beginning is particularly good. We watch the milkman arriving at 5:30 a. m., accompanied by his carefree whistle of "The Halls of Montezuma." Mr. and Mrs. Weldon (Tone and Miss Ball) are abed, but Mr. is restless. He has an idea for his future as an advertising man. His tactics to rouse friend wife to an interest in his scheme will delight all married couples.

His advertising genius comes into full play with the offshoot of a plan an inventor-friend is working on. The latter's embalming fluid has all manner of by-products. Hucksters Spoofed

This brings us into a spoofing world that escaped "The Hucksters"—those massive campaigns which launch new products on the unsuspecting public. This facet is handled as broad satire: the governor lends his presence, another Columbia star (Larry Parks) his and a manufacturer's wife hers. It's a neat commentary on the hucksters' hub-bubs.

There's no point in regaling you with the Weldons' complete adventures—how they unfold is purely the property of the film. Its screwball technique recalls the "My Man Godfrey" cycle of pre-war days and it's good to enjoy such inanities once more.

Miss Ball, of course, is just the lady for this sort of nonsense: her version of the sleepy wife who can be roused from her bemusement only when her partner is in dire straits is wonderfully lovable.

Columbia's supporting cast is fine and particular cheers are due the Hecht-Lederer team, which collaborated some years ago on the screen's "Front Page."

Also on the Warner bill are a March of Time report on the Netherlands, "End of an Empire," a sports reel on "Fishing the Florida Keys" and a titivating trailer for the next film, "Anthony Adverse."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congressmen Find Pope Knows Europe

By Drew Pearson

The members of the House Armed Services Committee who called on Pope Pius came away with a healthy respect for the Pontiff's grasp of world politics and his earnest desire to help in Europe. The Congressmen found that the Pope knew all too well what they had recently discovered in their inspection trips.

Pope Pius XII

The Pope opened the meeting by reading in English—which he speaks well, but slowly—a statement on the importance of a strong and compassionate United States if Europe is to survive. GOP Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri, a former Baptist preacher, eloquently replied.

A half hour of discussion followed, during which one Congressman tried to put the Pope on the spot. He was Republican Representative Bishop, a former tailor and coal miner from Carterville, Ill. A conscientious Congressman while in Washington, in Europe Bishop was forever buying trinkets, until by the end of the trip he was known as "The Merchant Prince."

One thing bothered Bishop.

"If we vote money for relief goods to be sent here to Europe," he demanded suddenly of the Pope, "how do we know the goods will ever get to the people who need them?"

The Illinois Congressman then mentioned his doubts about the efficiency of UNRRA distribution, especially in the Balkans.

His Holiness did not give an immediate answer and Bishop repeated his question, this time pointing his finger at the Pope. Mincing no words the gentleman from Illinois said he wanted an answer to what he considered a most important question.

Other Congressmen, embarrassed, tried to interrupt. They felt that the Pope intended to answer but was slow because of his English. Fellow Republican George Bates of Salem, Mass., himself a Catholic, attempted to break in, but Bishop would not be stopped.

"I don't want any answers from you," he said to Bates. "I want an answer to my question from him."

The Pope said he did not quite understand the question and Bates started to repeat it. But others in his party turned the conversation to other channels. Bishop never did get his answer.

In addition to the three Republicans, two Democrats—Representatives Lansdale Sasscer of Maryland and John Fogarty of Rhode Island—were also present.

Note—One answer to Congressman Bishop's question is that in Italy an efficient American relief organization, including American Baptist Relief, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Quakers, Mennonites, Brethren World Service, Church World Service, Unitarian Service Committee, YMCA and YWCA, all cooperate for the distribution of American food.

Bipartisan Meat

Democratic bigwigs made a serious mistake when they did not protest the serving of meat on meatless Tuesday at the swank party given them by Mayor Bernard Samuel of Philadelphia. In his eagerness to win the Democratic National Convention for the City of Brotherly Love, the Republican mayor set out a heavily laden buffet, groaning with ham and other delicacies. Most of the Democrats, however, were either too hungry or too polite to protest.

At least one Democrat was an exception. Carl Rice of Kansas flatly refused to touch Republican meat on meatless Tuesday.

"Looks good," remarked the Democratic National Committeeman from Kansas, eying a large Virginia ham, "but none for me today. I take the meatless Tuesdays seriously."

Is Famine Ahead?

A grim warning that 20 years from now America may not be able to feed itself, let alone Europe, was thrown up to President Truman the other day by Oklahoma's bury former Governor, Bob Kerr, who is still a power in Oklahoma politics.

Reminding Truman of our increase in population on one hand and our annual loss of soil on the other, Kerr said: "Each year the United States has from one to two million new mouths to feed, and in the same period, floods wash away 500,000 acres of rich topsoil."

Kerr's answer to the problem: Reclamation.

"Only arid and semiarid lands are available . . . through irrigation

"Unless a radical, additional program of reclamation and soil conservation is adopted," warned Kerr, "we will be unable to feed ourselves in 20 years."

The blunt-talking former Governor called at the White House to plead for a reclamation study of the Arkansas-Red River watersheds and to ask the President to save the big steam power plant at the Oklahoma Ordnance Works for the public. He accused Oklahoma's GOP delegation—Senator E. H. Moore, Representative George Schwabe and Representative Ross Rizley—of scheming to sell the surplus war plant to the Public Service Co. of Oklahoma, a private utility firm. The Grand River Dam Authority, Kerr said, had bid $3,500,000 (payable in bonds) for the war plant, which it badly needs to bolster electric output. The private utility company, on the other hand, bid only $2,500,000.

On both counts Truman was sympathetic but noncommittal. He promised to give them "every consideration."

Note—After his White House interview, Kerr made this comparison between Harry Truman and Franklin Roosevelt: "Roosevelt used to shake your hand and give you a speech until it came time for the secretary to kick you out. Truman sits back and let's you state your case. I did all of the talking."

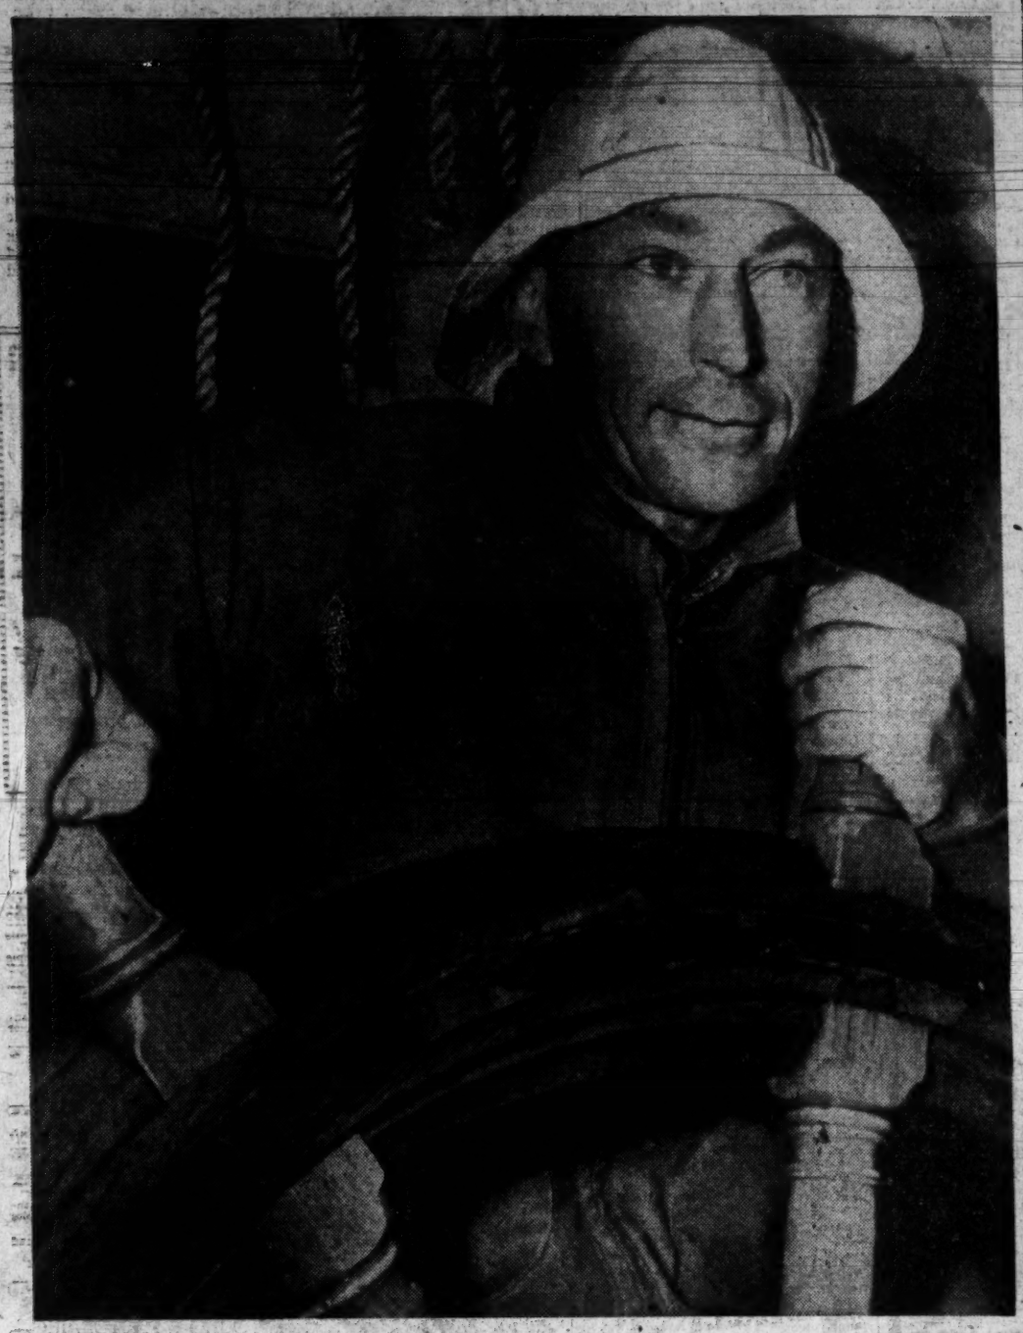
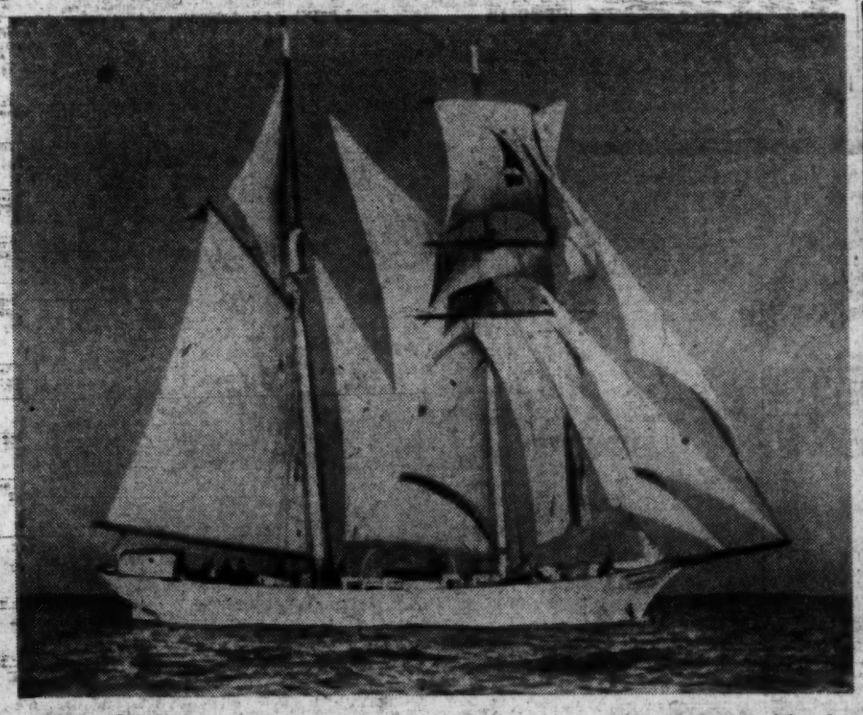
Yankee Skipper . . . . .

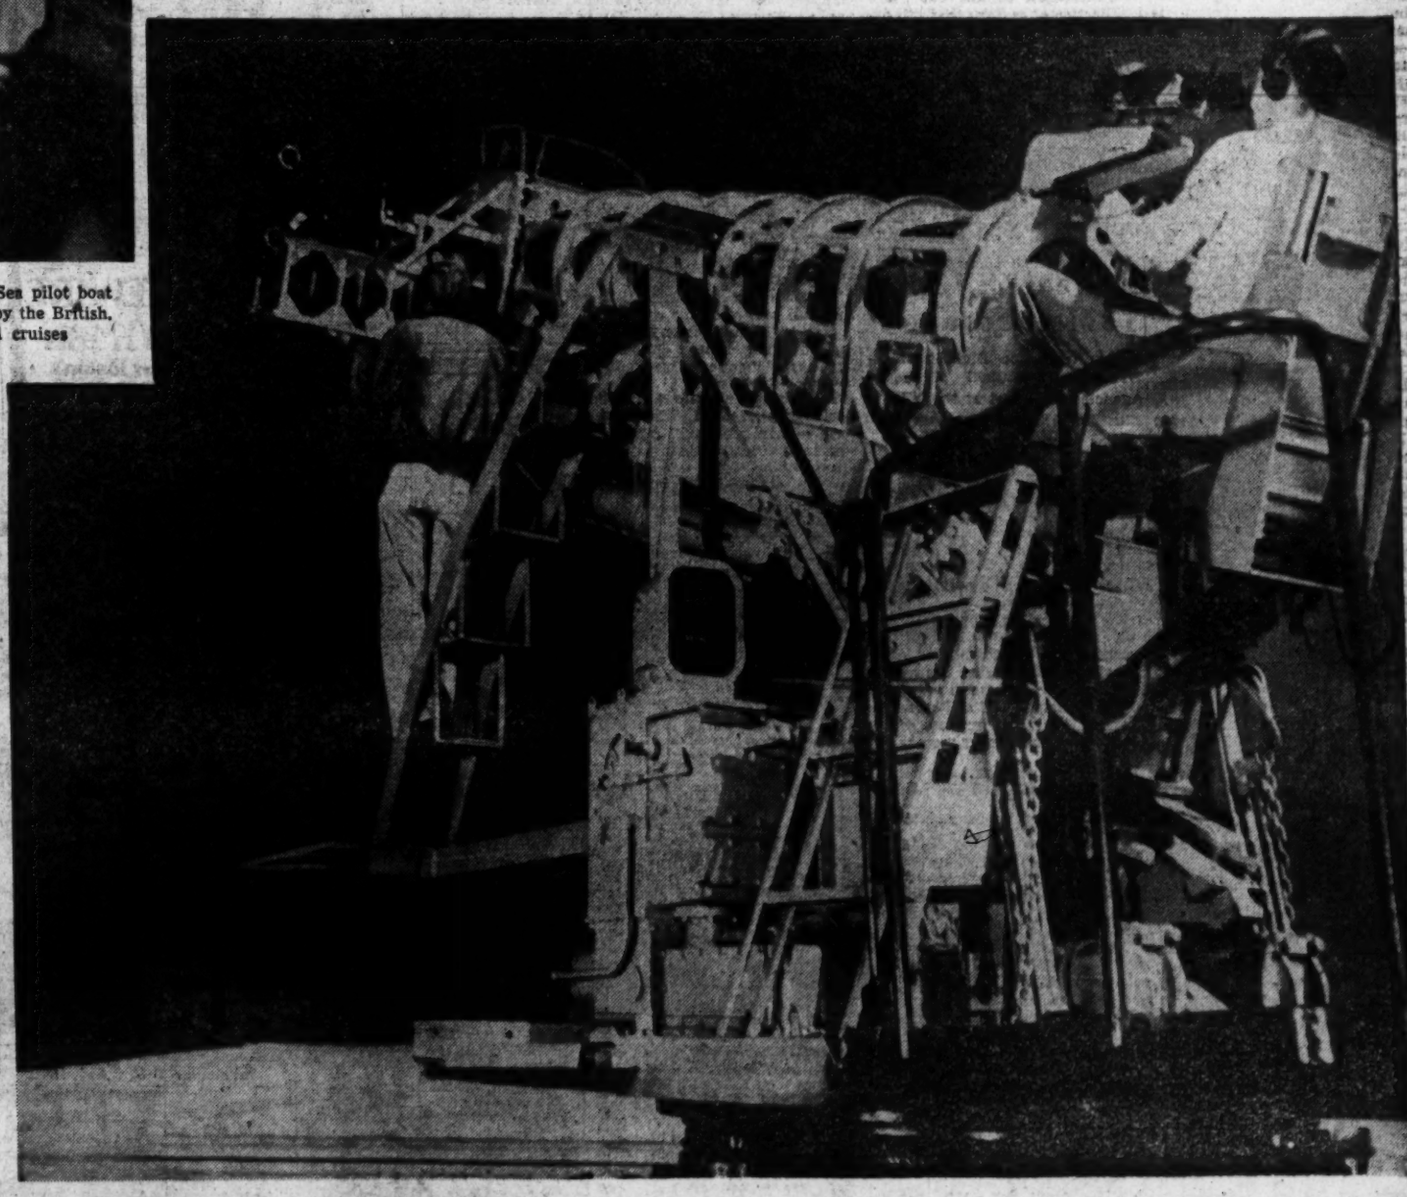


Salt— Capt. Irving Johnson, at the wheel of the brigantine Yankee, put out from the historic fishing port of Gloucester, Mass., to cruise around the world. His ship is a former North Sea pilot boat seized from the Germans as a war prize by the British. He has made three previous world cruises



His Ship— The 96-foot brigantine Yankee is shown under full sail. Captain Johnson hopes for a leisurely cruise on the seven seas

High-Priced Steers— Bidders gather around a carload of champion feeder cattle at the Chicago Union Stockyards where they were shown by Fred DeBerrard of Kremmling, Colo. They were purchased for $56.75 a hundredweight by 19-year-old John Hart of DeKalb County, Ill. The youth may be seen hatless, at right, behind the cattle. The 20 Hereford steer calves were named champion at the third annual Chicago Feeder Cattle Show

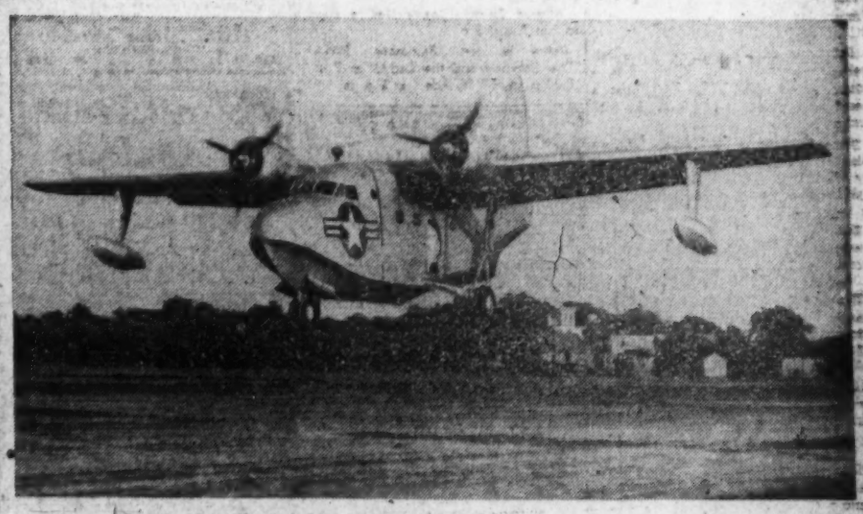


U. S. Army Signal Corps Photo.

Rocket Camera— Set up on an antiaircraft gun mount, this new 16-inch reflecting telescope will track visually and photographically the flight of V-2 rockets. Developed by the Army Ordnance Department at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., it will be sighted on an 8000-foot peak 25 miles from the rocket launching point at White Sands Proving Grounds, N. Mex. Experts expect to make a timed record of the entire flight of rockets. Photographic equipment consists of a motion picture camera, using standing 35-mm. film, operated at 15 exposures a second

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

Four Are Three— Philadelphia's Cirminello quadruplets—expected soon to be in Washington—try out a cake at their third birthday anniversary party. They are (from left) Michael, Kathleen, Elleen and Maureen. Papa Cirminello, who is a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission staff, will move his family to Arlington, Va., when the SEC is transferred here



U. S. Navy Photo

Navy Amphibian— This is the Navy's newest amphibian, the XJR2F-1, built by Gruman, which has successfully completed flights from both land and water. It has a crew of 3, will carry 14 passengers and carry a cargo load of 4100 pounds.

SOMETHING NEW

Has been added to attached house in Alexandria that we say you have never seen one like this. It is really so different—in the first place, it is one of a most unusual small group built in 1938 and it looks anything but an attached home and then again it is six rooms, with three large bedrooms and tiled bath. The living room of good size with its picture window is unique, and then when you enter the very complete and modern equipped kitchen where all walls, including ceiling, is shining white tile, you will see what we mean or are trying to convey in this advertisement. There is a full basement with lavatory and outside entrance. Oil heat; then the woodwork, the floors are hard oak, and the trim is hard-to-get chestnut, etc. And shopping, theaters, schools, churches and bus lines just a few steps from your door as we are not fooling when we say it is the most house for the money, $14,250. It has been a privilege to offer to some time—see it TODAY. Cash required only $4,000. Possession with title, and it is to be shown on definite appointment only.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

As You Were, Dave. You're Not A Yardbird Any More

While our Cartoonist Dave Groves was in the service he learned to fall asleep quickly, whenever the opportunity presented itself.

Here lately he's been looking for opportunities—because, in addition to holding down a full-time job, he's attending art school.

One of his fellow students tells me that the drawing instructor left the room for a few minutes one day recently, and Dave promptly put his head down on his board and fell fast asleep.

Whereupon another former GI decided to have some fun. Just as Dave's breathing became deep and regular, the practical joker bellowed: "Ten-SHUN!"

He says our cartoonist leaped to his feet and, in full view of the howling class, came to a rigid salute.

HOW THAT ARE AGAIN?

Martha McDevitt of 140 Randolph pl. nw. uncorks this wild pitch, possibly as a commentary on the type of poetry we run here:

O, be she gone
O, has she went
And left I all alone?

O cruel Fate
Thou wasn't kind
To take she fore
And leave I hind;
It cannot was.

CAN DO

Remember those old wartime slogans about "the difficult we do immediately; the impossible takes a little longer."

Mrs. J. W. Fletcher of 211 E. Glebe rd., Alexandria, Va., offers a possible explanation.

Did you ever notice that "American" ends in "I can?"

SUGGESTION

Marian R. Shumaker of 3819 Oglethorpe st., Hyattsville, Md., incloses an ad which reads:

WANTED:
Clean Dirt

and comments, "Maybe you columnists could help out, with some of your surplus items."

I'll have you know, young lady, that we get paid by the yard, and not by the ton.

PERSONAL NOTES

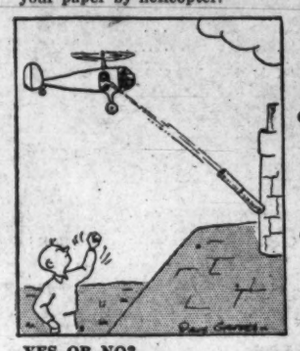
Mrs. P. J. von Weller, 45 Woodmont rd., Alexandria, Va.: Don't thank me, thank Jack Hawley of the Capital City Cocker Club.

Claude Watts, 410 W. Clifton ter.: I've been waiting for months to be caught in a slip like that. You're the first. I wish you were the last.

Audrey T. Redd, 700 E. Brookland Park blvd., Richmond, Va.: Whadda ya mean, you're a "former" District Liner? You've only moved away; you haven't been expelled from the order.

Catherine Lynch, Waldorf, Md., and Mrs. E. M. Fant, 1711 Charles st., Fredericksburg, Va.: We're still hot on the trail of that 5-pound robber with feet 9 inches tall.

K. S. Crosman, Richardsville, Va.: If your roads get any worse down there we'll have to deliver your paper by helicopter.



YES OR NO?

Several District Liners have complained that our "Personal Notes" items are not of general interest, and should be eliminated.

Shall I throw them out?

ADD NAMES

Here's a list of Navy names, from B. B. of 4912 3d st. nw.:

"The Navy has 17 Kings but only one Queen; we have no Fish but we do have three Herrings; no Feet, but three Heads (and three Hatches).

"We have one Fair and three Goods; one Brilliant, four Brights and one Smart. Also four Saints.

"In addition, we boast 21 Youngs, 1 Youngblood, no Olds, but 1 Older. No Wrongs, but 15 Wrights.

"Or perhaps you'd be interested in one Sugar and one Coffee. We have two Snows and one Cloud, but no Rain. We are also without a Spring or Autumn, but we do have one Summer and one Winter; four Frosts, but no Thaws.

"And in conclusion, we have one Wise, but no Fools; one Early—and no Lates."

How about the late Admiral Dewey?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two playful kittens." (Glebe 7411.)

"Two 8-week-old puppies—just plain dog." (Emerson 0375.)

QUESTION

"By the time I got around to trying to get a Varga Girl calendar for 1947," writes Anne T. Flynn of Purcellville, Va., "they were all gone. Do you know where I can get one?"

STREET SCENE

The man next to me on the bus the other day must have been at least 80 years old.

When my eye strayed to the book he was reading, I found that it was titled "Sex in Our Lives Today."

THE WASHINGTON POST
Monday, November 3, 1947

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Elen Dosia, the lyric soprano of the Paris Opera, has arrived in New York to make her American debut opposite Tagliavini in "La Tosca" at the Metropolitan Opera. Miss Dosia will have no first-night jitters, for in Paris she became accustomed to performing under handicaps. She was the only one in the history of French opera ever to play the entire second scene of "Thais" while resting on a couch.

It happened during the post-war winter and Miss Dosia, playing the siren of the Nile, concealed a pair of snuggies under the traditional flimsy white gown. But she still shivered, in the unheated Opera House, until a stage hand, preparing the couch for the second-act scene, covered it with hot water bottles. Miss Dosia stretched out on the couch, to start the scene, and felt so warm that she never left it.

Eddie Foy tells this story of his brother Charlie, who once was teamed with Herman Ruby. They shared an apartment, and when bookings became scarce they took turns at cleaning and cooking. They hocked their jewelry and best clothes, and even their watches and the clock in the apartment . . . One morning Foy started to make some soft-boiled eggs. He turned to Ruby and said: "Remember that bit we used to do—when you'd sing 'Charlie, My Boy'? How long did it take?" . . . 'About two minutes," said Ruby . . . Foy lit a match, applied it to the stove, and said: "Herman, sing me a verse and a half of 'Charlie, My Boy.'"

Paul Whiteman was reminiscing of his early concert tours, when his musicians came late so many times that he instituted a penalty system. Bix Beiderbecke was the worst offender, and when he learned of the penalty system the trumpeter vowed that he'd be prompt . . . In Texas one day Beiderbecke awoke late and discovered that the band already had left by train for the next concert. He chartered a plane and arrived in the city four hours before the train did. He checked into a hotel to wait for the arrival of the rest of the band. Then he dozed off, and didn't wake up until an hour after the concert was over.

Howard Dietz was called on to address a dinner attended by the top movie executives in Hollywood. Dietz discussed their achievements, then pointed to the executives and said: "They are all self-made men—with a little help from A. P. Giannini."

Frederick Loewe, composer of "Brigadoon," will see Scotland for the first time when he sails to do a movie score for a Scotch picture which Arthur Rank is producing

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

EXCUSE, PLEASE. A MESSAGE FROM THE SMALL GENTLEMAN WHO DINED WITH YOU TONIGHT— YOU ARE NOT TO WAIT FOR HIM.
YOU MEAN HE'S LEFT? WHY?
THE GENTLEMAN DID NOT CONFIDE IN ME, SIR. HE QUESTIONED ME ABOUT A COUPLE WHO HAD JUST LEFT AND SEEMED QUITE PERTURBED WHEN I TOLD HIM THE MAN WAS AN INSAVORY PRIVATE INVESTIGATOR. HE TOOK A CAB.
OBSERVE, MASTER, THE VEHICLE WE PURSUE NOW STANDS EMPTY. ITS PASSENGERS OBVIOUSLY HAVE ENTERED YONDER GATE.

WAHOO AND STEVE ROPER

Like spaniels working a rabbit patch, two wrestlers are feverishly rounding up a strong-arm squad on the boardwalk today...!
C'MON, DILLER TH' KILLER!...WE (DUH) GOT WORK T' DO!
OH, FUDGE, KING KONG!... ONE MORE HIT AN' I WIN A KEWPIE DOLL!
I SAY, SLINGIN' SAM! THAT ROPER CHAP NEEDS AID! SHALL WE JOIN THE OTHERS?
BONG!
I'LL PAY YA TO TAKE HIM AWAY! THAT'S TWO STRIKIN' MACHINES HE'S BUSTED ALREADY!
ANY IDEA WHERE I'LL (DUH) FIND IVAN TH' CRUEL COSSACK?
HOW SHOULD I KNOW?
While, in the pantry of the gambling ship!
TAKE THOSE FOUR LUNCHES RIGHT UP TO MISS JEZEBEL'S CABIN!
RIGHT!... (BUT I'M PAUSIN' ON DECK TO HAVE A QUICK SMOKE FIRST, GALLEY RAT!)

TWO STORES OF NATIONALLY FAMOUS MERCHANDISE

John K. Slear . . . Congressional secretary and attorney . . . with degrees of LLB and Master of Patent Law . . . has worked on Capitol Hill for 17 years . . . and is now Secretary to Congressman Hamilton Jones.

THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN NORTH CAROLINA . . . the tarheel state

Sir Walter Raleigh's officers were the first to write about North Carolina. In their accounts of their landing on the North Carolina coast, they wrote of a shore "so full of grapes as the very beating and surge of the sea overflowed them." The beauty of which these men wrote remains today, from the sand dunes of our coast to the green forests of our Great Smoky Mountains, which include Mt. Mitchell, the highest mountain in the East. We North Carolinians take deep pride in our beautiful State, and we welcome the thousands of visitors and vacationists who are annually our guests. Our numerous State parks afford excellent facilities for almost every kind of outdoor recreation . . . hunting and fishing among the best. The fisherman who likes surf-casting, the quiet stillness of a mountain lake, or fly-casting in a rippling stream has his choice of all these . . . while the golfer will find outstanding courses throughout the State to test his skill. In addition to making our parks recreational areas, they are living monuments for the many historic sites in the State. The people of North Carolina are engrossed in agriculture and in the manufacture of products derived largely from our tremendous farm output. Our tobacco fields, our famous tobacco auctions . . . and finally, our great factories are the outstanding examples of this coordination of industry and agriculture. There are a great many interesting things to see and do in North Carolina, and it is a very generous and courteous gesture on the part of The Hecht Company to give us this opportunity to tell the people of Washington about our State, and her great family called "Tarheels" . . . who believe and act according to our State motto: "Esse Quam Videri" . . . "To Be, Rather Than To Seem."

John K Slear
President North Carolina State Society

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . One of the thirteen original States, the twelfth to be admitted to the Union, in 1789 . . . is rich in tradition and natural resources. The Nation's "busiest tobacconist," the State is one of the wealthiest in the Old South . . . and a vision of spectacular beauty, from the Great Smoky Mountains to Cape Hatteras.

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . Where the first attempt to settle the New World took place, at Roanoke Island, in 1584 . . . and where the first child born of English parents in North America, Virginia Dare, first saw the light of day, in 1587. Today, these events are commemorated annually in the famous Pageant of "The Lost Colony" . . . a symphonic drama of those days of Sir Walter Raleigh . . . with historic Fort Raleigh the setting for the Pageant.

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . Where Wilbur and Orville Wright startled the world in December of 1903 by making the first successful airplane flight in a heavier-than-air craft under its own power, and carrying a human passenger.

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . Proud of her 54 colleges and universities . . . among them Wake Forest, Duke and the Greater University of North Carolina. Duke University is the site of one of the leading medical centers of the South . . . and a similar one of major proportions is planned for the Greater University of North Carolina.

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . One of the Nation's leading agricultural States, she grows 40 per cent of the country's total tobacco crop, and 70 per cent of its leaf cigarette tobacco . . . with corn, cotton, hay, peanuts and fruits added to the huge tobacco yield. The State Flower, dogwood, blooms in abundance, along with azaleas and rhododendrons in lush profusion . . . bringing brilliant touches of color to an already beautiful landscape.

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . Produces over half the 350 billion cigarettes consumed each year in America, which . . . with the output of her cotton mills, hosiery mills, furniture factories, hardwood veneer and wood-pulp plants and one of the largest towel manufacturing plants in the world . . . makes the Tarheel State twelfth in the Nation in manufacturing. North Carolina is one of the important sources of mica, kaolin and feldspar (used in ceramics and other products), bromine (used in ethyl gasoline production) and granite.

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . The "Variety Vacationland," where enthusiastic tourists spend upwards of $175 million a year. From the Coastal Plain, across the Piedmont Plateau to the Great Smoky Mountains, she offers a wealth of outdoor sports, swimming, boating and fishing along the coast and in the myriad inland waters.

- NORTH CAROLINA . . . The Tar Heel State gave Presidents Andrew Johnson and James K. Polk to the Nation. Such diverse personalities as the late Ambassador to Great Britain and a notable American statesman, O. Max Gardner . . . former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels . . . author Thomas Wolfe . . . and "Music Professor" Kay Kyser . . . are North Carolinians all.
